DRY LAW REVOLT FIRED BY MORROW

Today

Of Course, of Course.
Julius Miller's House.
Mr. Morrow Starts.
Happy Little Octopus.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

ADMIRAL HILARY JONES, of our Navy, tells the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that in the Navy pact JAPAN AND BRITAIN WON, AND THE UNITED STATES LOST.

That need not surprise anybody.

There are no Anglo-maniacs or Americo-maniacs among the Japanese. They know what they want, and if they don't get it they stop.

This country, anxious to appear to have got something, likes anything offered.

ADMIRAL JONES said England always has tried to beat down the American cruiser strength and the 8-inch cruisers, most desired by our Navy, and, by the London pact England has got what she wanted.

Of course, if England had not got what she wanted there wouldn't be any pact.

The British have statesmen.

You read that the Naval Conference in London cost Great Britain almost "$1,000 a day," which is cheap considering what Britain got.

MR. JULIUS MILLER, borough president of Manhattan, New York City, plans to supply reasonable housing to people of moderate means and keep the population from leaving his own borough.

First he planned the new style houses, then obtained a pledge from 25 of the most important building corporations and individuals in New York, to co-operate with him in the building.

Officials in several hundred cities in which this column is published may get full information by addressing Julius Miller, Municipal Building, New York City.

DWIGHT W. MORROW, a national character, former partner of J. P. Morgan & Co., who has since done excellent work as ambassador to Mexico, began his campaign for the Senate in New Jersey yesterday.

MR. MORROW is able. If he goes to the Senate, he will get for his state anything that is to be got. He understands the art of getting. Many will vote for him because he wants to go to the Senate himself.

Men as rich as Mr. Morrow have usually sent dummies to the Senate, to do what they wanted done. To see such a man willing to go himself is a pleasant change.

NOT SO LONG AGO, the government became much excited because Standard Oil was supposed to be worth "almost a billion dollars," and chopped the big octopus up into several small pieces. Each went its separate way, a little octopus on its own account.

NOW MR. TEAGLE, head of Standard Oil of New Jersey, one of several brothers and sisters, says his company made in 1929, $120,912,794.

That amounts to five per cent on $2,400,000,000 and Mr. Teagle says that if the oil industry had been wiser in its methods, he would have made a great deal more.

THE REV. JOHN B. KELLY, spiritual director of the Catholic Writers' Guild, characterizes the Anti-Saloon League's statement that it was "born of God" as "outrageous audacity."

Father Kelly says that the Anti-Saloon League "when it attempts to flaunt prohibition before Catholics as a moral need is talking sheer inanities."

HE ADDS:

"If taking a drink is immoral, how about Wesley, the saint of Methodism, who, according to Lamar, George's brilliant historian, was known to swallow a 'hooker' of hot whisky?"

Prohibition and religion are closely allied, and it looks as if both were in politics to remain for some time.

THE LEAGUE of Nations appoints a special commission of two Swedes and one Dutchman to study the historic problem of the Wailing Wall in Jerusalem, cause of so much bitterness between Jews and Arabs.

The Arabs have one of their most important places of worship immediately adjoining the Wailing Wall where Jews from all over the world gather to lament the fall of Jerusalem.

Arabs have been in possession of Jerusalem for centuries, ever since they beat the Crusaders. And according to their Koran, it is their holy city also.

IT HAS BEEN SAID many times here and elsewhere that when war starts it will come from the air. With us that is still theory.

It isn't theory in India, where British airmen have been bombing rebellious tribes along the northwest frontier.

That's so much simpler than marching on the ground, running the risk of being shot by natives, as the British were compelled to do before flying came.

U. S. Girl Loses, Men Win Golf Cup

YANKEE GIRL LOSES, MEN KEEP CUP

Fishwick Downs Collett 4 And 3 for Title; Jones And Team Rout English

Golf history repeated itself on England's wind-swept links today when Miss Glenna Collett, the American champion, failed in her effort to win the British women's championship, the only major British golf competition never won by an American and the United States amateur linksmen won the Walker Cup, emblematic of world team supremacy, from their overseas rivals for the sixth successive year.

Miss Diana Fishwick, 19-year-old English schoolgirl, provided one of the most startling upsets in golf history by scoring a 4-and-3 triumph over the renowned Glenna in their 36-hole final round match at Formby and keeping the title safe in her motherland.

COLLETT'S ERRORS BEAT HER

Miss Collett, who was beaten by Miss Joyce Wethered in the final of the British women's tournament last year, and who eliminated Miss Molly Gourlay and Miss Enid Wilson, two of England's best, in her advance to the final, can attribute her defeat to her many errors rather than to any exceptionally brilliant play by her blue-eyed, flaxen-haired opponent.

Four times in the first nine holes the American champion failed to sink putts of three feet or less, and her poor work on the greens so disturbed her that the rest of her game went to pieces, and she finished the first 18 holes 4 down. Her morning exhibition was regarded as the sorriest of her competitive career.

MOST DECISIVE WIN

In winning the Walker Cup by 10 matches to two, at Sandwich, the American team turned in the most decisive triumph it ever has recorded on British soil.

Bobby Jones, captain of the U. S. squad, paced his mates in their victory march by gaining a decisive 9-and-8 decision over Roger Wethered, British captain. George Voigt, Harrison (Jimmy) Johnston, George Von Elm, Roland MacKenzie, Dr. O. F. Willing and Don Moe also defeated their British rivals.

Francis Ouimet, who lost to T. A. Torrance, 7 and 6, was the only U. S. casualty in the singles today. The other American defeat was sustained in the foursome matches yesterday.

Pershing and Edge To Visit War Scenes

PARIS, May 16.—(AP.)—Ambassador Walter E. Edge and Gen. Pershing today announced they would make a tour of the French battlefields Monday and Tuesday to inspect memorials erected or being erected by the Battle Monuments Commission.

Dawes Returning To Aid Pact as Admirals Rap It

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP.)—Ambassador Dawes will return to the United States shortly for conferences with President Hoover on the London naval agreement.

The White House said today that while it was not definitely decided when the ambassador would come, his trip was not in the nature of "leave," but for the specific purpose of conferring with the President about the pact.

Gen. Dawes was one of the delegates who drafted the treaty. As vice president he had a long association with most of the present membership of the Senate, and retains a wide personal friendship there.

It is assured that upon his return he will confer with various senators.

One of Gen. Dawes' first duties after assuming his new post last summer in London was to conduct on behalf of the President the negotiations preliminary to the calling of the London conferences by Prime Minister MacDonald.

PACT RIDDLED

Cruiser provisions of the treaty were bombarded with objections today by two high officers of the Navy, who disclosed that the American negotiators accepted

BLUE LAW BAN GAINS IN VOTE

The total returns in the Blue Law poll of Pittsburgh by the Sun-Telegraph have passed the 10,000-mark, maintaining the preponderance of ballots favoring repeal, which compromise about 83 per cent of the total vote cast.

The latest standing in the poll for all wards, embracing a total of 10,326 ballots, is as follows:

For the Blue Laws	1,164
For Modification	646
For repeal	8,516

The second group of ward totals tabulated, including the Sixth to Tenth wards, show a higher proportion of ballots in favor of continuance of the Blue Laws than that shown in the first five wards. This is due chiefly to support of the Blue Laws by voters of the Seventh and Eighth wards, the Shadyside, Baum and Bloomfield districts, although outnumbered by voters favoring repeal.

The total poll gives a ratio of about 7½ to 1 in favor of voters favoring the continuance of the closed Sunday law.

Pirate-Quaker Game Called Off

The final battle of the series between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Philadelphia Phillies, scheduled at Forbes Field this afternoon, was called off because of wet grounds.

The postponement was the third in three days for the two clubs, rain having prevented two of the contests. The Phillies won the only game played in the series, 14 to 8.

TAXI STRIKE ENDS WITH PARADE

Four-Month Tieup Ends Without Flurry or Friction; Father Cox in First Cab

A peace parade of taxicabs, bearing American flags and the former striking drivers' committee, moved downtown at noon today to celebrate the end of the four months' strike.

Father James R. Cox, champion of the drivers' cause, sat in the first cab, driven by Albert L. Hoffman, recovered from wounds suffered in taxi violence.

LAIRD GIVES SIGNAL

The starting signal was given by Walter Laird, vice president of the Parmelee Transportation Company, owners of Yellow and Green cabs.

Much flurry but no trouble accompanied the return to work. Between 700 and 1,000 strikers were expected to appear for their old cabs to signify the end of a strike which has cost the drivers, the company and the city thousands of dollars.

A comparative handful, between 40 and 60, disgruntled over the peace terms which were accepted by the majority of the men yesterday, by a vote of 471 to 336, met last night in Walton Hall. They elected Patrick McCann, former dispatcher, temporary chairman. After talks by the Rev. James R. Cox, chaplain of the union, and Henry Ellenbogen, union attorney, plans to elect officers during this meeting were tabled.

STATEMENTS ISSUED

Alec. Siford, Laird and Father Cox issued statements concerning the end of the strike and the terms under which it was terminated. The Rev. Dr. Albert E. Day, pastor of Christ Methodist Episcopal Church, who conducted the mail voting which indicated the sentiment, announced the count. Five members of the strikers' committee, the strikers' attorney, Father Cox, two men representing the dissenting strikers, Laird and his attorneys counted the ballots.

The gist of the agreement provided for open-shop operation of the taxicabs, with the men granted the right to have their own union. The men had asked closed shop, union recognition, and 40 per cent of the receipts. The agreement provides 37½ per cent of the gross, promises to hear grievances of individuals, and guarantees not to discriminate against men belonging to the union. Other minor concessions concerning working conditions are included.

On Sunday the drivers will meet to nominate officers for their newly formed union. Tuesday they will elect.

Massacre Suspect Accused in Holdup

LOS ANGELES, May 16.—(AP.)—Search for Fred Burke, Chicago gangster, in connection with the famous St. Valentine Day massacre there, was intensified today with identification of the man as a participant in a $2,334 jewel robbery in Los Angeles last night.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Kerr identified a photograph of the gangster as one of two robbers who forced their way into the Kerr home. Other recent victims of jewel robberies also have identified Burke as a holdup man.

VOTE COUNTING BAN DENIED

Judge Ambrose B. Reid in Common Pleas Court today refused a motion by leaders of the Phillips-Bohlen-Dorrance anti-dry ticket in Allegheny County to prevent the County Commissioners from tallying the vote in the primary election.

The petition had asked that Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong, E. V. Babcock and C. C. McGovern be prevented from sitting as a returning board on the ground that Armstrong and Babcock are Davis-Brown partisans and McGovern a Pinchot partisan.

Judge Reid ruled that the court had no jurisdiction. The court cannot overthrow the act of assembly designating the commissioners as the returning board, he declared. He added:

"You can overthrow the election if the board is not qualified to serve."

The petition was presented in behalf of William Frew, county chairman of the Phillips-Bohlen-Dorrance ticket.

SEATTLE, May 16.—The Seattle Star, a Scripps-Canfield paper, yesterday spread the following editorial on the top of half of its first page.

The editorial is of special consequence because of the action of the recent Republican convention of Seattle repudiating the prohibition and World Court policies of the national Republican administration, and because of the state Republican convention, which is about to assemble at Bellingham on Saturday, May 24.

GIVE AMERICA BACK

The editorial in the Seattle Star bears the following headline:

"LIBERTY FOR THE PEOPLE, OR DEATH FOR THE G. O. P."

The text of the editorial is as follows:

"Give America back to her people. We mean this.

"In the past dozen years meddlers and busybodies have imposed on us outrageous interferences with our private lives. They have attempted to force these un-American regulations by Cossack methods borrowed from Czarist Russia; by imperialistic tyranny copied from pre-war Prussia.

"They have forced State Legislatures to bow to their will. They

Cosmo Hamilton Divorced in Paris

NEW YORK, May 16.—(INS.)—George Palmer Putnam, publisher, commenting today on a published story, admitted he had received a letter from Cosmo Hamilton, prominent literary figure, in which Hamilton disclosed he was divorced some time ago in Paris.

Hamilton, who is the elder brother of Sir Phillip Gibbs, arrives here next Monday on the liner De Grasse.

Mrs. Hamilton, nee Curry, is said to be in California. She was formerly the wife of Guy Bolton, playwright.

NEW YORK, May 16.—(INS.)—Maude Adams, noted American actress who retired from the stage in 1918, will return to the theater in September, according to announcement here today.

Miss Adams, producers said, will appear here in a modern romantic comedy after a brief preliminary tour. Best known for her portrayal of "Peter Pan," she is now 58.

VOLPE ACCUSED BY GUN VICTIM

County detectives today held Guy Volpe, Wilmerding political boss, a jail prisoner while they tried to clear up another outbreak of racketeer warfare, which left a trail of one dead and one probably fatally wounded.

Volpe and two others were taken in custody after William Mundy, 40, of 2024 Collingwood avenue, Swissvale, was found with a bullet in his abdomen in front of a barber shop on Hillside avenue, East Pittsburgh, last night. An unidentified Italian cook was shot to death in the Blue Moon Garden, Frankstown road, Penn Township, a short time before. The two crimes are not connected, detectives said.

As Mundy lay in Columbia Hos-

British Girl Flier Hops Off for Siam

LONDON, May 16.—(INS.)—Amy Johnson, pretty 22-year-old British aviatrix, left Rangoon, Burma, today in her light biplane for Rankok, Siam, on her solo flight from England to Australia, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch.

The take-off was made in a heavy rain. Miss Johnson is seeking to establish a time record on her flight. Bert Hinkler now holds the record of 15 days.

Brock to Seek Coast To Coast Record

DETROIT, May 16.—(AP.)—Plans for a transcontinental flight from Jacksonville, Fla., to San Diego, Cal., and return in an effort to shatter three cross-country speed records in one 24-hour trip, were announced here today by William S. PRESIDENCY BOOM SEEN IN REPEAL DEMAND

Anti-Saloon League Declares War on Senate Candidacy Seen as Blow to Hoover

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The "ringing wet" declaration of Dwight W. Morrow in opening his campaign for the Republican nomination for Senator in New Jersey was the political sensation of the capital today.

While it was well known that Morrow would adopt a liberal stand in his campaign, even the most ardent anti-prohibitionists were hardly prepared for such a strong attack upon the Eighteenth Amendment.

In declaring for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, with federal activities limited to preventing shipment of liquor into states that want to remain dry, Morrow takes the same stand as P. S. du Pont, Henry H. Curran, John J. Raskob and other leaders of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

BOOM FOR PRESIDENT

Morrow thus steps into the front ranks of the anti-dry leaders, and if elected to the Senate, it is expected that leadership of the anti-dry bloc will gravitate to him.

"Morrow for President" became the slogan of many enthusiastic dry law foes who read his Newark speech. A victory in November, a good record in the Senate, combined with his services as ambassador to Mexico and his standing in the business world will make him ideal timber for a Republican revolt against prohibition, they say.

The immediate effect of the Morrow announcement, it was declared, will be to embarrass the Hoover administration. A part of the administration and an American delegate to the London naval conference, he is the first outstanding figure in the administration to take a militant anti-dry stand while President Hoover is demanding enforcement.

DRYS WRATHFUL

Drys were angered by Morrow's stand, and their answer was an announcement today from Representative Franklin Fort, close friend of the President, that he will enter the New Jersey primary in opposition to Morrow.

F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, assailed Morrow's speech as "an out-and-out wet platform."

Winters Will Gives Son $10,000

City Controller Daniel Winters, who died May 8, in a Cleveland sanatarium, leaves an estate of $10,000 to his son, Bert, in the will which was filed for probate today.

The estate consists of $3,000 personal property, and $7,000 realty. The son also is named executor.

The will was dated March 24, after Winters had taken ill.

Thaw Sails for England, Ignoring Old Ban

NEW YORK, May 16.—(AP.)—Harry K. Thaw, who on his last visit abroad was refused admittance to England, is aboard the Ile de France today in another attempt to crash that country's gate. He referred questioners to William Glynnon, a playwright, who said:

"Mr. Thaw doesn't have to fear anything on the part of British officialdom under the new ministry."

At the time of his exclusion two years ago it was contended Thaw was a foreigner who committed an act for which he might be extradited.

LONDON, May 16.—(AP.)—The home office declined today to comment on the attitude it would take toward Harry K. Thaw, who has left New York bound for England.

When it was suggested Thaw must have some idea the Labor government would not bar him, as did the Baldwin administration, an official merely said:

"I can't say what Thaw had in his mind when the left the United States. All you can do is wait until he arrives and see what happens."

HARM FOR U. S. IN LEAGUE COURT ENTRY, CHILD DECLARES

TRAP IN TIES TO EUROPE, HE WARNS

Declares Tribunal Is Mere League Attorney; Hits at Cadman's D. A. R. Attack

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—"Joining any court which is an appendage of the League of Nations and takes orders from the league, will put us into a hole out of which we will never scramble unhurt."

That was the warning of Richard Washburn Child, former ambassador to Italy, to patriotic Americans last night. The League Court, he said, is merely the "attorney of the league, handing down opinions at the behest of the father organization."

The talk of the former Ambassador was one of the series of patriotic broadcasts under auspices of the Daughters of the American Revolution. It was carried over a nation-wide chain of the National Broadcasting Company.

Political Isolationists

With "Patriotism in America," as his theme, Childs declared:

"Good patriotism has its propagandists, also. Of these I am only one among millions of Americans.

"We are not isolationists. How can we be? The world, from an economic standpoint, is being ever more closely knit together into a whole. But, politically, we are isolationists, because the idea of an antique world into which we are to be woven politically is repulsive and without good sense.

Says U. S. Gives Call

"America has something new to give the world. It is a clear call—much more clear than the rather vague and doubtful pact of Paris, much more clear than the empty efforts of the League of Nations to stop wars, much more clear than our present discussions as to disarmament and naval treaties.

"The force of European diplomacy and a certain type of American propaganda of the international banker breed is directed at a desire to get us, if not into the big league of European nations, then into its political control.

"And then there is the court, established on its face so that those who want to adjust differences can go to it. But what kind of a world court is it that asks us, as a possible plaintiff and defendant, to join a club beforehand, to sign on a dotted line for future action, and pay the dues?

Only an Attorney

"The court is only a court, an attorney for the league. It furnishes 'advisory opinions' at the behest of the league. When we join the court we are entangled with a European political-pressure machine.

"If, in the future, we desire to go before the court with a sound case—we can do so. It would not refuse us. Do you believe that we, as plaintiff or willing defendant would be barred? Then why 'join' now?

"Joining any world court which is an appendage of the league and takes orders from the league will put us into a hole out of which we will never scramble unhurt.

Hits Cadman Stand

"Not long ago, a distinguished American clergyman, the Rev. Dr. Parkes Cadman, took to task the Daughters of the American Revolution, a society representing the idea, as I understand it, that America is to remain unshackled from European political entanglements."

"The clergyman who has stepped into politics said, in reply to a question as to what he thought of the President's speech to the Daughters of the American Revolution, substantially as follows:

"'I think it was a great statesmanlike address. He, the President, said the United States should become a member of the court. The reactionary efforts of the Daughters of the American Revolution will fail, and ought to fail. They are not typical of the actions of our intelligent citizenship. We are the authors of the pact of Paris and authors, in the beginning, of the League of Nations, which we left to others. If we should build a wall around ourselves, we should go down to an inglorious end. Let the Daughters of the American Revolution leave statesmanship to the statesmen.'

Quotes Criticism

"Upon this statement I received the comment of a distinguished American, and this was his comment:

"'Cadman says D. A. R. should leave statesmanship to statesmen, and then he proceeds to discuss League Court. When did he become a statesman? A sincere divine would not use a religious hour to discuss politics, but a clergyman doesn't necessarily make a good statesman, especially when he was born in England and is discussing American politics.'

"There are three kinds of important propagandists. One: Those who are drawing pay to get us into Europe's entanglements. Two: Those, like many of our government leaders, who are talking us into Europe. Three: Those who represent, as private citizens, the mass of public opinion which wants to keep us out of Europe and to give to the world our ideas of three great and new ends.

Higher Standard Aim

"First: A higher standard of living for all peoples.

"Second: By the economic co-operation of all peoples.

"Third: With the friendly consent of all peoples, for they distrust in the methods of well-meaning politicians.

"I belong to the propagandists of the third group, and I represent nobody—unless it is yourself and myself."

VOLPE ACCUSED BY GUN VICTIM

pital early today, just before being taken to the operating table, according to East Pittsburgh police, he said:

"Guy Volpe shot me."

Volpe, Frank Pinginoe and Sam Ruishonce were arrested in a house at 1528 Electric avenue, North Braddock, after Mundy had made his statement at the hospital. All were lodged in jail.

KILLERS SEEN FLEEING

Mundy was found about 9:30 o'clock last night. Forty minutes earlier, five men drew up in front of the Blue Moon Garden, Frankstown road. Three alighted and walked into the roadhouse. Neighbors heard shots fired, they told detectives. They peered from their windows to see three men run back to the machine and speed away.

The cook, about 28, shot twice in the breast, was dead when taken to Columbia Hospital by the proprietor, Vincent Zarra, who was later arrested, assisted by Joseph Malvach, R. D. Wilkinsburg.

County detectives said persons who had called at the hospital offered two names for the victim: Tony Mutalano and and Tony DeAngelo.

DAWES COMING TO AID PACT

three less eight-inch gun ships than the Navy General Board had set as the national defense minimum.

Rear Admiral Mark L. Bristol, chairman of the board, told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the treaty did not represent parity with Great Britain nor a proper cruiser ratio with Japan and that the best thought of the Navy had been brushed aside at London.

REVEALS SACRIFICE

Appearing successively before the naval and foreign relations committee, Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones said a "vital" and "fundamental" concession was made when the American delegation took 18 eight-inchers in place of the 21 "reluctantly" agreed to by the general board last September in a memorandum to President Hoover.

Jones and Bristol were hammered mercilessly by Senators friendly to the treaty.

RIDDLES PARITY CLAIM

Bristol epitomized his views under the questioning:

"Does this treaty give us parity?"

"No."

"Is it necessary that the 5-3 ration with Japan be maintained?"

"That is my belief."

"Does the London treaty retain that ratio with Japan?"

"It does not."

Bristol thundered back at questioning Senators that the general board thought the United States should be permitted to have the type of ship which scientific study had shown to be best for American needs.

Reiterating that hETAOINNN Jones reiterated that he regarded the treaty cruiser provisions out of accord with the requirements of national defense, and thought other clauses of the pact also were objectionable.

REED IN DEFENSE

Jones said the treaty violated "our fundamental rule for disarmament."

"Yes," said Reed, "and the treaty violates the fundamental rule laid down by the Japanese for submarines."

Reed challenged Jones' contention that the American Navy will be "frozen at the end of the treaty's life."

U. S. MEN HUNT 'SHOW BOAT' OPERATOR

Intensive Search Under Way For Graham; Defendants Taken in Raid Give Bail

Federal officers are conducting an intensive hunt for Frank T. Graham, said to be one of the operators of the "Show Boat," which was raided yesterday morning by prohibition agents.

With gambling paraphernalia held by county authorities, and contraband liquors in the hands of government officials, all of which were seized in the raid on the boat, moored in the Allegheny River, near Sixth street, the two branches of government are laying plans for prosecutions under the state and federal laws.

FOUR GIVE BONDS

Louis Markowitz, manager of the "Show Boat," Milton Jaffe, "Jakie" Klein and Thomas P. McFarland, arrested in the raid, had preliminary hearings before the United States commissioner. The latter, an entertainer on the boat, was held for court under $500, on a charge of interfering with the raiders when they went to a dressing room to search for liquor.

The other three defendants were held for a further hearing on May 26, under bonds of $2,000 each. At the hearing Prohibition Agents John Kreck and John Clifford, testified that bottles of whisky were purchased from Don Collins, on the boat, on May 3 and May 7. Jaffe was identified as one of the operators of the boat.

Klein made two appearances before the commissioner, and at neither session was sufficient evidence produced to identify him as one of the owners, so his case was continued with the others. Earlier in the day the prohibition authorities turned over the gambling paraphernalia to county detectives.

Under cross examination, government witnesses said that none of the men arraigned negotiated the alleged liquor sales.

Today federal authorities conferred with Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt to determine what charges may be brought against the operators in Criminal Court.

After the meeting Langfitt said he would decide late today what charges to bring and would bring them tomorrow.

REPEAL GAINS TWO STATES IN DIGEST POLL

Louisiana and Nevada Give Majorities for Voiding Of Law; Kansas Driest

NEW YORK, May 16.—Two more states give an outright majority for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment in the semi-final returns of the Literary Digest nation-wide poll on prohibition, according to returns tabulated.

Louisiana and Nevada join Connecticut, New Jersey and Rhode Island with more than a 50 per cent sentiment for repeal, plus a substantial vote for modification.

No states other than the five previously reported, Arkansas, Kansas, North Carolina, Oklahoma and Tennessee, register a majority vote for strict enforcement.

Nevada with a 57 per cent vote to annul the prohibition laws, gains ascendancy as the strongest anti-dry state in the union in this "straw" referendum. Kansas, with nearly 58 per cent of its ballots registered for enforcement, continues to lead in the dry column.

30 PER CENT DRY

Of the total of 4,562,761 votes tabulated in this ninth report on the poll, 1,386,216, or 30.38 per cent, are for enforcement; 1,340,441, or 29.34 per cent, vote for modification; and 1,836,104, or 40.24 per cent, register for repeal.

Rice was named as proprietor.

New Bible Text Uses Modern English

LONDON, May 16.—(AP.)—A version of the book of Isaiah in present day colloquial English was published today by the National Adult School Union. Prof. J. B. Allen, of Rawdon College, Leeds, is the author.

An example is:

Authorized version:

"Thy princes are rebellious and the companions of thieves. Everyone loveth gifts and followeth after rewards."

New version:

MORROW LEADS DRY REVOLT

Senator Jones (Rep.), of Washington, prohibition leader in the upper house, declared:

"Morrow's plan goes right back to where we were before we adopted the Eighteenth amendment. I don't think the country wants to do that."

Representative Bacharach, (Rep.), of New Jersey, anti-dry, praised Morrow as did Representative LaGuardia (Rep.), of New York, anti-dry and a Progressive, who said:

"I'll support him in preference to Frelinghuysen, who had a chance to run as a wet and turned it down. Morrow's stand is courageous."

FORT ENTERS A SDRY

NEWARK, May 16.—(INS.)—Riding on the wave of public interest which swept New Jersey today when Dwight W. Morrow's opening address in his campaign for the Republican senatorial nomination placed the ambassador flatly favoring repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, Representative Franklin W. Fort made known his formal entrance in opposition on a strictly dry platform.

Fort is the lone hope of the drys since the third candidate for the nomination is Former Senator Joseph S. Freylinghuysen, who previously entered the race on an anti-dry platform, after ten political dry years.

In his baptismal campaign speech Morrow called for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and the return of the control of liquor traffic to the individual states.

DRYS DECLARE WAR

The New Jersey Anti-Saloon League, through its head, the Rev. Dr. James K. Shields, lost no time in declaring war against the Morrow candidacy, declaring:

"The contention of Mr. Morrow that the states can be induced to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment is the bunk. Large sections o the country will not permit the amendment to be changed. The Anti-Saloon League won its spurs by fighting. It needs nothing more than a good stiff fight and now it has the opportunity.

"I think Mr. Morrow went the limit and left the people in no doubt as to his stand on prohibition—a commendable thing."

Dr. Shields also declared that the league would fight the candidacy of Prelinghuysen.

CONDITIONS 'DEPLORABLE'

Morrow declared that he advocated generous congressional appropriations for the prohibition amendment and the statutes thereunder as long as they are law. However, the ambassador recommended that such appropriations should be spent in preventing interstate liquor traffic and importation of liquor, and that local police enforcement duties should be left to the states.

Morrow asserted that conditions were "deplorable" after 10 years of federal prohibition administration. He said that the question was a problem of government rather than one of moral principles.

Roadhouse Dispute Ends in Draw for 5

A dispute between four Clinton men and C. J. Campbell, proprietor of Hilltop Inn, Moon Township, ended in a draw in Criminal Court today.

The four—Carl Moody, Charles Wilson, Elmer Marshall, Clarence Marshall—were accused of malicious mischief. They in turn charged Campbell with assault. All were acquitted.

Marshall was said to have been shot in the foot by Campbell.

ROW CAUSES CANNON TO QUIT CHAIR

Facing Charges of Stock Gambling, Bishop Yields Gavel in Church Meeting

DALLAS, Tex., May 16.—(AP.)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of Washington, D. C., today's president of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, surrendered the gavel to Bishop W. J. Beauchamp, of Atlanta, Ga., "because of certain matters before the conference."

He asked Bishop Beauchamp to take the chair after making statements concerned with the work of the board of temperance and social welfare.

BISHOP GETS OVATION

When Bishop Cannon took the chair he was greeted by applause. Proceeding without thanks for the demonstration, Cannon continued:

"Now I wish to make a personal statement. Because of certain conditions known to the conference, I wish to surrender the chair to Bishop Beauchamp."

The conditions to which Cannon referred were the charges pending against him of gambling on the stock market.

RESENTS COMPROMISE STORY

Bishop H. M. Dubose, of Nashville then rose with a copy of the Dallas News in his hand and said he wished to express resentment of an article appearing in it.

The article in effect said those bishops whose political activities had been attacked had "compromised" with members of the episcopacy committee, to be freed of accusations in regard to politics in return for which they combined with the "anti-Cannon" forces.

Bishop Dubose declared there was no truth in the statement.

Tuttle Allows Senate To Scan Cannon Records

NEW YORK, May 16.—(AP.)—Senator Caraway, chairman of a United States Senate Judiciary sub-committee investigating lobbies, today requested Charles H. Tuttle, federal district attorney, to permit an agent of the subcommittee to examine all records concerning transactions of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., with Charles Goldhurst and the New York brokerage house of Kable and Company.

Tuttle said he and the Department of Justice were willing the records should be examined.

Goldhurst was the leading defendant in the two indictments brought against Kable and Company, and upon his plea of guilty to a mail fraud charge was sentenced to five years in federal prison.

Evidence at the trial was that he was a friend of Bishop Cannon and that through him the bishop at one time carried a margin account.

Committee Seeks Full Light on Campaign Gift

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP.)—A special investigator will be sent to New York by the Senate Lobby Committee to inspect records of the brokerage firm with which Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South dealt last year, it was announced today.

The committee is anxious to learn what became of $48,300 of the $65,300 E. C. Jameson, New York insurance executive, gave Cannon toward the anti-Smith campaign in Virginia. Cannon has only accounted for $17,000 in his report to Congress.

Death Car Driver Freed by Court

Edward T. Jones, 21 East street, is free today following a directed verdict of acquittal of a charge against him of involuntary manslaughter in Judge Thomas J. Ford's branch of Criminal Court. He had been tried for the death of George H. Wagner, 44, 262 Waldorf street, last June 10. Evidence showed that Wagner had started across East street at Evergreen road, and dodged suddenly from in front of one automobile into the path of Jones' car coming from the opposite direction.

have demanded the imposition of their ideas and steadfastly fought any attempt of the people as a whole to express an opinion.

"As a result government today is chaotic, oppressive, intolerant. It is leading the people rapidly toward revolution. Probably peaceful, by ballot. Perhaps otherwise.

INTOLERANCE FLOURISHES

"Intolerance in government that began during the war hysteria, festered and flourished after the peace pact when it should have been stamped out.

"Today our statute books are filled with sumptuary, regulatory laws. Prisons are jammed. Millions of our workers are jobless. Our people are tax-ridden and despondent everywhere. One man in every 11 wears a badge and is fed by huge tax levies to snoop and pry into the private affairs of the rest of us. It's time we turned this nation back to the people. Bigger than the prohibition question, bigger than any issue before the American people today is the matter of ridding the United States of fanaticism, cossackism, snoopery and bigotry in government.

REPUBLICANS MUST LEAD

"Republicans must take the lead. It is primarily their responsibility. They should start it Saturday in the state convention at Bellingham. Unless the party voluntarily leads a return to American ideals, enforced by American methods, the people themselves will force it, by a ballot-revolution if necessary."

Hoover Plans Early Start To Rapidan Fishing Camp

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(INS.)—President Hoover believes in getting an early start when he's going anywhere.

Planning another week-end trip to his Virginia fishing camp on the Rapidan tomorrow, the executive sent word to his invited guests to put in an appearance at the White House at 6:30 a. m. They will be served breakfast, but they will be on the road before 7 o'clock—largely to insure arrival sufficiently before lunch to permit a little morning fishing, and also to avoid the Saturday traffic.

Among the early risers will be Attorney General Mitchell, Gov. Roosevelt, of Porto Rico, Representative Blackburn (Rep.), Kentucky; Representative Ramseyer (Rep.), Iowa; Secretary to the President Larry Richey and Capt. Joel T. Boone, the White House physician.

The party will return probably on Sunday afternoon after putting in all of Saturday afternoon on the stream.

Mrs Thompson will place a wreath on the grave of the unknown soldier tomorrow.

The party arrived here by way of Plymouth, England. Excellent weather was encountered all the way across the ocean.

DUCE'S SPEECH STIRS FRENCH

ROME, May 16. — (AP.) — Maurice de Beaumarchais, the French ambassador, today called on Foreign Minister Dino Grandi at Chigi Palace and protested unofficially against the tenor of a speech delivered last Sunday at Leghorn by Premier Mussolini.

The Fascist premier, addressing 55,000 said:

"If our frontiers were threatened, there would be gathered one human mass—nay, a thunderbolt—launched against any and all comers."

The duce declared, recalling that Sunday was the anniversary of Leghorn's battle with the Austrians:

"There is somethnig unescapable, inevitable, in this march toward the destiny of Fascist Italy and nobody can halt it!

"I want to say, not only to you, but to the people beyond our frontiers, that we are not anxious to precipitate adventures, but if anyone deceives himself so far as to think he can halt our onward march, he will find the whole Italian people in front of him."

MINE KEPT IDLE AFTER BLAST

By LEE CURRAN
Staff Correspondent

AVELLA, Pa., May 16.—Three hundred miners were congratulating themselves today for having escaped injury in the explosion which killed three and burned five in the mine of the Powhatan Mining Company.

Authorities blamed the blast on marsh gas, liberated by a fall of slate and ignited by a spark from a mining car switch.

About 300 miners were at work, 75 of them near Abuttment 32, three miles from the entrance, where the explosion yesterday occurred.

Those killed were John Cepress, Jr., 19; Clement Monley, 24, and Thomas Williams, 50, Negro.

Of the injured, Andy Kustic, 19, and JJohn Lang, 33, were in serious condition today in Washington Hospital. Others burned were JJoe Kasharik, 24; Luther Henley, 40, Negro, and Paul Bosseau, 19.

R. P. Curry, of the Bureau of Mines' Pittsburgh branch, inspected the mine today to determine when it would be safe to resume operations.

MOVE TO END INDIA REVOLT AWAITED

Two Meetings Presage Early Action for Settlement; Poetess, Arrested, Freed

BOMBAY, India, May 16. —(AP.)—It was understood in Liberal quarters today that an early move may be expected from the government to open negotiations with Mahatma Gandi, the imprisoned leader of the civil disobedience campaign, for settlement of the present serious political situation.

A government meeting at Bombay and a secret session of the All-India Congress, held simultaneously, presaged decisive action in some direction, it was declared, before the week-end.

POETESS BALKED

While these reports were going abroad, Mme. Sarojini Naidu, successor of the Mahatma and Abbas Tyabil, was arrested early today for attempting a salt raid at Dharsaana and shortly afterward set at liberty. Mme. Naidu and her band of volunteers had sat in the road outside of the village since yesterday forenoon, when halted by police.

Some of her followers were detained after her release. All were given food and drink, from which they had abstained during the entire time of the roadway impasse.

Violent rioting occurred late yesterday at My Mensingh, Benegal, in which about 90 persons were injured. The clash occurred over delivery of liquor and herbs used to make liquor, from the government depot to retail shops. Carts with armed guards were obstructed by civil disobedience volunteers.

POLICE CHARGE MOB

The police charged when the disturbers became violent. The district magistrate was hurt, as was the superintendent of police. One officer, four non-commissioned officers and 28 constables were injured. Fifty-three rioters were treated, indicating the extent of the disturbance.

Raids on the Dharsaana salt pans by small parties today continued to be attempted, but without success. Three small parties, each numbering 50 volunteers, were halted at the fringe of the area covered by the magistrate's ban on assembly.

VOTE HEARING UP MAY 22

Judge Ambrose B. Reid today set May 22 for a hearing on a petition of the election frauds committee of the Allegheny County Bar Association appealing from a decision of the registration board refusing to strike the name of Israel Rubinovitz from the list of voters in the First District of the First Ward.

The case is considered a test case involving 2,400 other voters in the ward.

The Bar Association committee had charged that Rubinovitz had been registered on a fraudulent tax receipt. The committee filed a complaint with the board of registration commissioners, but at a hearing May 9 the commissioners dismissed the complaint. The appeal was then taken to Judge Reid.

POSTAL LEASES IN 3-PLY QUIZ

By WILLIAM S. NEAL.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—A three-way investigation into 6,000 postal station leases throughout the country, calculated to produce "another Teapot Dome," according to its sponsors, was in the making today.

With an inquiry already authorized by the Senate, Representative Williamson (Rep.), of South Dakota, chairman of the Committee on Expenditures, planned to introduce a resolution in the House conferring the same authority on his committee.

Announcing that the Federal Trade Commission is checking postal lease records, Maas declared:

"Altogether 6,000 leases have been made, and 1,200 are of major proportion, in large cities. Over $150,000,000 in bonds has been issued to cover cost of erection. One man admits having 27 leases and another has made 20 of them. Some of them go back to Postmaster General Burleson's time."

Miner Files Odd Compensation Suit

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., May 16.—One of the most unusual compensation cases in the history of this section was heard here by Referee Frank Hess when James Forsythe, of Lilly, filed a claim on the ground that he had contracted pneumonia from impure air in a Lilly mine. Forsythe, employed as a miner for more than 20 years, averred that air in the mine had left his lungs in such a weakened condition that pneumonia developed.

Weather Conditions.

The pressure is still low over Eastern Ontario and a trough formation extends southwestward to another center over the far Southwest. Relatively high pressure overlies the Florida peninsula, and there is a marked high pressure area over the Canadian Northwest, and the northern and central plains. This high is causing damaging cold weather over the Northern plains and portions of Canada. Temperature is below freezing over Northern Minnesota, North Dakota and Eastern Montana and over Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Elsewhere the temperature changes were slight. There is still considerable cloudiness over the East, especially over the southern states, and light rains were quite general everywhere east of Indiana and over the West Gulf states. The southwestern low is causing showers over the Central and Southern Rocky Mountain and the Western Plains states.

River Conditions.

The rivers are rising slightly. Stage at Franklin is 1.8 feet; Lock No. 7, 11.4; Pittsburgh, 11.2; Dam No. 2, 9.3; Dam No. 6, 7.7; Dam No. 8, 8.2, and Dam No. 12, 6.1. The dams are up. Light rains occurred at all river stations in Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Million Dollar Promise Kept by Marion Hollins

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., May 16.—(AP.)—Miss Marion Hollins, former women's national golf champion, gave a $50,000 dinner here last night.

More than 40 guests sat around the banquet table in the Pasotiempo Country Club. Miniature oil derricks and figures of polo players were distributed as favors.

Perhaps the most pleased of the party were Mrs. Louise Dudley, of Santa Monica, and Eric Pedley, noted polo player, of San Gabriel. Besides their plates Miss Hollins had placed checks for $25,000 each. She said fulfilled the terms of an agreement made five years ago wherein each of the three promised that the first to make a million dollars would give the others $25,000 each.

Miss Hollins recently realized considerably more than a million dollars profit in California oil lands deal.

All other nations of the world, including Russia, will receive copies later, it was announced.

The copy for the United States probably will arrive in Washington Monday.

1 DEAD AS FOUR PLANES SINK

HONOLULU, T. H., May 16.—(INS.)—As the aftermath of the mishap to the army Keystone bombing plane, which plunged into the sea off the island of Maui, and subsequent rescue efforts of other army and navy planes, one man was dead today and four planes were lost.

Staff Sergt. Joseph Becker, of Brooklyn, N. Y., lost his life when the bomber fell into the sea.

The planes lost, in addition to the bomber, were two army single seaters and a navy twin motor Douglas patrol. The navy plane sank as it was being towed to Pearl Harbor.

The Keystone bomber, under the command of Lieut. T. L. Boyd, was making a training flight over the sea when an aileron broke at a height of 8,000 feet. Three of its crew jumped in parachutes, but Becker, the fourth, plunged into the ocean with the plane.

LOCKE, WRITER, DIES IN PARIS

PARIS, May 16.—(AP.)—William J. Locke, widely-known British novelist, died in his Paris home last night, after a long illness. He was 67 years old.

The creator of the "Beloved Vagabond," title and hero of one of his most popular novels, died at 9:35 p. m., in the presence of his wife and his daughter.

He recently underwent a serious operation, and, though he temporarily recovered from its effects, succumbed in the end to the illness that made it necessary.

He died in his flat in the Rue des Bordes-Valmore.

Destitute Pair Lose Baby To Girl They Trusted

CHICAGO, May 16. — (AP.)—The Michael Maroneys were in such poor circumstances that they wrote the "Help for the Needy" column of a newspaper. Though they were poor then, they are far poorer now, for their baby has disappeared.

A young woman, who said she was "Julia Otis," went to the Maroney home after reading the appeal in the newspaper. She brought clothes for the two-year-old baby, Mary. Day after day she returned, playing with the infant and bringing something new each time.

Yesterday she asked permission to take Mary downtown, to buy her a new Sunday outfit.

"We consented," said Mrs. Maroney, "for we trusted her."

That was yesterday. Neither Julia Otis nor Baby Mary has been heard from since.

Man 'Lost' for 36 Years In Nearby Poorhouse

BROWN CITY, Mich., May 16.—(AP.)—Lost 36 years ago when he wandered away from the family farm near Valley Center, Thomas Murray, 61, has been found less than 40 miles away in the Tuscola County poorhouse, near Caro. He had been an inmate of the institution since a few days after his disappearance.

Diphtheria when he was a child had left him able to speak only monosyllables and he was registered at the poor farm as "Dave," one of the few words he could speak, and given the surname of "Blank." Investigation showed that he was brought to the county farm in 1894 by a farmer to whom he had applied for aid a few days after he had left home.

Murray was found by a nephew who began an investigation after a neighbor told of seeing a man in the county alms who resembled the long lost Thomas Murray.

Murray now is in Brown City Hospital and a family reunion has been postponed pending the outcome to an appendicitis operation.

DAVIS, PINCHOT LEAD FAYETTE SENTIMENT

G. O. P. County Organization Split Over State Senate Race Confuses Campaign

(This is the second of a series of articles on the Western Pennsylvania political situation on the eve of the primary election. Every county has been stirred up by rival gubernatorial, senatorial and legislative campaigners. Local independents, who realize the state campaign may be won in the counties outside Allegheny and Philadelphia, are unusually active. Tomorrow's article will deal with Indiana, Jefferson, Armstrong, Clarion and Venango counties.)

By JOHN P. COWAN.
Sun-Telegraph Correspondent.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., May 16. — With the Republican state organization in Fayette County split wide open in a bitter contest between two popular candidates for the nomination to the State Senate, the approaching close of the campaign finds the leadership of S. Ray Shelby, public service commissioner, seriously challenged.

The rumpus in the organization, so serious that the itinerary of the standard-bearers of the Davis-Brown ticket was arranged to avoid bringing the candidates here, has played into the hands of the Pinchot managers. As a result it is declared the tall forester will have a plurality of 2,000 or more.

DAVIS FRIENDS FIRM

In the same measure the Grundy canvass has made inroads on the organization campaign, but the personal following of Secretary James J. Davis has counteracted the backsliding of professed supporters of the Davis-Brown slate.

Unbiased observers pick Davis to be the choice for the senatorial nomination by about 1,500 to 2,500 votes. Sheriff Tom Aubrey, who gave up his ambition to be lieutenant governor to become Grundy's county manager, thinks Grundy will carry the county by 2,000.

The Phillips-Bohlen-Dorrance ticket is reckoned as an important factor and is conceded about 3,000 votes.

The fight against Shelby started last fall, when Luther S. Crawford was elected mayor of Uniontown and Dr. H. D. Minerd was chosen mayor of Connellsville in the face of Shelby's opposition.

RUSH LEADS REVOLT

The insurrection was started by Orval Rush, Shelby's rival in the organization. Rush cracked the slate in the present canvass by backing the candidacy of Dr. S. A. Baltz, coroner and ex-service man, who is running for the State Senate against Senator Harry J. Bell.

The Baltz platform has all the important Pinchot planks, and there has been an apparent tie-up with Pinchot supporters.

For the first time in years Congressman Samuel A. Kendall has a fight on his hands for his nomination in the Twenty-third District. His opponent is J. C. Glassburn, a Fayette County attorney, who was a captain overseas and is on the anti-Shelby ticket.

Westmoreland Alliance Gives Support to Grundy

GREENSBURG, Pa., May 16.—A silent partnership between the old-line organization Republicans and a strong independent element which was formed here to make Westmoreland County sure for Gifford Pinchot for governor and Adam Wyant for Congress is now throwing its support to Joseph R. Grundy for the Senate.

The Davis-Brown organization, dominated by Judge Charles D. Copeland, a former Democrat, who seized the Republican machinery last fall when he was reelected to the bench, faces the opposition of the Mellon lieutenants. Harry J. Bovard, Mellon leader in Westmoreland, and the entire old organization group are working in the interests of Pinchot and Grundy.

Of the 40,000 Republican ballots expected to be cast in this county next Tuesday, it is estimated 23,000 will go to Pinchot. The same estimators give Brown 12,000 and Phillips 5,000.

DAVIS HOPES BRIGHT

Secretary James J. Davis in his candidacy for the Senate will be more fortunate than his teammate, Francis Shunk Brown. Davis has a strong personal following, and the coalition of the old-timers and independents has not had time to make an effective canvass for Grundy. Davis looks to have better than an even chance to carry the county.

Copeland's activities are centered in the candidacy of C. C. Crowell for Congress against Representative Adam Wyant and Philip K. Shaner for State Senate in opposition to W. S. Rial, backed by Bovard. Enlivening the campaign is the onslaught made by Adam B. Shaffer, a local attorney, running for Congress on a bone dry ticket and carrying on his campaign by issuing dodgers assailing Wyant. These have been broadcast over the county almost daily.

Judge James B. Drew, on the organization slate, is expected to carry Westmoreland for Superior Court. Judge J. Frank Graff's friends are making heroic efforts for him, but it is realized they were not alert to get Judge Graff on the Pinchot-Wyant ticket.

Get into the habit of reading the classified Ads before you lay your newspaper aside. In this way you need never pass up a long-awaited opportunity to satisfy your wants, economically and conveniently.

Dr. Robert Nelson Meade, pastor of the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer, presented with a purse of gold at the dinner and reception held last night by his congregation in celebration of his twentieth anniversary as pastor.

PINCHOT RALLY HERE SATURDAY

Former Gov. Gifford Pinchot is due here tomorrow to make the final speech in his campaign for another term at a mass meeting in the Davis Theater, Smithfield street and Oliver avenue. Former President of Council James F. Malone is also scheduled to address this meeting. The rally will be broadcast between 8:35 and 10 p. m. over station KQV.

Pinchot is due to leave Philadelphia tonight after delivering a radio address. Upon arriving here tomorrow he will be escorted to the William Penn Hotel for conferences with local leaders until about 10:30 a. m.

His schedule then calls for an automobile tour through adjacent towns with stops for speeches in Sharpsburg, Aspinwall, West View, Bellevue and Avalon.

At 7:45 p. m. tomorrow Pinchot is expected to deliver one of the most important addresses of the campaign in a broadcast over WJAS, preceding his appearance at the theater.

Malone will deliver a speech in behalf of Pinchot at 7:30 p. m. today over WJAS, and will speak at a mass meeting at 8 p. m. in Thaddeus Stevens School, South Main street, West End, where Henry Tranter will preside.

Other speakers will include Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence, vice chairman of the Pinchot state committee, W. K. Hodgkinson and Attorney Ralph H. Smith, chairman of the Pinchot committee on meetings and speakers.

Gollmar today announced the members of the Pinchot lawyers' committee to handle disputes on primary day. They are Edward O. Spotts, Jr., W. J. Blakeley, Jr., W. T. Corbett, Ralph H. Frank, Bruce Harrison, J. H. Lauer, J. D. Meyer, J. A. Richardson, J. A. W. Simpson, W. P. Stuart, T. E. Whitten and E. H. Wicks.

Brig. Gen. Churchill Mehard urged support for Pinchot's candidacy in a broadcast last night over KQV.

ONE FINED, 3 FREED IN POOL

Albert Frankel, 30, of 2136 Webster avenue, was fined $50 by Magistrate John J. Sweeney in Mt. Washington Police Court today after admitting that he was a "pick-up" man for a clearing house lottery.

Inspector Harry E. Moore insisted that he show a driver's license for an automobile he was operating when arrested. When Frankel failed to produce the license he was held until a friend appeared with a $50 additional forfeit. Frankel will be given a hearing on the auto charge in Traffic Court.

Three others arrested with Frankel denied they were lottery agents and were discharged by Magistrate Sweeney. They were William McCullough, 29, of 423 Natches street; Sidney Korene, 23, of 2030 Wylie avenue, and James Purcell, 24, of 135 Virginia avenue.

Barnett Indorsed By World War Vets

Former service men of the World War are reported lining up solidly behind the candidacy of William J. Barnett for one of the four nominations as member of the Assembly in the Tenth Legislative district.

Barnett saw service overseas with the Fifty-first Engineers and is a member of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

His platform favors election reforms, liberal aid to hospitals, increased compensation for injured workmen, a large fund for mothers' assistance and greater care for needy war veterans.

DAVIS FORCES WIN SUPPORT

County Controller Robert G. Woodside will go on the air at 8:30 p. m. today with a broadcast over Station WJAS in behalf of candidates on the Davis-Brown slate.

The South Hills Council of Republican Women, supporting the Davis-Brown ticket, will be hosts at an informal tea at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the home of Mrs. W. E. Best, of 2738 Miles avenue, Dormont.

Mrs. Harold G. Ewens, newly-elected president of the council, will pour and will be assisted by Mrs. Harry McClosky, Mrs. John Holiday, Mrs. Charles L. Urban, Mrs. Allen Wells, Mrs. R. S. Thorpe and Mrs. Arch W. Powell.

Among the speakers will be Woodside, Congressman Guy E. Campbell and four of the legislative candidates from the Twelfth District—Matthew Dunn and Dr. J. G. Steedle, incumbents, and Fred Gangloff and Mrs. Nellie Reiter.

HARRIS ON RADIO

State Senator Frank J. Harris urged support for the Davis-Brown slate in a radio address last night over KDKA, and another broadcast in behalf of the ticket was broadcast over WJAS by P. T. Fagan, president of District No. 5, United Mine Workers of America.

Candidates on the Davis-Brown ticket were indorsed by the Croatian-American Citizens' Club at a meeting last night in Javer Hall, Canal street, North Side. Officers of the club are Anthony Lucas, chairman, and Anthony Gregorich, secretary.

A mass meeting in behalf of Davis and Brown was held last night in McNaugher School, Merritt and Taggart streets. Speakers included County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, Mayor Charles H. Kline and William E. McNaugher.

WOMEN APPROVE

The Davis-Brown ticket was indorsed last night at a meeting of the Women's Republican Organization of the Sixteenth Ward. Francis B. Kirley, ward chairman, presided.

Other speakers were Mrs. T. P. Horan, president of Pittsburgh Council of Catholic Women, and Mrs. Winifred Foley, vice chairman of the Nineteenth Ward and candidate for the Legislature from the Sixth District.

Commissioner Armstrong urged the election of candidates on the Davis-Brown slate at a meeting last night of the Twenty-sixth Ward Republican Organization in McNaugher School. T. B. Lucky presided.

Addresses were made by Representatives S. J. Grenet and W. F. Stadtlander, candidates for reelection; W. H. Robertson, city assessor; Henry Bloom, E. A. Hough, former police magistrate, and Calvin L. Bolster.

VICTORY SEEN FOR PHILLIPS

The campaign of Thomas W. Phillips, candidate for governor on the Anti-Dry ticket, has developed so well that there is no doubt he will win, declared William Frew, county campaign chairman, in a statement yesterday. He said:

"This confidence in victory, for instance, in Allegheny County alone, rests upon a solid foundation of figures and I venture this prediction.

"Based on previous elections and the total eligibles, we may expect that 275,000 voters in Allegheny County will take part in the primary next Tuesday. Hoover received 215,000 votes in 1928 in this county, while Smith was given 160,000, slightly more than 40 per cent.

"We may assume that virtually all the Smith vote represented anti-dry sentiment. Without computing any increase in anti-dry sentiment, which has palpably increased, and giving Phillips the same 40 per cent, he would get 110,000 votes on Tuesday, leaving less than 85,000 each for his two opponents."

Donner Indorses O'Malley Candidacy

J. Louis Donner, of 5515 Black street, a political worker in the Eleventh Ward and a candidate last year for jury commissioner, has indorsed P. J. O'Malley, of the auditor general's office, for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Thirty-fourth District.

Donner declared O'Malley was wounded and gassed in service overseas during the World War and in addition is a good citizen. Donner also announced his support for former Gov. Pinchot for another term and Senator Joseph R. Grundy to succeed himself.

St. Canice Sodality To Hold Reception

The annual spring reception and dance of St. Canice Young Ladies' Sodality will be held Wednesday, May 21, in the cardinal room of the William Penn Hotel. Miss Grace O'Brien is general chairman, assisted by Misses Josephine Smith, Margaret Walsh, Margaretta Bright, Betty Smith, Ann Tanner, Alice Clemens and Margaret McGee.

'Hold Vote Count to Last,' Grundy Followers Told

Followers of Senator Grundy took steps today to offset the activities of what were described as "the miracle-working sections" of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

Warren F. Doane, of the Grundy committee, issued this statement from Philadelphia:

"Unfortunately, election boards in certain river and central wards in Philadelphia and in some parts of Pittsburgh have acquired the reputation of 'holding out' their totals until they know how many votes are needed to defeat an opponent.

"I suggest that upstate election districts withhold their totals until the returns are in from miracle-working sections."

Petitions were presented before Judge A. B. Reid in Common Pleas Court by the Pinchot and Grundy forces, asking for the appointment of overseers in various wards of the city and county.

In addition to those already filed, the Pinchot followers ask for overseers in the Ninth District of the Twenty-first Ward, Twenty-fourth District of the Nineteenth Ward and the Thirty-second District of the Fifth Ward.

The Grundy supporters ask for overseers as follows: First, Second, Fourth, Sixth, Seventh to Tenth, inclusive, and Twelfth districts of the First Ward; Second District and Fifth to Twentieth districts, inclusive, of the Sixth Ward; First, Fifth, Sixth, Eighth, Fourteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth and Twentieth districts of the Ninth Ward; Twelfth District of the Third Ward; Third, Fifth, Eighth, Tenth districts of the Second Ward, and Fourth and Eighth wards, Baldwin Township.

KANSAS CITY, May 16. — (AP.)—A bay mare stuck her head through the plate glass window of Bob's Taxi Company and gazed sadly at R. W. McMinn, proprietor.

GRUNDY TALKS ON AIR TONIGHT

Senator Joseph R. Grundy will broadcast at 7:30 tonight over KDKA asking support for his candidacy to succeed himself. Attorney Sarah Soffel will deliver an address over the same station, following Grundy.

W. L. Munro, president of the American Window Glass Company, will advocate Grundy's cause in a speech at 9 tonight over WCAE, and Attorney Robert T. Houldcn will broadcast a Grundy address at 8:15 over WJAS.

Robert J. McGrath, business representative of the Firemen and Oilers local union, who is supporting Grundy, said yesterday that there has been no general labor indorsement of candidates in the present campaign.

A survey of Western counties, including Allegheny, indicates that the women will give Grundy a very large vote, according to Mrs. W. S. Haddock and Mrs. G. Bulger, Jr., heading the women's division of the local Grundy campaign.

Attorney H. A. Jones spoke in favor of Grundy's candidacy in a broadcast last night over KQV, and was followed later by Attorney J. P. Egan in a speech over WJAS.

SLAYER OF NINE CALLED INSANE

NEW YORK, May 16.—AP.—James (Texas Jim) Baker, who says he killed nine men, was ordered committed to Bellevue Hospital for observation as to his sanity.

The order was issued by General Sessions Judge Charles C. Nott, Jr., upon a motion by James D. C. Murray, Baker's attorney, who said his client was insane.

Baker is scheduled to go on trial Monday, charged with the murder of Henry Gaw, laboratory watchman, a year ago last December. He has confessed to poisoning Gaw and, when apprehended recently in Detroit, described to police how he had killed eight other men.

Police have expressed doubts as to his story of the other killings.

Refuses $200,000 For Oil-Soaked Barbecue

GENEVA, Ill., May 16.—(INS.)—The sum of $200,000 seemingly is not sufficient to make Emmet Philips part with an acre of land for which he paid but $900. Philips reported today that he had refused an offer of $200,000 for the plot of ground which has led Kane County to believe it has an oil boom on its hands.

Philips became inquisitive recently when dark spots stained the floor of his barbeque stand. Investigating, he found that oil was seeping through to the surface of the ground. Samples were analyzed according to Philips, which showed the oil worth 60 cents a gallon.

PICK CHAMPION YO YOER

Pittsburgh's Yo Yo champion has been found. And what he can do with a Yo Yo would make a professional sleight-of-hand performer green with envy.

He's just a young lad from the Squirrel Hill district who went into the Warner Brothers Theaters-Sun-Telegraph tournament and walked away with all the glory. His name is Edward Koch, Jr., 5631 Woodmont street. From a field of several thousand candidates who appeared at the various Warner Brothers' Theaters he won the honors at the finals in the Enright Theater last week. This gave him the distinction of being Pittsburgh's champion and also gave him a week at a fine salary, showing the big audiences at the Stanley Theater how he can Yo Yo.

RAIDER KILLED IN AMBUSH

HOHENWALD, Tenn., May 16.—(AP)—A deputy sheriff was shot dead and another was wounded near here when a party of five officers in search of a moonshine still was fired upon from ambush.

Deputy M. L. Newton, 37, was struck by a shotgun charge and died instantly. Deputy Luke Hinson received wounds from two charges. The slayer escaped.

Later prohibition officers arrested John P. Himes, Jr., on a murder charge. He denied implication in the shooting.

SALARY TAX IN AUSTRALIA

MELBOURNE, Australia, May 16.—(AP.)—The legislature assembly of New South Wales passed an unemployment relief bill authorizing the levy of a tax on persons earning between $5 and $30 weekly.

Persons receiving high wages will be subject to a supertax. It is expected, however, that the government will not be able to put machinery into effect this year, when the tax is in operation a yield of $7,500,000 yearly is looked for and this will carry on construction of an otherwise unproductive nature in order to alleviate unemployment.

"KONJOLA WAS A BLESSING TO ME" SAYS LOCAL LADY

Suffered for Fifteen Years From Rheumatism—New Medicine Brings First Relief.

Here is abundant cheer and hope for all who suffer from neuritis and rheumatism and who may fear that there is no hope of escape from the pangs of these dreaded diseases. Konjola, the new and different medicine, is daily winning victory after victory over these ailments, when given a fair trial by men and women who take it systematically. Most sufferers should be treated for several weeks, and six to eight bottles are recommended for usual cases. How Konjola works its seeming wonders is being explained daily by the Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh. Just the other day the Konjola Man said:

MRS. ELIZABETH BRUBACH

"Konjola is a medicine that might have been compounded by Nature, for it works with Nature in cleansing and invigorating the ailing organs. Daily many call on me to say that in years of suffering and searching for relief, Konjola was the only medicine that benefited them. In many cases Konjola has proven vastly more effective than any previously known medicine."

How Konjola works is graphically shown by the statement that Mrs. Elizabeth Brubach, 2045 Wadlow Street, Pittsburgh, made to the Konjola Man:

"Konjola was a blessing to me for it was the only medicine that gave good results. I suffered from rheumatism for fifteen or sixteen years, but my condition has so improved after only three weeks' treatment of Konjola that I am glad to indorse it to others. I had such severe pains in my limbs that I could not bend my knees. The rheumatism was all through my body, in my legs, arms, hands and feet. I had terrible pains in the back of my neck. Many nights I did not sleep at all. I would get out of bed each morning feeling exhausted. My appetite was very poor, too.

"I had read about Konjola and how it had benefited countless thousands of men and women and so I started the treatment. I noticed a decided improvement in my condition before the first bottle was gone. Since taking Konjola for three weeks I sleep soundly, my appetite has improved, I eat my meals regularly and best of all, the rheumatism has been almost banished. In the past three or four nights I have not felt it at all, and that is something I have not experienced in years. I get up feeling more refreshed and do not tire as easily. I get around fine and the sharp, shooting pains are gone. I go to town whenever I wish. I can certainly recommend Konjola to all who suffer as I did."

The files of Konjola are filled to overflowing with such sincere and grateful indorsements and what it has done for others it will do for you.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. FREE SAMPLES GIVEN by the Konjola Man. Konjola is sold also by all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and Sichula.

DROWNED MAN IDENTIFIED

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., May 16.—Mrs. Eva Lukac of 214 Wood street, Tarentum, identified the body of the man taken from the Allegheny River near here as her brother-in-law, Thomas Lukac.

Frank Gray, Dave Kunes and Joseph Kuhn, of this city, discovered the body while walking along the river bank. Finding a fisherman's line set in the river nearby, they hurled the line into the water. As the hook caught the victim's clothes, the youths pulled Lukac to shore.

Pattern 1911

Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS,

A charming frock for afternoon wear, boasts shoulder capes that fall in graceful fullness over the arms. The beautifully flared skirt joins the bodice front and back in upward points that tend to slenderize the figure and form an attractive hip yoke.

Pattern 1911 is exquisite made of georgette, voile or chiffon. A large floral design on a ground of either dark or light tone will be very lovely. The reds, pinks, blues, yellows and greens are perfectly ravishing this season in a large range of shades.

May be obtained only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 39-inch material.

95 GRADUATE AS NURSES

Ninety-five student nurses at the West Penn Hospital Nurses' Training School received diplomas at graduating exercises in the Nurses' Home last night. The principal speaker was Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology. He said in part:

"We, in America, have come to believe that education is a process which prepares us to do some particular work. I would not disparage our national spirit, but possibly the results we so much desire would be even more significant if our studies were directed less at definite, practical objectives, and more at making ourselves worth-while individuals."

HARD-SOFT LARGE-SMALL CORNS

Out to Stay Out—Roots and All. Magic Oxygen Salts Bath Never Fails. No More Burning, Aching Feet.

No matter how many corns you have or how painful they are—soak your feet for 15 minutes in a delightfully soothing and revitalizing Radox foot bath for 3 or 4 nights—then lift corns and callouses right out, roots and all, and they won't come back either unless you wear shoes again which aggravate your feet.

No cutting or digging is required because Radox liberates oxygen, which softens hard outer layers of corns, each night penetrating the pores further and further, carrying the salts right to roots of corns, which are so loosened they can be lifted out bodily.

Your feet are made strong—healthy—vigorous—hard skin on heels and toes goes also.

Mayflower Drug Stores and all good drug stores are stocked with Radox—if they aren't, insist upon them ordering it if you want to experience great foot-joy and comfort.

PANAMA CITY, May 16.—(AP.)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, who returned two days ago to the American soil of the Canal Zone after two years in the Antarctic, was a guest of honor late yesterday at a tea given by Roy Tasco Davis, United States minister to Panama. The entire diplomatic corps in Panama, numbering about 150, attended.

Ministers of many nations, officials of the Panama government, American Army and Navy officers and their wives, filled the legation for the first official diplomatic function since the explorer's arrival.

Commenting at the tea on his expedition, Admiral Byrd said the expedition of Larry Gould, the meteorologist, to the Polar plateau, "was the outstanding personal achievement during the expedition."

Beauty! The New Theme Song In Modern Merchandising

In South Africa there grows a tree whose wood, known as avodire, is one of the most beautiful in existence. Half way between the color of honey and the flaxen hair of a Northern goddess, its exquisitely figured surface is a perpetual hymn to joy; blondeness come alive; the one wood to soften the sobriety of those gleaming brunette columns of Carrara Glass on our new First Floor.

Once the theme song was chosen, the incidentals (or if you insist on being strictly musical, the accidentals) just naturally fell into line. For example, it was inevitable that topaz-colored mirrors should be chosen for the display cases. So also with the newly alloyed Benedict Metal, used for the beautiful balustrades, entrances, and frames of the mural paintings—it alone had just the right proportion of gold-brightness to blend. You see, it was planned exactly as a woman plans her costume—as a perfect ensemble, in which each detail is not merely significant or beautiful in itself, but helps to create the complete whole, the tout ensemble.

The march of Beauty cannot be stayed. In all ages it has rescued man from drabness, given life an added meaning. And today, at Kaufmann's, the formula for beauty is part and parcel of every merchandise transaction, from the selling of a 'kerchief to the selection of a luncheon cloth in the peasant markets of Andalusia.

RAIL VETERANS ON HONOR ROLL

FRANKLIN, Pa., May 16.—Four Allegheny Division veterans in the Pennsylvania Railroad service, were placed on the railroad's Roll of Honor this week.

They are: Charles E. Wike, painter, of Foxburg; Patrick J. Readdy, yard brakeman, of Oil City; Jacob Nealer, conductor, of East Brady; and David H. Bashline, engineer, of Sligo.

Readdy's career was one of the most interesting. He was only eight years old when he got a job throwing switches for horse-drawn cars on the Harlem railroad in New York City. He entered the service of the Pennsylvania railroad in 1900. Since the death of his wife five years ago, he made his home at Conneautville.

Tomorrow We Introduce

dul-UNO

A New Dull Sheer

Silk Stocking

Shiny legs are passe. Women of taste have found that in hosiery at least it is smart to be dull, and the new trend to dull sheer hose for daily wear is overwhelming. We have examined and tested dozens of pairs of hosiery. We have found an exceptionally fine one—beautifully knit—strong—sheer — smooth—even—splendid for wear, and a good bit lower in price than any hose we have seen of similar quality. We've named it "dul-UNO"—you'll know it's good when you see it. Now ready in a complete range of season-correct shades.

Pact Regarded Panama Peril

By CAPT. NELSON H. GOSS, U. S. Navy.

(United States Naval Academy, 1905; commanded destroyers and convey escorts in European war zone during World War; graduate Naval War College; now commanding the U. S. S. Sirius. Capt. Goss is a practical sea-going officer, who has devoted much study to the subject of sea power, and is a well-known writer on naval subjects.)

Aircraft carriers are now limited as follows:

Ten thousand tons or above—America, 135,000 tons; Great Britain, 135,000 tons; Japan, 81,000 tons.

Under 10,000 tons—unlimited.

The London treaty proposes to limit all aircraft carriers, including those under 10,000 tons to:

America, 135,000 tons; Great Britain, 135,000 tons; Japan, 81,000 tons.

This treaty does not limit or restrict aircraft in any way, or consider or limit positions available for aircraft bases which the British and Japanese have near and along the route to the Panama Canal and about the Philippines, but does place a further restriction on the aircraft carriers we may build.

Aircraft are not only becoming relatively more important all the time, but the increasing power and radius of aircraft makes aircraft carriers more important. This is of interest not only to the Navy but to the country in general because increased aircraft efficiency inherently indicates that the first line of air defense must be the Navy.

N. Y. Vulnerable

As an example, New York can no longer safely be defended from Mitchel Field and in increasing measure must rely on naval aircraft based on ships well offshore.

The treaty limit on aircraft carriers, established at the Washington conference, permits us five carriers in addition to the Lexington and Saratoga.

In order to get as many more carriers inside the treaty limit as possible the one new carrier we have authorized has been reduced in size a little under 14,000 tons, for all flight decks are extremely vulnerable and it is not well to carry too many eggs in one basket. Also different places and different needs have to be covered by more units.

Due to such material reduction in size, however, the new carrier and sisters that may follow her cannot have the extreme speed of the two Saratogas or their elaborate and complete underwater protection. All small carriers will be vulnerable to attack by mines, torpedoes and bombs as well as gun fire.

At present aircraft carriers under 10,000 tons are unlimited. While vessels this small would not be as useful as larger vessels it should be remembered that if lightly built a considerable number of planes can be carried on a vessel around 10,000 tons.

Landing Problems

For example, the Langley, our first experimental carrier, is under 10,500 standard tons and carries over 25 planes. Another useful point about small carriers is that, whatever the size, only one plane can land at the same time on any carrier. While planes may be launched rapidly in succession the problem of getting them back on board is a serious one and affects as well the useful time in the air and radius of a flight of airplanes.

The base question affects aircraft the same as everything else. Naturally more aircraft may be easier based on shore than on ships. Aircraft bases are also easier constructed than shore facilities for ships. All seaplanes need is sheltered water near their base vessels to land on. Flying fields and temporary hangars may be quickly constructed as we learned as long ago as the war. Aircraft could readily operate from the numerous Japanese bases about the Philippines and especially from the islands along the route to Guam. Of particular importance respecting the defense of the Panama Canal are the British possessions in the Caribbean along the direct route to Panama. It should be understood that the element of surprise is easier to obtain, and more deadly in effect, with aircraft than any other weapon except possibly submarines, so that great dispersal of effort is necessary to protect a number of threatened points.

Carriers Inadequate

On these accounts it is apparent that seven carriers would be nothing like sufficient to afford adequate air protection even off our own shores, let alone defend our exposed positions away from home and that we will need additional carriers, which under the Washington treaty are unlimited, if smaller than 10,000 tons.

The new London treaty contains a clause defining the characteristics of aircraft carriers smaller that 10,000 tons and a provision including them within the present aggregate tonnage limit. The result of this would be to limit our total regular carriers to seven.

When we again, as we always must, consider our inferior position as to bases, it is readily apparent that with a total of seven carriers our air defense would not only be low, reduced below present potential strength, but relatively very low compared with both Japan and Great Britain in the Far East.

Considering the British positions along our route to the Panama Canal, which are limited in the way our own island possessions are in the Far East, the air defense of the approaches to the Panama Canal, and of the canal itself as well, would become a serious matter.

Air Strength Hit

For these reasons the London treaty would materially lower our potential air strength and would reduce our relative air strength compared with Great Britain or Japan.

This is not compensated for by a further provision in the proposed treaty permitting 25 per cent of cruisers to carry aircraft landing decks, because no vessel can function efficiently as two types.

As any hybrid would not be effective for both purposes and would probably not be efficient as either, and any such increase in carrier strength would be directly at the expense of our cruiser strength.

Protest Widening Of Lincoln Highway

GREENSBURG, Pa., May 16.—Twenty-one residents of West Pittsburgh street have filed a protest with Greensburg City Council against widening of the Lincoln Highway along that street.

JURY ACQUITS GOV. KOHLER

SHEBOYGAN, Wis., May 16.—(INS.)—Gov. Walter J. Kohler, millionaire plumbing fixture manufacturer, today stands acquitted by a Circuit Court jury of having violated the state corrupt practices act.

The jurors last night took only one ballot in answering negatively the questions in the special verdict, thereby exonerating the governor of charges brought by Progressive Republicans of Wisconsin.

Decision of whether the verdict shall stand is forthcoming from Judge Gustave Gehrz.

The governor has built up the $40,000,000 Kohler Company located at Kohler, a village a few miles west of Sheboygan.

Charges of violating the corrupt practices act were brought more than a year ago by Philip F. La Follette, brother of the U. S. Senator, and three other members of the Progressive Republican group. The governor is a member of the Conservative Republican group.

FAMILY ROUTED BY FLAMES

Fire which originated mysteriously in an unoccupied house at 5728 Ellsworth avenue, early today spread to two adjoining houses and drove the family of Mrs. Nellie Rising to the street. It was thought a cigaret dropped by a visitor late last night might have been the cause, since the place, one of a three-house row, has been unoccupied for some time.

Mrs. Rising was awakened shortly before 2:30 a. m. by smoke pouring into her room at 5726 Ellsworth avenue. She called members of her family and roomers, who carried their clothing and valuables to the street. Firemen and police searched the smoke-filled rooms, but failed to find occupants.

Mrs. Rising said she saw a light in the place late last night. The house at 5724 Ellsworth avenue also was unoccupied.

Pierce Vault to Save Imprisoned Worker

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—(INS.)—Locked in the steel vault of a branch of a San Francisco bank, Raymond Wolf, 70-year-old engineer, was none the worse for his experience today, although such was not the case with the vault.

Wolf was in the vault when it was locked yesterday and the time clock set for this morning. Fearing he would be smothered, rescuers pierced the steel wall and liberated him after two hours of work.

HARRIS TO AID WARNER CHIEF

John H. Harris, general manager of the Harris circuit of theaters for many years, will become assistant to Spyros Skouras, general manager of all Warner Brothers theaters, when the deal for the purchase of theaters of the Harris Amusement Company by Warners Brothers Pictures, Inc., is finally consummated, it was learned today. He will be located in New York.

He is the eldest son of the late Senator John P. Harris, founder of the Harris Amusement Company. With the taking over of the Harris group the Warner Brothers Pictures will control about 700 theaters in cities throughout the country.

Loss of Memory No Alibi For Alimony

CHICAGO, May 16.—(AP.)—William Lagger forgot to remember. That's his story, Mrs. Lagger thinks differently.

Lagger, sued for alimony in which he is in arrears, told Judge Sabath yesterday that he lost his memory five years ago and consequently had been unable to find work. Mrs. Lagger said the only thing he forgot was how to work.

THEATER GROUP IN 4 PLAYS

FRANKLIN, Pa., May 16.—Franklin's first Little Theater group since the war was launched yesterday as four one-act plays were presented to an audience in the High School Auditorium. The Ben Franklin Players comprise the representative talent of several of the best amateur productions of the last three years, and are coached by Dick Clarke, playwright and author.

The four plays presented are all original productions and were enacted for the first time. They are: "The Unseen," "The Mayor and the Manicure," "The Maiden Without a Name" and "The Day Before."

Another series of plays is contemplated just preceding Franklin's Old Home Week celebration.

Pittsburghers Sail On European Tours.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Miss Mildred F. Geisler, of 302 Ainsworth street, and Miss Anna M. Hess, of 14 Wabash avenue, Pittsburgh, were among a group of members of the Catholic Students Travel League sailing early this morning in the S. S. Tuscania. Attendance of the Passion Play at Oberammergau on June 9, and a special audience with the Pope in Rome, are features of the tour.

Sailing in the S. S. Scythia, bound for a summer's vacation abroad, were Mrs. F. W. Brooke, Misses Betty and Jane Brooke, and Mrs. Sarah J. Temple, all of Pittsburgh.

Fireman's Auto Robbed of Gasoline

Parking his automobile in an alleyway near the fire station in Dormont last night, Fireman R. A. Goodwin returned a short time later to find that a thief had taken 14 gallons of gasoline. The thief, surprised by neighbors, left a five-gallon can and a short piece of hose in his flight.

SATURDAY IS 'PI

In Our Men's Clothing Dept. . . .

New York's "Jimmie" Walker is considered the best-dressed Mayor in the country, but we'll match our own Mayor Kline against him. Tomorrow, Pittsburgh Day, we are going to give every citizen the opportunity to look as well as his Chief Executive by offering the world-famed Hart Schaffner & Marx Suits for $25. These have been chosen from assortments that sell regularly at $10 to $14 higher. Last but not least, if you need separate Dress Pants, you'll find all kinds, in light and dark colors as well as plain blues, at $2.95—and they're worth all the way up to $5 a pair. Fourth Floor.

In Our Men's Furnishing Dept. . .

They're not the cream in our coffee, but they're the cream of our stock! These better grade shirts—practically our entire stock—that have sold regularly from $2.50 to $4.50 and are priced at $1.55, or 4 for $6 for Pittsburgh Day! And for dashing about, you'll like these rayon polo shirts that are quite the well-known "berries" at $1.29! Be here tomorrow, Pittsburgh Day—and if you're early enough—9 to 11 only—you can have your choice of 1,000 regular $1.35 to $1.95 shirts for 75c each! Fourth Floor.

In Our Domestic Department...

"Aunt Dinah's Quilting Party" never produced patchwork quilts of finer design or color than these we're going to sell tomorrow for $2.66 instead of $3.97! And hand in hand with them go the quaint candlewick bedspreads that are colonial enough to have come out of those "one-if-by-land-and-two-if-by-sea" days! Those days are gone forever, but you can still buy a colonial spread—for $2.29, in our Pittsburgh Day sale! In bygone days mattresses did get soiled—but then they didn't have full size $1 mattress covers for 69c as we have tomorrow! Regular $1.29 linen crash cloths are going to be 88c! And skipping back to the "upstairs rooms"—we suggest an $8.95 rayon bedspread set for $5.44! Or if your lullabys must have more "tone"—try a $2.98 frock that is now $1.79! Or perhaps your own particular little-one needs a sun suit? Try one of these—they will wear just as well for 89c! And there are cute little coats that used to be $7.98 to $12.98—and are no more! See them tomorrow at $5.98! And if you're here from 9 to 11 A. Just to keep peace in the family, we've got some extra good Pittsburgh Day specials for the little brother of two-to-six—copies of actual $2.98 and $3.98 wash suits in broadcloth, pique, batiste or dimity, all guaranteed fast-color—for the small sum of 88c each! Fourth Floor.

Men's Shoes—Luggage

"Puttin' on the ritz" won't be hard for you men with a pair of black and white sports shoes at $4.65! Or for the boys, with street and sports shoes for $3.65! In Our Millinery Department . . .

Everyone's doing it—wearing straw hats! We even saw a mule one day with a straw hat perched atop his head—with both ears wagging in the breeze! Of course his hat wasn't Baku or Ballibuntl or Finest Sisol, nor do our hats have ear-holes! But these are straw, and Pittsburgh Day is the day to buy them for $4.45 instead of the regular $7.50 to $10! And top off the kiddies' cherubic faces with a $1.95 hat for only $1! A word to the outdoor woman! From 9 to 11 tomorrow—you may buy Genuine Angora Berets for only $1.69—and you know what a buy that will be! Third Floor.

In Our Women's Shoe Department . .

We saw a garage sign that read "Limp In—Leap Out" . . . and immediately thought of our wonderful Surety Arch Shoes for women! Even though you may not limp into them, you'll want to leap when you find how comfortable these $6 shoes are—'specially when you can buy them tomorrow—Pittsburgh Day—for only $4.90! And if you want to be a bit gayer—our regular $6 Sylvias are on sale tomorrow, too, at $4.90! And here's good news: Gregorios—those very shoes that are usually $8, and that includes snakeskins, are going to be a Pittsburgh Day Feature at $6.90! Kiddies don't fare badly either when they may have sandals up to size 2, for $1.99! Big Girls' Shoes with sizes 2½ to 7 for only $3.85! Sports shoes you say? Yes, of course, $5 ones for children are $3.50 and $4.00; and Keds and Sneex have descended to a mere 77c. And tomorrow morning from 9 to 11 only children's imported sandals are 89c; infants' shoes for 89c; Daniel Greene Slippers (what a buy!) for $1.89; and women's imported sandals for $3.99! Third Floor.

Draperies . .

Four out of every five housewives have them, we'll wager, but then you can be safe in assuming that they paid $4 to $5 each for them, for imported Pointe De Esprit Panels never before sold in Pittsburgh at the absurdly low price of $1.39 each. And for those rooms in which you aren't quite so particular, you can hang $1.49 rayon casement panels which will only cost you 85c each if you shop here tomorrow. And you might as well complete the window ensemble by hanging $1 Holland finish window shades, in 5 colors, on guaranteed rollers, when you can buy them for only 42c. Stair treads of rubber, with nosings, 7x18 size, may save you a mean fall, especially when we're selling them seven for a dollar. Fifth Floor.

Lamps . .

The Pittsburgh Day Specials on the balcony will be bridge, junior or table lamp outfits, complete with shades . . . at $4.88, or if you need something elaborate, you'll appreciate a crystal table lamp in green, red, blue or orange, equipped with fetching parchment shades at $5.94, complete. Just to make it real interesting, shop before 11 A. M., and we will make you a present of a fine desk light, with or without an ash tray, for only 99c. Balcony.

Rugs . . . Linoleum

Even your investment broker would emphatically agree that you could never make a better buy than "lots" of these rugs at Pittsburgh Day prices. Sanford and Bigelow 9x12 and 8.3x10.6 Axminster and wilton velvet rugs, usually sold at $39.50, will be $26 each tomorrow, and in the newest spring shades and patterns, too! Luxurious American orientals, in the 9x12 size, with the sheen and lustre that even fools the orientals themselves, will be lowered in price from $150 to $112.50, and Bigelows Broadloom and wilton rugs, usually $85, will take a cut in their dignity to the tune of $52.50. If you shop early, for the quantities are limited, you'll find many other enticing values, such as heavy $2.95 axminster carpet at $1.79 a yard; heavy quality $1.60 inlaid linoleum, colored through to the back, at $1.05 a square yard, and rug surround that looks just like hard wood, at 36c a yard. Fifth Floor.

Furniture

Not since the good old days before the war have furniture prices been quoted so low . . . a 4-piece bedroom suite in walnut at $94, including bed, dresser, vanity and chest; or a 3 piece all-mohair living room suite for $138; or a handsome dining room suite of 10 pieces, complete in every detail, at only $159. Breakfast suites of a drop leaf table and 4 chairs are practically given away at $14.94, and there is no end to such offerings as secretaries at $36 and end and odd tables from $1.95 to $8.95. Folks who have spare bedrooms to furnish will consider the special bed outfit . . . spring, mattress and steel bed . . . all for $21.50 . . . a distinct favor. Sixth Floor.

Radio

When you see the famous Crosley 7-tube radio, originally $142.50, complete with tubes and installed in a handsome walnut cabinet, that we are going to sell on Pittsburgh Day for only $69.00, you'll hold a grudge against your present set as long as you have it if you don't take advantage of our offer. Balcony.

TTSBURGH DAY'

In Our Girls' Department..

When the highwayman went "riding, riding, riding up to the old inn door" we imagine his cape cloak was not unlike these smart little models the girls from 6 to 14 are wearing! Some are not so dashing as the highwayman, lacking the cape. But you may have you choice tomorrow, Pittsburgh Day, for $5.98, quite a come-down we think, as they were regularly to $13.98! And under the coat we suggest you wear adorable frocks of organdy and other materials for $2.69; regularly $2.98 rayons and voiles for $1.79; or pastel party frocks—all looking very demure for frocks that have just been taken from the $5.98 group and priced $3.98! Just before we stop—we want to whisper our big secret! If you come here early tomorrow — from 9 to 11 A. M. — you can buy $16.98 silk lined covert cloth coats sizes 11 14 for only $7.98! Third Floor.

In Our Lingerie Department . . .

Lives there a woman who can resist them—those smooth-to-the-touch, dainty, clinging underthings of silk that make her feel like a princess? Why bother even trying to resist them—when Pittsburgh Day permits your buying $1.98 silk undies for $1.59—and those lovely silk dress slips regularly $2.98 for only $2.00 each! And you really wouldn't think that 59c could buy you such charming $1 rayon lingerie—but that's Pittsburgh Day for you! Still fond of those sheer, cool and practical handmade gowns—well you may buy TWO—and that's your limit—for 25c each! That is, if you come here between 9 and 11 in the morning! Third Floor.

In Our Hosiery Department..

Almost any woman would be thrilled with these sheer chiffon hose, the picot top kind that are worth $1.65—to be sold tomorrow for just 88c. And just so everyone will be pleased—here are also hose with black heels, at the same low price! A "French Heel" peeping from beneath the new skirts will add that last touch of the new femininity—for only $1.09 reduced from $1.95. And if you must be terribly smart, have a picot top pair, of extra fine weave, $1.95 value, for the wee sum of $1.19! First Floor.

Wash Frocks

There used to be a day when wash frocks were Mother Hubbard-like garments, worn chiefly when picking potato bugs off the potatoes! But no longer! And not these wash frocks! You could wear these for anything from getting married to playing golf, and feel right in your element! Ordinarily they are $1.98, but these are one of the shining lights of Pittsburgh Day for $1.59! And if you are a little high-hat, get a $5.98 silk one, and you'll only be "out" $3.98! And if you come between 9 to 11 we'll let you have wash frocks (limit 2) for 55c! Third Floor.

Jewelry . . . .

Remember the song you learned about grandfather's clock that went "eighty years without slumbering, tick-tock, tick tock?" We don't guarantee these wrist watches for any such stretch, but they're guaranteed — at $4.98 instead of $7.98! Maybe you haven't a gold spoon in your mouth, but here's a 26-piece silver set with stainless steel knives for $3.95 rather than $7.95! Costume jewelry for 29c each, 4 for $1. Diamond cut crystal chokers that sparkle quite as well for 95c as they did for $1.95! Simulated pearls, 59c each, 2 for $1. And feeling big hearted for 2 hours only — 9 to 11—we give you 15c flat ware for 9c; $1.50 Ingersoll watches 89c each; and $3.25 Big Bens (they will get you up all right), for $1.98 tomorrow! First Floor.

Wall Paper

Thirty-inch Sunfast Wall Papers specially priced 29c! And Wall Papers in smart designs that usually are 25c, tomorrow at 9c a roll. A gallon of mixed paints, all ready to use—the regular $3 kind will do the same heralded wonders at its one-day price of $1.95! Fifth Floor.

Women's Gloves

When he "kissed her hand, Madame" she did not gasp over her gloves—for she had been a smart girl and purchased her washable doeskin gloves on Pittsburgh Day for only $1.69! And another pair of Kayser silk gloves were in her pocket—just 69c, if you please! We think he missed out then and there—for who would let anyone go that knew bargains as she did! First Floor.

In Our Silk and Wash Goods Dept.

If a great big yellow moon came up over the hill and looked at you in a new frock made from a softly colorful chiffon or georgette, we wouldn't blame that attendant swain of yours for beginning to rave! You see—we know our chiffons and georgettes! And when you buy the material for that dress tomorrow, you'll admit that it's unusual to find your dreams come true for $1.19 the yard! Speaking of dreams come true—think this over—printed crepe at $1 yard, all-silk flat crepe at $1.44 the yard; and printed silk flat crepe of $1.98 and $2.49 value at $1.44 the yard! And if sports and fewer moons are your type, you'll find a marvelous use in washable printed silks at 59c if you hurry in here tomorrow from 9 to 11!

The rub-a-dub-dub days are in our midst, and, oh! what we housewives know about them! Generally they mean fussing and fiddling with wash frocks that won't wash . . . and wash frocks that wash too well and are white afterwards instead of pea-green! If we housewives were really smart and clever women . . . we'd dash right down for the Pittsburgh Day sale and buy ourself a delicate printed chiffon voile for 34c the yard—a new printed rayon chiffon for only 74c the yard—and a printed rayon flat crepe for 74c also! Fifth Floor.

Eddie Buzzell Discovers 'Mool' Is Animal and Not Musical Term

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, May 16.

Carmel Myers tells a sly story on Sigmund Romberg, the W. K. composer. Mr Romberg speaks English with a slight accent. While rehearsing one of his operettas (forget just which one), wherein Eddie Buzzell played a featured role, Mr Romberg told Buzzell that he came in on a "mool" at this point in the musical score.

Carmel Myers.

Ramon Novarro

couldn't for the life of him figure what a "mool" meant in music.

"A mool," Romberg gesticulated, excited.

"Yeah, but look here," complained Eddie. "I'm no musician. I'm a comedian. What d'yuh mean—'mool'?"

"Mool! Mool!" cried Romberg, exasperated. "You know, 'mool.' That animal there," pointing to the sleepy, lop-eared artist.

"Oh," sighed Buzzell, relieved. "You mean a mool!"

A CORRECTION

The statement printed in this column May 7 that Bess Schlank, one of the leading modistes of Hollywood, has gone into bankruptcy is erroneous. Miss Schlank is not involved in any bankruptcy or insolvency proceedings. On the contrary, she is opening a new branch shop on Wilshire boulevard and will continue to carry on her business in the present quarters and in the new store. We welcome the opportunity to make this correction in fairness to Bess Schlank.

AGAIN, HE'S "PRISONER"

Ramon Novarro is headed for Lansing, Mich., where he will spend several months studying with his vocal instructor, Louis Graveure. Upon his return to the gilded coast, he is reckoned to star in a musical version of "Prisoner of Zenda." Recollect this silenter? It launched Ramon in his first important picture, if I'm not wrong. He played opposite Alice Terry with Rex Ingram wielding the megaphone. His portrayal of the part was even more significant, for it saw him in a spot where he had to stand-up under comparison with Rudolph Valentino, formerly Ingram's leading man. Ramon survived comparison. His popularity today, in the talkies, is greater than it was in the silencers. Salutez.

KNOW FERN ANDRA

Are you interested in knowing that Fern Andra (she plays the lead in Henry King's new talky version of Harold Bell Wright's novel, "Eyes of the World") once toured in voodvil as an unadvertised member of Bird Millman's stellar wire walking act?

Lupe Velez insists on playing a complicated game of solitaire that is difficult plus to get on.

"Eet weel drive me crazy," rages Lupe.

But she keeps trying.

Aha, Dolores Del Rio and John (writer) Farrow are being seen places together these days.

KEEP DENTISTS BUSY

Arthur Lake's mother had to have some of her teeth pulled. Virginia Valli had to have one tooth yanked. Sid Bartlett had jackets put on two of his front teeth. Evelyn Brent did, too. Is this department impertinent in offering condolences?

Marion Davies plays a darn good game of bridge.

George Cooper, character actor and comedian, is no relation to Gary Cooper. I bet it never occurred to any one that he was.

'After Dark' Stays In Pitt Third Week

"After Dark," Dion Boucicault's oldtime melodrama, which has been revived by the George Sharp Players, will open a third week in the Pitt Monday night.

Thurston, the magician, ends his return engagement in the Alvin tomorrow night. There will be the usual Saturday matinee.

Western Hero

Gary Cooper does the heroics and the fast riding in the "The Texan," which opened in the Stanley yesterday and which comes to the Enright today.

Kennywood Opens Season With Circus

The picnic and free circus act season will open at Kennywood Park today with the Penn Township schools scheduled as the initial outing of the new season. John Robinson's Military Elephants and Billy Lorette, clown, are the first of the outdoor attractions, and will give afternoon and evening performances. The committee in charge of the Penn picnic is headed by C. G. Hershey and J. W. McConnell. Clairton schools will be at Kennywood Monday.

Garber Orchestra Feature at Villa

Eddie Klein's newly renovated Villa will open the season Saturday, featuring Jan Garber's Orchestra. Entertainers will include Jean La Marr, soprano; Decarlos and Louise, ballroom dancing team; Beth Miller, blues singer. Sammy Walsh will act as master of ceremonies.

Any sized pocketbook will buy a good used car. See the splendid values offered in the Used Car columns of today's Classified Ads.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyrighted 1930 by N. Y. Graphic, Inc.)

Man About Town

Nearly everything and everyone you encounter in the Broadway Zone is so counterfeit, so spurious and so unkosher, that when you accidentally stumble across a refreshing lass like "Gypsy" Byrne you ache for a typewriter to jot down a scene in which she arouses your emotions. "Gypsy," christened Marie, is 20, and until the other night she was a featured member of a night club floor show. Her routine blends hoofing and warbling of a high order, and she is easy to look upon.

Between specialties "Gypsy" was urged by the management to be sociable and sit with some male patrons—the sort who have to get cocked up on Wyoming Ketchup so that the listener will check their banal comments to "stew stuff."

"Gypsy" did a "sister" act in vaudeville with her young and beautiful mother. They called themselves the Wakeful Sisters. In Philadelphia, on May 7, 1923, pneumonia killed her mother at exactly 5:10 a. m. "Gypsy" has never forgotten that moment.

Since that time "Gypsy" has elbowed the Broadway morons out of her way to get a "break," and although the "breaks" haven't been sugary, she has kept her reputation free from blemishes. But when a girl has to hold a job in a night club which caters to stags, she obeys the management and takes all the dull conversation the stay-up-lates have to offer.

"Gypsy" Byrne is the only night-club femme we have ever known who knows how to rebuke a guy and make him like it. On the morning of May 7, when dawn was about to bust, "Gypsy" excused herself from the party of intoxicated imbeciles and went over to the orchestra leader.

"Jerry," she said, "my mother died seven years ago about this time. She died at ten minutes past five in the morning, and I loved her so. We used to do an act together and we harmonized 'My Buddy.' Will you do me a favor, Jerry, and when it is 5:10 play 'My Buddy?' It makes me feel better knowing that wherever she is she might know I am thinking of her."

Jerry watched his wrist watch and at 5:10 stopped the orchestra crew, which was playing a hot ditty, and they immediately went into "My Buddy." The drummer crooned it via a megaphone and "Gypsy" sat alone at the table next to ours. "I used to sing this with my mother," she said. "She died seven years ago at this minute."

We tried to keep from looking at her or appear curious. When the number was almost completed we looked at the kid and saw her tear-filled orbs.

The drunks at the table from which she excused herself had been informed that "Gypsy" was paying tribute to her mother's memory, and they turned to her and mimicked her weeping. "Booooo-ooo!" one of them travestied, "ya big cry baby. C'mon back and be y'self!"

"Gypsy" apologized for spoiling their fun and then raced up to her dressing room to powder her nose. When she returned we talked with her a while. "Don't mind them," we said. "They're all phonies and they wouldn't know something real like yourself when they saw it. If half the girls on the street gave their mothers a thought while they were alive they might have better luck."

Then she told us of her background and that her grandpappy, Andrew Byrne, was the composer of one of the beautiful "Ave Marias," and other classics. But "Ave Maria," which is a favorite melody all over the world, doesn't mean as much to "Gypsy" as "My Buddy."

"Well," we said, as she left the place, "don't let the muggs that come in night clubs worry you, kid. A girl like you, who finds time to think of her mother, cannot have any bad breaks. You rate good fortune."

"Thanks," she said sweetly, and went home.

When she came in the next night they told her she was fired.

In Case You Didn't Know

It's a girl at the David Aronbergs (Dorothy McCarthy of the McCarthy Sisters) . . . The event happened at the Harbor Sanitarium, the pappy being one of Cleveland's favorite sons . . . Zit's says: "Lily Damita's successor in 'Sons o' Guns' is to be Gina Malo, whoever she is, but an European importation" . . . Gina Malo is none other than Janet Flynn, one of the baby-dolls who made Paris star her . . . The James Cruze-Betty Compson union is definitely off . . . The Harold Conklings (Patricia Allen of the Shubert's "Three Little Girls" opera) were secretly melted in New York last wk.

Character

Of the two girl taxi drivers in Manhattan, Janet Barry, of 96 Christopher street, is the prettiest. When she turned east on Broadway at 46th street the other sundown, we got into her chariot. The traffic regulator whistled furiously for her to halt. "Don't you know that you can't make a turn here?" he grumbled. "I'm so sorry," she cooed. "I'm from Greenwich Village and have never been this far uptown before." She got away with it.

You'll recognize Janet by her pretty officer's cap she wears at a saucy angle over her right eye. And sans rouge or any makeup, she makes an attractive person. But she remarked that her two favorite rendezvous are out of business, "The Rubaiyat" and "The Cosmic."

Telling the World

The Pulitzer prizes have been awarded and the prize play is Marc Connelly's "The Green Pastures," the grandest of the season's offerings. But one imagines that Mr. Connelly will be embarrassed when he is notified that his play is the winner of the honor and the $1,000 cash award, for no mention was made of Roark Bradford's book, "Ol' Man Adam and His Chillun'," upon which the show is based. In fact Mr. Connelly credits the tome in the programs, and he has announced that his play contains much of Roark Bradford's text.

Most of us believe that upon his return from Yurrup, Mr. Connelly will either share the cash prize with Mr. Bradford or give it all to him.

But how do the judges account for their verdict anyway, considering that the Pulitzer terms distinctly declare that the prize for the best play of the year in New York must go to an ORIGINAL work?

The Clef Choir, a Negro chorus, whose voices we have had other opportunities to admire, sang again in Carnegie Music Hall last night, with Joseph Rodgers Walker conducting. There was an encouraging audience, but all Negro congregations of the city should send aspiring singers to Director Walker and help make this choir representative of their music.

J. Fred Lissfelt

While these singers know well enough such works whose music contents are obvious, they sing best those songs which are nearest their own religious selves. They sing with more nuance than many better-known choirs, and when they croon their lovely spirituals in mezza voce their music stirs our deepest feelings.

Dr. James Monroe Burwell sang a group of tenor songs, all good spirituals, and Jennie Patterson Rickmond played accompaniments. The choir sang a capella.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

PATRICIA MacDONALD
Wm. Penn Hotel

Patricia MacDonald, "Diseuse of the Danube," gave the third and last Urban Morning Recital in the William Penn Hotel yesterday morning before the usual audience.

Miss MacDonald has traveled in out-of-the-way places along the Vistula and the Danube and gathered from among the Balkan peasants a variety of excellent costumes with songs and folk tales that enable her to present simple pictures of their life. The music is often fine, but as a diseuse, this entertainer has looked more deeply into the comedy of the hamlets than to the subtleties of their music.

The presentation of these songs was in the manner for 10-year-olds. And thereby Miss MacDonald lost all the force of the fine things she has discovered among a picturesque and passionate people.

There were four characters portrayed, a mountain girl from Moravia, a Rumanian goose-girl, a Polish bride and a horseherd of the great Hungarnian plain. Everett Tutchings played accompaniments and some indifferent piano music.

CHAPERONE, SHERIFF TRAIL OUR HERO IN STANLEY

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"The Texan," starring Gary Cooper, opened yesterday on the Stanley screen, inaugurating Thursday openings in that theater. The picture is one of those two-gun toting affairs, in which the comedy, the romance and the shooting are all mixed up.

The O. Henry story, "A Double-Dyed Deceiver," is the basis for the film, which has Gary in the role of the Llano Kid, a bold and handsome bandit. Wanted in Texas "dead or alive"—and with half of a town pursuing him—he makes his getaway and then journeys to a faraway rancho, where he dupes a wealthy and old Mexican woman into thinking he is her son. You get the idea, of course. It is the woman's gold that he's after.

Well, all kinds of things happen—some funny, some silly and some peppered with melodramatics. He and a young senorita fall into a romance. But a hawk-eyed chaperone trails them all over the place and one despairs that the sweethearts will ever get a chance to register a kiss. But they do, finally.

THE SHERIFF ARRIVES

A Scripture-quoting sheriff also is on Kid Cooper's trail. He follows the lad all the way from Texas and turns up near the finale, ready to take Our Hero back to the U. S. A. But, golly, just about here comes a great big shooting affair and when the smoke floats away, Mr. Cooper is free to marry the girl if he wants to. And, of course, he does want to. That is why we have movie heroes.

Fay Wray, if you're interested, is the girl.

Band music has a sort of monopoly on the stage in the revue, "Magic Melodies." Dick Powell is there with his megaphone and his gang of musicians. And Helen Lewis is there with her band—an all-girl aggregation. The two groups combine and go on a musical spree that extends from the University of Maine campus to the Volga River.

YO-YO! OH, WELL

In between all this a fellow goes in for the Thurston stuff, a feminine dancer does some difficult flops and steps and a pair of comics, girl and boy, romp into a ventriloquist act that is a big laugh. Also, a young boy, heralded as Pittsburgh's Yo-Yo champion, shows just what he can do with a yo-yo.

Both bands and an off-stage cannonade break out in a grand finale, which sounds like a battlefield and looks like the burning of Rome—or rather, Moscow.

O yes, Bernie Armstrong comes popping up with his organ and his tunes.

Roundhouse Sets World Safety Record

DICKERSON RUN, May 16.—A safety record of 1,076 days without a lost time accident was completed at the Dickerson Run roundhouse of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad on Wednesday. It is claimed to be the world's safety record, and if it is continued until June 5, three full years will have been completed without a serious mishap.

Three Mothers Agree

When mother is tired, nervous or ill the whole home is upset. For her family's sake, every mother wants to be well and strong. These three women tell how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps them to care for their families.

Mrs. H. Dolhonde, 6318 York St., New Orleans, Louisiana

"Before my last baby was born, I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I got such good results that I named her Catherine Lydia. I have six older children and five grandchildren, too. I am now taking the Vegetable Compound again because of my age. I eat and sleep better and I do all my housework, and my washing. I will do my best to answer letters."

Mrs. Harold Goodnow, 36 Cane St., Fitchburg, Massachusetts

"I cannot praise your medicine enough. After my baby came I was rundown. I had to go to bed often through the day. I took three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I felt like a different woman. If any mother has those tired feelings I advise her to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs. Lloyd R. Blasing, 115 So. Ohio St., Anaheim, California

"After my baby came I was so nervous and tired that I felt miserable. One day a booklet was left at our door and after reading it I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am now on my fourth bottle and I feel much stronger. It has helped me in every way and I feel sure that other women in rundown condition will pick up if they will only take a few bottles."

SCHOOL AT MORGANZA OVERCROWDED

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

Sir:
I am now going to make a sentence with the word "quit"

in it:
I quit. L. W.

Seventeen years ago today a minor tragedy took place in the home of Mrs. Levin in Soho.

Mrs. Levin's little boy Julius, who was learning to be a sports writer, came home from Forbes school complaining that he had torn his trousers (ripped his pants).

Mrs. Levin was setting about finding a patch to apply to the trousers (Julius having retired to bed temporarily) when a customer entered the Levin store. Mrs. Levin attended to the customer. A second customer came in, a third.

Mrs. Levin returned to the business of finding a patch for little Julius' trousers.

"Julius," she finally announced, "I've found something that's exactly the shade we need."

Mrs. Levin ripped a sizeable piece from the something.

The something proved to be Julius' pants.

Dave Broudy, who leads the orchestra at the Stanley, is an excellent actor. As he stands on the rostrum, his back turned to the audience, you see an immaculate, well-groomed leader seriously set on directing his musicians to perfection. With each flourish of the baton he seems to be encouraging his men to do better. And, then, as the music ends and Broudy turns to the audience for his bow, you are disillusioned; you see a very sunburned forehead and you know that, instead of having spent all day grooming himself for his appearance (as you thought he had) Broudy had dashed through the stage door at the nth minute, hurried into his tuxedo and sped to the orchestra pit, having just concluded 18 hasty holes of golf.

Harold Cohen, the movie critic, has worked himself into a temper because when he went backstage to interview Helen Kane, the little lady ungraciously sent back word that she was too tired. Well, now, we're surprised at Cohen, who is an old hand at the interviewing game and, just to appease him, we're going to interview Miss Kane without ever having seen her.

Q.—What do you think of Pittsburgh, Miss Kane?

A.—Wonderful, boop-boop-a-doop.

Q.—And to what do you attribute your success?

A.—Hard work and good cooking. I'm a good cook.

Q.—What're you going to do when you retire?

A.—Come back to Pittsburgh and settle down with you wonderful, wonderful people.

Q.—What do you think of the talkies?

A.—I think they're here to stay, which is more than I can say for others.

Will Rogers Says:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 16

The Senate has started shooting at the London treaty. They asked a delegate, "why did Japan get so much higher rating at London than they did at Washington?"

"Well, Japan demanded it, and wouldn't sign anything else."

"Well, why did we take smaller cruisers when we wanted larger ones for our needs?"

"We had to take them to get a treaty."

So it looks like our boys went after a treaty and Japan's gang went after ships. Well, they both got 'em, so now in case of trouble (which the diplomats say is unbelieveable), why, for every ship they send out to attack us, we shoot 'em down with a treaty.

Yours,
WILL.

STEEL CONCERN JOINS FIGHT ON RATES

New Protest Forwarded To Service Board Against Charges for Short Hauls

The Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel Company yesterday joined the fight against increases in short haul freight rates on steel in the Pittsburgh district. The company filed a complaint with the Public Service Commission. About 25 complaints have already been filed and additional companies are expected to enter the case before the new rates go into effect on May 20.

In speaking of the effect of the new rates the complaint says:

"The future expansion of the Pittsburgh district as an industrial center will be jeopardized, if not resulting in the relocation of fabricating plants elsewhere, business will be localized which is now reasonably widespread throughout the whole official classification territory. It will create changes in trade practices of long standing to conform to an unnatural condition created in one part of the territor, while the competing districts remain unchanged. It will disturb present competitive relations which have existed for a great many years which were built up under the present basis of rates."

The Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel Company operates a fabricating plant on Neville Island. It receives steel bars, plates and shapes from nearby mills by rail. It makes these into tanks, towers, bridges and other structures.

In many cases its freight rates have been increased over 200 per cent. The complaint states that before the plant was built an agreement was made with the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad under which the plant would derive all the benefits in freight rates that it would obtain if it were located within the city switching limits. The increases in rates will break this agreement.

2 CAB DRIVERS HELD IN CRASH

John Slinsky, 32, of 2713 Mission street, and John Norwach, 22, of 388 Willock road, taxicab drivers, were arrested late last night by police of the Overbrook station on charges of reckless driving following the wreck of Slinsky's cab, which crashed into a pole on Fairhaven road, Overbrook.

100th P. V. I. to Hold Convention June 11

The sixty-fifth annual convention of the One Hundredth Regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry will be held in the Central Presbyterian Church, New Castle, Wednesday, June 11. Following a dinner at the church, an auto tour of the city will be made, ending with an inspection of the monument presented to the city by the Daughters of Union Veterans of Pennsylvania in memory of their fathers. Civil War veterans will be guests of the Daughters at the annual banquet in the evening.

Injured by Truck, Cyclist Files Suit

Owen Wilson, knocked down in Main street, Sharpsburg, near Thirteenth street, November 6 last, and his back hurt, while riding a motorcycle has brought suit against the Jesse C. Stewart Company for $15,000 damages. He claims that an automobile of the defendant company, parked in Main street, left the sidewalk suddenly, where it had been parked, and ran him down. He claims no warning was sounded.

Editor Appointed For Duke Weekly

Jack Meagher, a junior in the school of accounts, finance and commerce, Duquesne University, has been chosen editor-in-chief of the Duquesne Duke, weekly student publication, by the student senate. He succeeds Charles O. Rice. J. Lewis Shannon, of the same school, was elected business manager.

GIRL UNAFRAID

By GLADYS JOHNSON

Ardeth Sees the Man She Loves Marry Cecile

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Ardeth mopped her eyes in cold water. Combed her hair, Moving with slow deliberation, like one drugged.

She thought, "I must not act queer. People will look at me."

She walked down to the store, grateful to the rain which made it possible to shut out the staring world with an umbrella.

Little Ah Ling looked at Ardeth anxiously as she entered the store. She knew much—this discreet eyed, soft spoken Chinese girl. Moving silently about the Smokerie, handling tea cups and cigarets, gossip came to her ears. Many of the patrons of The Caprice would have been startled did they guess just how much Ah Ling knew of their private affairs. Startled and more than a little worried.

So now Ah Ling knew the reason for Ardeth's white face and listless manner. Ah Ling was distressed. She was fond of Ardeth and she disliked Cecile.

She slipped out to a nearby restaurant and came back with a pot of tea and some toasted muffins. As she put it down on the desk where Ardeth was balancing the cash she said softly, "Eat this. My father always said we should never meet grief on an empty stomach."

The days wore away like a long nightmare. This was one of the big storms of the year, few came into the shop and the Smokerie had no patrons.

At four-thirty Ardeth went to the back room and took down her wraps.

"Take care of the shop, Ah Ling and lock up at six, will you? I—I'm going home."

Goes to Church
Walks Through Rain to Lonely Neighborhood

Out in the growing dusk. Bending her umbrella against the driving rain. Feeling the cold slashings of rain on her legs as she battled her way up the hills.

She had reached a neighborhood of grey wooden houses standing cold and aloof at the top of their long bleak flights of steps. Some of them had unkept lawns, bare and sodden now. Fly-specked Rooms-to-Let signs were propped in the bay windows.

Here was the realm of shabbiness and decay. Yet in the nineties this had been a prosperous, even a stylish neighborhood. Up this street wealth had driven in landau and victoria. Belles in leg-of-mutton sleeves and gored skirts had swept up those wood assisted by gallants in Prince Albert coats and satin cravats.

In the middle of the block was a church, indescribably dreary in this rainy twilight.

Ardeth went slowly up the shallow wooden steps into the chapel. Tiptoeing down the shadowy aisle to a pew, halfway along its length, where a great pillar formed a shelter. She slipped in here, her heart shaking her with its violent pumping.

Terror-Stricken
Cecile and Ken Arrive To Be Married

The church was apparently empty, but the door leading into the vestry was ajar, telling of the whereabouts of the minister. The altar was softly lit by candles, as though in readiness.

Still. So still in here that a sort of tired peace stole over her. She pulled off her hat, rested her hot face against the pillar and closed her eyes.

She was startled to painful wakefulness at the sound of a car stopping outside. Footsteps coming up the steps, voices echoing in the entrance.

Ardeth's face went white and her eyes were dark with dread. She slipped to her knees, crouching against the pillar.

Six people coming up the nave. Cecile and Ken. Cecile's father and mother. A friend of Cecile's—Vivian Aldrich, who came sometimes to the Smokerie. A man she had never seen before.

Ardeth's sick eyes went over Cecile — beautiful, immaculate, despite the stormy day.

The minister came out of the vestry door. Ardeth was dimly aware that he was speaking to Mr. Parker, even as she was dimly aware of Cecile whispering to her mother. But her anguished gaze was on Ken now, devouring him, her heart in her eyes. Staring until the candles at the altar became a golden blur.

Too far to see Ken's face, but the tall young figure held a weary stoop which made Ardeth yearn toward him.

A dream . . . a terrible dream. Frenzied rebellion in her heart, touching her brain to madness. A pulse had begun to pound in her throat. Her temples throbbed.

She knew wild terror lest she rush out there and scream at them to stop.

Feels Weak
Ardeth Sickened When The Ceremony Begins

No! Never—never do that! That was silly! Silly and dramatic. What good could it do after all? As though she had done in imagination showed her Ken's shocked white face, Mrs. Parker's astonished and affronted one. Cecile's contemptuous curled lip . . . Wicked that Cecile should have the Ken she loved! Oh, wicked . . .

She crouched in the gloom of the pews, chewing her lips to keep from breaking into sobs. She rubbed her flooded eyes, impatiently straining her gaze to that group in the front of the church.

Her heart leaped, beat in her throat.

They had changed places. Ken was beside Cecile. Facing the minister in his white surplice.

"Oh—no!" whispered Ardeth with stiff lips. At the sound of the minister's voice her heart went sick within her.

"Dearly beloved, we are gathered here today—"

The sonorous voice woke soft echoes in the vaulted roof.

Ardeth's nails drove into the palms of her hands, breaking the skin. She felt weak, as though the blood were leaving her heart, drop by drop.

Ken Married
Ardeth Hides Until Group Leaves Church

The echoes multiplied, vying with the spoken word until it reached the crouching girl in a soft rush as though a multitude of ghosts whispered up there in the shadowy vault.

A pause. Cecile's clear, metallic voice.

Weak fear lest she faint had swept over Ardeth. She rubbed at her cold cheeks, crouching down behind the pew. Mustn't do that. Oh, Ken would never forgive her . . . Shadows and lights and the group at the altar swimming before her sick eyes.

They were turning. Speaking. Ardeth pressed a hand hard over her mouth, and crouched closer to the pillar.

They came down the nave attended by a convoy of echoes, passing close to the pew where a girl crouched in anguish.

Voices on the steps. The roar of a starting motor. Ken . . . going away with his wife . . . Oh, dear God!

Turning to re-enter the church a few minutes later the minister was startled to see someone come out of the chapel. A girl who held her head down and rushed wildly past him into the rainy night.

MR. VOSS PAINTING HORSE FOR CANVAS OF J. O. BURGWIN ON "SANDOW"

Franklin Voss Painting Portraits of Hunt Here

By PENELOPE REDD

A gentleman's philosophy of sport is incorporated in the paintings of Franklin B. Voss, who is now in Pittsburgh. He is painting portraits of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Burgwin and of B. F. Jones III, in hunting clothes on their favorite horses, Sandow, Stone, and Dictator, respectively.

Penelope Redd

Mr. Voss comes of a family who have made hunting history. His father founded the first hunt in America, on Long Island.

Franklin Voss' capacity for enjoyment of the hunt early extended itself into a desire to portray the superb horses in the Meadowbrook neighborhood. As a youngster he busied himself making portraits in charcoal of the dramatis personae of the Meadowbrook Hunt.

As he matured, he directed his amateur gift into the channel of his ultimate vocation by studying at the Art Students' League in New York. There he fortunately secured F. A. Bridgman, a teacher qualified to give him the arduous training in the draughtsmanship essential to his difficult subject.

Engaged directly in portraying sport as distinguished from competitive games, in painting, Voss may be compared with Siegfried Sasson, in literature. Sasson's "Memoirs of a Fox Hunting Man" is not more explicit than the intelligent enthusiasm of Voss which elucidates the philosophy of the hunt plastically.

Voss' expert knowledge of the minutae attendant upon perfect appointments for the hunt and his proficiency in painting, commands both the cordial response of the critical sportsman and of the critic of painting.

His paintings relate his subjects and their horses to the landscape with an accustomed ease born of absolute knowledge of horsemanship and of painting.

Mr. Voss has been the guest of the illustrious English hunts and has painted many of them, including that of Badminton sponsored by the Dukes of Beaufort for generations.

In America, he has painted the celebrated private packs such as the Cheshire Hounds owned by Plunkett Stewart, and Samuel D. Riddle's pack, from the Philadelphia terrain.

Mr. Voss' paintings of horses whose names are known to every sportsman, include "Man of War" and "Crusader" from Mr. Riddle's stables; "Billy Barton," owned by Howard Bruce; "Alligator," owned by Mrs. Maud Stevenson, and many from the group selected by Jock Whitney, notably "Jolly Roger" and "Easter Hero."

Franklin Voss is known wherever followers of the hunt gather as the authoritative recorder of a delightful activity of today's social world.

84 INMATES SLEEP IN ROOM

Gas Stove in Dormitory With Wood Floors, Stairs; Cottages Are Congested

(Editor's Note—Prompted by the fire in the Ohio state penitentiary, in which more than 300 prisoners lost their lives, the Sun-Telegraph has been inquiring into conditions in Pennsylvania's penal and welfare institutions. The following article, fourth in a series, deals with what was found at the Pennsylvania Training School at Morganza.)

By MAX HENRICI,
Staff Correspondent.

MORGANZA, Pa., May 16.—The Pennsylvania Training School presents remarkable contrasts—on the one hand, 84 boys herded together like cattle under lock and key in double-deck beds in the upper room of a 54-year-old building, and on the other hand many boys and girls living in attractive new cottages suggestive of an expensive boarding school.

Morganza is a strange mixture. In some departments it is terribly overcrowded, with boys and girls, until lately, sleeping in some cases on the floor, for lack of beds. The majority of the inmates have been committed for delinquencies which in the case of adults would be considered crimes.

DEVOID OF FRIENDS

On the other hand there are children at Morganza who have been guilty of no offense, but have been sent there by the courts because they had no relatives or friends to care for them, and there seemed no other place to send them. There is an act of

ASKS SEPARATE PARCEL OFFICE

A government building entirely separate from the new postoffice, to handle parcel post and heavy mail delivery from the railroads, is necessary to prevent a serious mistake in the new Grant street structure, according to James P. Donovan, real estate broker, who is leading a movement to get the idea before government officials when they meet Monday in Washington to consider postoffice plans.

He advocates the purchase of lease of property with railroad connections in the downtown district. This would require additional government funds, but it is held it would mean economy in the long run. One of the difficulties in planning the new postoffice has been to secure sufficient space to care for the many government offices.

2 WOMEN HIT, DRIVERS HELD

Mrs. Josephine Czolca, 70, of 4011 Foster street, suffered a broken leg when struck by an automobile at Foster street and Almond way last night. Herbert Gilbert, 17, of 350 Forty-second street, the driver, told police he swerved to keep from colliding with another machine and ran over the curb, hitting the woman. He was arrested on a charge of reckless driving.

NEW BUILDINGS NEEDED IN BOROUGH

Short Sessions Predicted If $450,000 Issue Fails Of Approval at Polls

Half-day sessions in the grade schools of Bellevue are in prospect unless funds are voted for new buildings, a statement by the borough's school board, issued through its publicity committee, sets forth.

The statement follows:

"Bellevue voters on Tuesday, May 20, are to pass upon a proposed school bond issue of $450,000 to finance the building of an addition of eight classrooms and a recreation room to the Grant grade building in the First Ward and the erection of a new high school building on property owned by the school district and adjacent to the present High School.

This building program has been heartily indorsed by scores of Bellevue citizens, by the Bellevue Board of Trade in formal resolution, and by several of the women's clubs.

SCHOOLS CROWDED

"Bellevue now has a high school building and two grade schools, and all three buildings are crowded beyond normal capacity. For almost two years pupils from outside the borough have been refused admittance because of lack of room. Unless the proposed building program is undertaken, half-day sessions are foreshadowed for some of the lower grades in the near future.

"The situation with regard to grades 7 and 9, junior high, is almost as serious. The proposed new high school building will adequately care for the needs of the junior high school and at the same time the other buildings will be relieved of congestion.

HEATING PROBLEM

"The erection of an addition to the Grant building will make possible the abandonment of three very unsatisfactory portable rooms and two other classrooms that are in the basement. All five rooms present very difficult heating and ventilating problems. Also additional rooms will be needed to take care of increased school population that will follow the opening of the Ohio River boulevard and the new bridge across the Ohio River.

"Bellevue school district has a bonded indebtedness of but $211,000 and is in excellent financial condition to handle the proposed bond issue. The school tax is but 13½ mills, and there is but one borough in Allegheny County with so low a school tax rate. With the passage of the bond issue, school taxes in Bellevue still will be considerably less than in many boroughs in the county."

THIS CAT HAS SIX CLAWS

A queer cat is Rolly Polly, aged six months.

Rolly Polly has six claws on each forefoot, won't drink milk, is disdainful of salmon, will only eat flies and belies her own name.

Rolly Polly's owners, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Proctor, of 1661 Jancey street, claim that she is a perfectly normal animal if you forget about the unusual number of claws and pay no attention to her diet of flies.

The animal was given to Mrs. Proctor by a beauty shop operator, in East Liberty. It seems that Rolly became too enamoured with the shop's customers that she could not keep from leaping into their laps as they received beauty treatment. This was not so bad, but one day Rolly so frightened a customer that the customer fainted. That would never do so Rolly and her extra claws went to her present owner.

YOUTHS SLEEP UNDER LOCKS

Assembly which prohibits sending neglected or dependent children, guilty of no delinquency, to reformatories for delinquents.

The atmosphere of the place is predominantly cheerful, and the visitor leaves with a pleasant impression.

The buildings are intended to accomodate about 640, but the population at present is 505, of whom 320 are boys and 285 girls. A new cottage, with rooms for 40 girls, was recently completed, and two other cottages of about the same size—one for boys and the other for girls—are to be started this summer, the money having been appropriated.

The worst situation is found in a cottage built in 1876, a three-story structure, on the upper floor of which 84 of the older and more incorrigible boys are quartered, in double-deck beds placed against each other as closely as they will go. The floors are of wood and there is a wooden staircase, but there is also a fire escape built two years ago. The windows are barred, the door locked. There is a gas stove in the dormitory and a gas light, beside which a watchman sits all night. If there should be a gas explosion, the effect would be disastrous.

There are double-deck beds and congestion in several of the cottages, both of boys and girls. But inmates who have won merits by good conduct are lodged in single rooms. Some of the cottages are attractively furnished. With immaculate white table cloths and napkins, and bowls of flowers on the tables, the dining rooms are very inviting.

The school rooms are all that could be desired.

Military discipline is maintained among the boys, and it was stated that the discipline was of so high an order that there was no possibility of panic in case of fire or other disaster, as the boys would instinctively take their places and march out in orderly manner.

Gymnastic, singing and dancing classes of the girls were visited. It was hard to imagine that these bright girls, so obviously interested in their activities, and doing so well in them, had been committed for the most part as wayward.

BAR TO DISCUSS NAMING JUDGE

Action relative to the appointment of a judge to succeed Judge John A. Evans, who retired last month, will be discussed at a meeting of the Allegheny County Bar Association Monday afternoon. An expression of the lawyers is desired on the question of holding a referendum to recommend candidates to the Governor, according to Attorney Arthur M. Scully, president.

Attorney Scully stated he had communicated with Gov. John S. Fisher and that the Governor indicated he would like to have an expression from the bar before making the appointment.

CITY TO GUARD PURCHASES

City contracts for hose and other material, where such a procedure is possible, should require a guarantee for service over a number of years, Council decided yesterday.

The decision was made after R. T. Brown, representing the Quaker City Rubber Company, complained that he was refused a contract although he was the low bidder on two items of fire hose and one item of street hose.

Director of Supplies B. L. Succop explained that the fire hose had been selected by Fire Chief Richard L. Smith after the latter had inspected the samples submitted. He declared it was customary to take the best hose even if the bidder was not the lowest.

The hose, according to Brown, is made according to city specifications and can be made equally well by any responsible bidder. Succop replied that in some cases the hose is better than the city specifications and, for the sake of the firemen, should be purchased.

Brown's company bid $6,460 for 10,000 feet of fire hose. The contract went to the Hewitt Gutta Percha Rubber Company for $7,500. Brown's bid for the street hose was $2,400. The contract was awarded by Succop to the Republic Rubber Company, which bid $2,650.

Councilman Robert Garland suggested that in the future the contract contain a clause requiring a three-year guarantee and that the lowest bidder get it.

ROBERTS SUED FOR SUPPORT

Judge Frank P. Patterson, of Common Pleas Court is hearing an equity action brought by Mrs. Bessie Harley Roberts, Los Angeles, to obtain a court order for support from her husband, David L. Roberts, an heir to the D. P. Reighard million-dollar estate.

Roberts is at present living at 6736 Penn avenue and has a divorce action pending against his wife in court here, charging her with cruel and barbarous treatment. Roberts' share of the Reighard estate is $117,570, which is temporarily tied up by the present proceeding.

The couple were married in 1911 and separated in 1924. While Roberts says he is not doing anything at the present time, he gave his occupation to the census man as "radio salesman." He formerly was an tutomobile mechanic and automobile salesman. Attorney John D. Meyer represents Roberts, who says he is paying his wife $125 a month for the support of their three children. According to Attorney Myers, the California court refused an allowance to the wife. Frederick Shoemaker represents Mrs. Roberts.

TWO MEN, BABY INJURED AS TAXI COLLIDES WITH TROLLEY

The Camera Question Box

Today's question: What measures do you advocate to prevent election frauds such as have been uncovered at recent elections here?

Mrs. Durant.

MRS. H. DURANT, private secretary: If the general public took the amount of interest in elections and other public affairs that they should take, measures of this character would not be required. In my opinion it is very difficult to legislate against conditions unless the public is in complete sympathy with the step. A united public could immediately stop such frauds.

D. E. Joy.

D. E. JOY, Ingram, assistant district manager: More careful selection of ballot counting and use of voting machines, careful and honest registration of voters and public watchfulness, might solve the problem.

Miss Dougherty.

MISS LAURA DOUGHERTY, Etna, secretary: Yes." Something should be done about it. So long as the public continues in its lethargy, "yes" will be as sensible an answer as it is possible to make.

Miss Smith.

HENRIETTA SMITH, North Side, secretary: I certainly believe in voting machines. I think they'll prevent fraud and insure proper counting. However, some means must be found to insure honest registration. It is in fraudulent registration that the trouble has its birth.

C. R. Kolb, Jr.

C. R. KOLB, Jr., Brookline, executive: Use voting machines. I don't think they can be tampered with. But, even then, the bought vote will play a large part in the election, for only about one out of five persons who are legally able to vote, do so. Voting machines and a high percentage of turnout will help a lot.

Miss Simon.

MARGARET SIMON, Ambridge, clerk: I'm not sure about it. Everyone is so cynical that they refuse to try to push through some election reform. Prohibition and the breakdown in law and respect for for law that followed it, may be at the root of the disregard of honesty in the polls.

WAR INSURANCE SUIT LOST BY WOMAN

Aunt of Veteran Non-Suited In Contest Over $3,000 Policy Left 'Ring' Wife

The suit of Mrs. Mary C. Lewis, Negro, in Federal court, to recover on a $3,000 war risk insurance policy of her nephew, William R. Mossett, a veteran of the World War, who died December 5, 1928, was non-suited by Judge Nelson McVicar.

The court held that Mrs. Lewis failed to prove that the former soldier was incompetent when he substituted Virginia Turner Mossett as the beneficiary under the policy. Mrs. Lewis was the original beneficiary and testified that she had paid premiums on the policy for a long period.

The action was brought against the Mossett woman, who testified she went through a "ring" ceremony with Mossett, and at the time of his death was known as his wife. The government was also named a defendant in the case.

The woman defendant was represented by Attorney William H. Stanton. The case attracted much attention and was attended by a large crowd from the Hill district.

CHARGE HELD TOO MILD

Louis Maracini, of Homestead, instead of being placed on trial for involuntary manslaughter in Criminal Court, as scheduled, may face a charge of murder.

Assistant District Attorney John F. Haggerty, assigned to prosecute the case, when he examined the evidence, reported to District Attorney Andrew T. Park that he though the grand jury had erred, and should have drawn the indictment for murder. On Haggerty's recommendation the manslaughter case was postponed by Judge Harry H. Rowand and the matter will be presented to the June grand jury.

It is charged Maracini placed an air hose, carrying 120 pounds pressure, against Joseph Kubanya, Jr., 21, 629 East Ninth avenue, Munhall, in the Mesta Machine Company mill, Homestead, last November 19, and held it there despite the latter's cry for mercy.

SCOUTS ADOPT WOMAN, 105

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., May 16.—Mrs. Mary Wisnieski can take it a little easier now.

Since she is nearly 105 years old, Boy Scouts of Troop 4, Everson, under Police Chief Stanley Kubiak, have decided that Mrs. Wisniewski deserves an easier time, so they have adopted her.

Mrs. Wisniewski is still able to do the housework in the cottage where she lives alone, but since adopting her several months ago, members of the troop have been making regular calls to do some of the heavier work. They bring in coal and wood and build fires and run errands.

Not that she needs to be helped, she says, with pride. She is still able to keep house and spends a great deal of her time sewing.

Mrs. Wisniewski, who will be 105 Sept. 5, is believed to be the oldest person in Western Pennsylvania and perhaps the oldest person in the state.

The boys adopted her as their troop mother and besides doing some of the work at her home remember her at holidays and hold a celebration at her home.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Folk Hear Urban Recital

Here we are in the middle of May, and summer nearly here before we've become thoroughly acquainted with reticent spring. We are almost to the time of the year when June weddings dominate all social interests. But just now there are other events besides plans for marriage ceremonies to divert us.

And yesterday morning there was another Urban recital in the Urban room of the William Penn Hotel, and of course you know that the attraction was the diseuse, Patricia MacDonald.

Several debs were acting as ushers for the affair, and Harriet Fickes was their chairman. She was wearing a dress of black taffeta and a coat of black wool, and a small black felt hat. Assisting her were Joan Diehl, wearing a smart wool suit of eggshell and brown, with a hat of beige baku. Her smart suit jacket flaunted a cape collar. And another was Frances Forsyth, wearing a frock of pirate blue crepe with novel crystal buttons in a vertical row down the front, and a coat of beige with a woodbrown felt hat, and Frances Fitzgerald, who was ushering, too, wore pale gray crepe, with jabot collar and hemstitching, and with it she wore a hat of gray baku. With her was Harriet Wainwright, wearing a sport frock of canary yellow embroidered in brown wool, and a closefitting hat of brown felt.

And after the recital there was a luncheon, and Mrs. Joseph W. Marsh had several guests at the luncheon to honor Mrs. Walter Grace.

Honor Guests

Among the guests were Mrs. Dexter Edge, Mrs. Jacob S. Payton, Mrs. Ferdinand Weil, Mrs. Louis B. Hays, Mrs. M. D. Kirk, Mrs. Thomas Fitzgerald, Mrs. William D. Hamilton, Mrs. Conke Bausman, Mrs. James McFall, Mrs. R. F. W. Salisbury and Mrs. W. S. Horner. And Mrs. Harry Samson had several guests, including Mrs. Albert E. Day, the honor guest; Mrs. E. E. Balsinger, Mrs. W. F. Connor and Mrs. Loraine Faeger.

Others at the luncheon were Mrs. William Fellanshee, Mrs. R. Gillespie, Mrs. Otto Gaus, Mrs. S. C. Grier, Mrs. W. E. Garey, Mrs. W. Hamilton and Mrs. P. O. Heasley. Also Mrs. Clinton Bradley, Mrs. W. More and more folks are planning to attend the spring dinner-dance at the Longue Vue Country Club a week from tonight, to be given for the benefit of the social service department of the Homeopathic Hospital.

A number of men will aid the young women and young matrons arranging the ball, and among them is a group that will form the floor committee: James J. Schoen, Jr., Sidney A. Stewart, Elmer Whitehill, Charles H. Wolfe, and J. Bennett Walker.

And already there are ever so many subscribes to the ball. In addition to those I've enumerated before, those giving their support to the event include Mrs. George Snow, Mrs. W. S. Heron, Mrs. William Nimick Frew, Mrs. Walter C. Carroll, Mrs. R. B. Townsend, Mrs. Daniel Clemson, Mrs. Robert R. Gordon, Mrs. Harmar Denny, Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., and Mrs. George S. Ebbert.

Aspinwall's Club Holds Institute

The auditorium of the Aspinwall Woman's Club was filled yesterday for the club institute conducted under the supervision of Mrs. J. Andrew Gettig, district institute chairman for the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women. An address of welcome by the Aspinwall president, Mrs. I. H. Milliken, the salute to the flag and assembly singing opened the morning session, and at an open forum which followed many questions of interest were brought out. Mrs. Gettig contributing a talk on well-balanced programs.

In the discussion concerning requisites for junior advisers, it was decided directing ability, sympathetic understanding and a spirit of co-operation were the outstanding requirements for anyone attempting junior work. Whether political questions should be discussed from club platforms and whether outside speakers should be brought in or "club talent" developed were other points looked at from all phases.

The May and June groups of hostesses served luncheon and during this period Mrs. Rollins A. Haddock, district chairman of citizenship training in the federation, spoke, urging study of political issues.

The afternoon speakers were Mrs. Frank Fulmer, who told of her interesting and invaluable work as superintendent of the Florence Crittenton Home, and Mrs. James G. Chalfant, who discussed club relationships, showing the value of relationship with the state and county federations, the possibilities in community and school relationships and the potential service of women's clubs generally.

Music was furnished by Mrs. George Robie, Miss Frances McCaslin and Miss Elizabeth Terrell, vocalists, accompanied by Miss Marion Swan.

THE NEWEST MODE FOR TENNIS ENTHUSIASTS

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, MAY 16.—Whatever may be the status of your tennis game, you should see that you are served with a smart tennis ensemble that should certainly assist you to score a personal triumph if not an athletic one. This Winter at various resorts along the Riviera, especially at Monte Carlo and at the famous courts at Cannes, several very distinctive tennis costumes were noted, many of them worn by expert players, thus showing that however good the player, she does not disdain the comfort of a perfect tennis frock in her search for championship honors. The tennis frocks that will be seen this season, are simple, but colorful, the dress itself being quite plain, usually of white in crepe de Chine or heavy shantung, and worn with a bright sweater and a matching headband. For all their apparent simplicity, such frocks are generally of quite complicated cut with intricate piecings and other "dressmaker" touches, without of course losing sight of the practical appeal of the frock. Skirts are generally of a sensible length with ample ease assured through the medium of box-pleats.

WE THOUGHT that it might interest you to see a fashionable couturier's interpretation of the tennis frock, and so we had the very nice looking little costume sketched for you at the ateliers of Patou whose sports collection this season is particularly good. The frock shown here is a sleeveless affair of white marocain with intricate piecings and a box-pleated skirt. With it is worn an angora sweater, also sleeveless, of a bright shade of orange. The sun-visor is of stiffly startched white pique and is bound around the head with a scarf of orange crepe.

THE OTHER sketch is of a caped frock of black alpaca made by Premet and worn by the Marquise de Montagliani. The collars and cuffs are of white pique. A finely pleated ruffle edges the circular flounce which is placed rather low on the snugly fitting skirt. The cape, slashed at the sides, is removable. The Marquise wears a black beret with a jeweled clasp with this ideal little daytime frock.

Stevenson Courtship.

The love story of the great French novelist and essayist, Robert Louis Stevenson, will be dramatized.

Stevenson was an ugly child, a witty youth who overdrank another. At the age of 24 he had neither written a line—nearly four had been in bed.

His health was poor and when doctors ordered him South he set out merrily to Barbizon in France. Here he engaged himself at a French artists' inn—all but all which none but artists, and starving artists at that, were tolerated.

Then one day a terrible event was reported. Robert Louis returned from a walk—he likes to imply that a woman had developed designs at the inn—and told a woman but an American. And to make matters worse she was the mother of ten children. Her name was Fannie Osbourne. Robert Louis and his fellow-artists made elaborate plans to outwardize her.

All of this happened before he had met her. Before long a still more startling event was observed by the artists at Barbizon—Robert Louis Stevenson, the woman hater, was in love with Mrs. Osbourne.

His courtship of Fannie Osbourne, his daring adventure in following her all the way from Scotland to San Francisco against his father's wish, will be this story.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

THE OFT REPEATED STORY of the promising singer choosing between love and a career will come up for rehearsal on the Mary and Bob program, WJAS at 9 o'clock tonight.

Not satisfied with sinking British ships, Bill Williams of KDKA will lead his Freedom cast to battle against the Mexican army at 8 o'clock. The brave stand of 170 Texans against 3,000 Mexicans in the Battle of the Alamo will be depicted with kettle drums, slats of wood and other studio accessories.

The Fast Freight Organist, WJAS at 10:30, will present Dvorak's Humoresque.

Robert Louis Stevenson's courtship on KDKA at 8:45, the Cities Service program on WCAE at 8, and the Green and White feature, WJAS at 10, are good bets.

Helen Lewis

Helen Lewis, Dick Powell, Madeline Ward and the Stanley Stage Band will participate in the Warner Revue from KQV at 6:15. At 9:30 p. m. KQV will broadcast a radio version of the new all-talking picture, Paramount on Parade. This will be quite a novelty.

DO YOU KNOW—

THAT Glenn Riggs recently received more letters in one mail than all NBC features combined 103 to 86.

THAT Norman Brokenshire was paid $25 a week for his first job as janitor of a one-room schoolhouse in Murchison, Ontario.

THAT Brokenshire once considered an offer of announcing for WJAS.

THAT radio singers usually cover the left ear with the hand so they can distinguish their harmony from the orchestra accompaniment. Try it.

That Marquis Chisholm, KDKA production man, has had experience directing movies.

THAT two stations in this city are on the twenty-first floor (KDKA and KQV) and another (WCAE) is on the twelfth, just a reversed figure.

THAT the line charge for a remote broadcast, like the Nixon to WCAE, is very small—usually less than $10 a month.

THAT the "correct time" clock in a downtown studio recently went rolo-poly because it inducted magnetism from the transmitter.

THAT the radiation from KDKA'S antenna in East Pittsburgh is powerful enough to electrify an incandescent bulb pressed against any metal within a mile.

THAT Cousin Lora is also the WCAE bookkeeper.

THAT we take time out first thing every morning to read your letters of criticism on WE NOW PRESENT.

When Mark Twain was returning from his European travels and excursions among the epicureans of the Old World the story is told that he sent an important message home on the boat preceding his. And that message contained a long list of American dishes which were to be ready for him the moment he arrived on this side of the Atlantic. Almost at the very head of the list appeared "Fried Chicken, Southern Style."

If his instructions were faithfully followed the chicken was prepared in this way. The tender chicken was cleaned and cut into pieces at the joints. Then it was dredged well with salt and pepper. A batter was made of 4 tablespoonfuls flour and 2 eggs and the chicken rolled in it until the pieces were lightly covered.

When the fat was hot in the pan the chicken was cooked in it for about three quarters of an hour and carefully watched to prevent burning.

Tomato juice cocktails, however, were not as popular in the days of Mark as they are today. I'll tell you how to prepare this Volsteadian cocktail in a way that is cool and spicy:

Strain 2 cups tomato juice. Add 4 teaspoons chopped chives or onion tops and let stand about 3 hours. Strain again. Add ½ teaspoon tobasco sauce, ½ teaspoon lemon juice, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and 1 teaspoon salt. Mix well and chill. Shake it well before serving in small glasses, surrounded by cracked ice.

The banana recipes I printed last week proved most popular; I don't wonder, either, for if there is one fruit that commends itself to public favor by sheer versatility, it is the banana.

Sliced thin and combined with diced fresh pineapple, diced oranges and halved cherries, it makes a marvelous Sunday tea dessert. Split in half lengthwise, besprinkled generously with lemon juice and a touch of sugar, then baked, bananas are a delicious complement to the meat dish.

I have some more banana recipes for you next week.

Either Fresh or Canned Pineapple Excellent Food

Pineapple is a most appetizing and wholesome food, says Dr. Copeland. One of its merits is the roughage it supplies for the intestinal tract.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Former Health Commissioner of New York City
United States Senator From New York

Summer time is fruit time and salad time. Fruit in America is so abundant and cheap that there is infinite variety. Everyone should include it in the diet.

Pineapple is one of the most appealing and nourishing fruits. While the fresh fruit is delicious the canned pineapple is more uniformly good because it is allowed to ripen on the tree before packing for shipment. On this account there is in the canned variety a much larger per cent of natural sugar than is possessed by the fresh fruit. In canned pineapple there is found from 9 to 15 per cent of sugar, while in the fresh fruit, which is picked while green and then allowed to ripen, there is only from 2 to 3 per cent of sugar.

ROUGHAGE REQUIRED

Pineapples are grown in various parts of the world. We get them from Florida, the West Indies and Hawaii. The Florida fruit on account of the frosts must be protected by sheds.

Not alone do we need the fruit acids, but digestion requires a certain amount of roughage. Coarse, fibrous material is needed to stimulate effective intestinal action.

The great advantage of the canned pineapple from Hawaii is that it is ripened under perpetually sunny skies. The canning process is carried out under the most favorable conditions. Certainly nothing could be more delicious than this juicy ripe fruit, and it is available the year round.

FLAVOR DUE TO OILS

Fresh pineapple combined with other fruits makes a delicious salad. It makes a delicate and refreshing sherbet, ice or ice cream for the warm days. It may be served as a fruit cocktail, or cooling drink.

The flavor and odor, which are so appealing to the pineapple lover, are due to the essential oils. These are present in small quantities, but are very distinctive.

pes which you'll find every bit as good as the former ones.

BANANAS WITH CHERRY SAUCE—Scrape six bananas and cook in butter over a slow fire. Turn to color evenly and remove carefully to a serving dish when tender. Heat a cupful of canned cherries in the remaining butter and pour around the bananas. Serve hot.

If you are serving cold ham for luncheon add bananas cooked in grape-juice to the menu. Add a dash of salt at the start and a little butter when they are done. Round out the meal with hot buttered toast or crisp, crunchy rolls, a tempting dessert, and there you are.

SAVORY SCALLOP—Butter a shallow glass baking dish and alternate slices of cooked ham and chopped green pepper—or celery, if you prefer it with the ham—until the dish is ¾ full. Pour in cream, or evaporated milk barely to cover the ham, and place split bananas over the top. Sprinkle brown sugar and a bit of salt on the fruit and bake in a moderate oven 20 minutes.

To bake bananas, roll them in butter until they are coated. Dredge well with sugar or spread with honey and add the juice of a small lemon. Bake half an hour in a moderate oven and serve hot with the meat course. Half a cupful of raisins or canned cherries may be added, if you like, and the fruit served cold as a dessert.

Diets may come and diets may go, but upon one article of food and its great value in the food scheme everybody agrees. That favored food is milk. Every quart of milk furnishes the adult worker with one-third of the necessary protein, a sufficient amount of Vitamin A and and some of Vitamins B, C and D.

A quart of milk a day supplies an abundance of calcium and protects the diet in phosphorus. It furnishes one-eighth of the daily requirement in iron, and because of its large content of lime, it helps to make usable the iron from other food sources. The fat, carbohydrate and protein supply in that same quart of milk is from one-fifth to one-fourth of the daily energy requirement.

That probably sounds very involved and very technical, but it really isn't at all! That little girl of yours who is taking a Home Economics course in school and who is enchanted with her own skill at brewing tea and making Floating Islands could probably tell you precisely those same fascinating facts about milk, and tell them understandingly, too. I tell you the rising feminine generation will know more about good food and the proper way to serve it than our grandmothers ever suspected!

They'll know that a quart of milk a day is an absolute necessity for every child—and that a pint of milk, at the very least, is the adult requisite per day.

Question is, how are you going to incorporate that milk in the daily diet? Part of the daily quart can be consumed in the form of a beverage, to be sure, but some of it should be utilized in the cookery, too.

The children in my house have what amounts to a fatal passion for potato soup. It must be made in just the proper way, of course, to suit their exacting tastes. Best of all, my recipe calls for four cups of milk—and I therefore approve in most uncertain terms of cream of potato soup.

Would you like my recipe? Here it is: Melt 3 tablespoons of butter in a saucepan, add a tablespoon of grated onion, and brown. Add 4 tablespoons of flour, blend, then add the milk—4 cups of it—and stir constantly until thick and smooth. Add a half cup of cooked potato, riced, ½ teaspoon salt. Serve with dainty little lady-fingers of buttered toast.

There must be some racial memory, buried deep beneath layers of civilization, that makes heritage of the days when our ancestors, after a winter of eating only meats and the tuberous roots which could be stored, fared forth to eat.

PRUDENCE PENNY'S RECIPES

In the springtime in search of the first little tender shoots of edible plants, which offered a fresh and welcome break in the monotony of heavy foods.

GREEN PEAS IN MILK—Choose tender peas—a pint of them, shelled. Add a pint of boiling water and a teaspoon of salt, and cook in an open kettle until tender. This will require about 20 minutes. Almost all of the water should evaporate; don't pour off any of the liquid. Add a tablespoon of butter, a half cup of evaporated milk, and a dash of pepper. Serve very hot, with an extra pat of butter on top of them.

Have you tried garnishing the morning grapefruit with a little jam! It's delicious that way; you cut the grapefruit in halves, remove the center and fill the cavity with a spoonful of orange marmalade, cherry or plum jam. The jam acts as a sweetening for the grapefruit, besides adding an attraction all its own.

Grapefruit served with mint jelly makes a novel substitute for the fruit cocktail, which is so popular as the first course at dinner. Cut the grapefruit in half and loosen the pulp from the rind; do not cut out the center, but remove all the seeds. Cut out every third or fourth section of grapefruit and replace it by a wedge-shaped slice of mint jelly.

If you insist on your breakfast cocktail, then try this recipe; it combines egg yolks with orange and lemon juice, making a truly excellent dietetic combination. The vitamines, mineral content and food value of the orange and lemon juice supplement the same elements in the egg yolk, thus making a successful food duet.

Thoroughly mix an egg yolk, the juice of 2 oranges, the juice of half a lemon and a teaspoon of honey or sugar to taste. Chill, if desired. For furnishing vim, vigor and vitality to the business go-getter, it is unexcelled.

PERFECTION SALAD — Soak 2½ tablespoons gelatin in ½ cup cold water for 5 minutes. Heat in a saucepan ¼ cup vinegar, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ½ teaspoon onion juice, ½ cup sugar and 2 cups boiling water. Strain the hot liquid on to the gelatin. When the jelly is beginning to set, add 1½ cups shredded cabbage, 1 cup finely chopped celery, 1-3 cup chopped nuts, 2 tablespoons chopped green peppers, 3 tablespoons chopped pimentoes and 4 tablespoons chopped apple. Mix well and chill in individual molds. Unmold on lettuce and serve with a tasty mayonnaise dressing.

BAKED STUFFED COD—Boil a 3-pound piece of cod for just 10 minutes; then remove the skin and bones. Mix 1 cup bread crumbs, 1 chopped onion, 1 cup crab meat, 1 egg and 1 tablespoon melted butter. Season with salt and pepper as desired. Add enough cream to hold the mixture together. Stuff the cod with this filling, fasten it together and lay it on a greased baking dish. Spread with butter and bake in a moderate oven about 25 minutes. Serve with drawn butter sauce.

CHEESE OMELET SOUFFLE — Blend 2 tablespoons butter with 4 tablespoons flour and season with salt and pepper. Gradually add 1 cup hot milk and then ¼ pound grated cheese, stirring quickly to melt the cheese. When the mixture has cooled somewhat, add the yolks of 3 eggs, and then the whites of the eggs beaten stiff. Pour into a greased baking dish and place in the oven for 15 to 20 minutes. Serve immediately.

SCALLOPED EGGS AND SHRIMP—Four hard cooked eggs, 1 cupful cooked or canned shrimp, ½ cupful buttered crumbs, 1 tablespoonful chopped parsley, 2 cupfuls well-seasoned medium white sauce.

Slice the hard-cooked eggs and add with the shrimp and parsley to the white sauce. Pour into a well-greased casserole dish, top with the buttered crumbs, and bake in a hot oven of 450 degrees Fahrenheit for 15 minutes, or until the crumbs are brown. Serves six.

CHICKIE By ELENORE MEHERIN

New Friend Helps Chickie To Get Letters

CHAPTER LXXXVII

The stream ran through a narrow gorge. High above its flowing was a grassy bank, cloistered with oak trees. Sun dappled like silver coin through the branches.

Here Chickie sat long hours.

Sometimes Wildie lay at her feet—other times he was bounding off through the thickets after a rabbit. Chickie watched the wild, frightened thing fly, ing across bare stretches, the dog leaping after it. She shuddered she was a rabbit.

Everything on the farm forced to her attention the thought of herself. One afternoon she saw a calf born. The mother cow was in a narrow enclosure. She bellowed a loud protesting pitiful sound. There came then a great concourse of all other cows. They thrust their noses close to the wire fencing. They answered the mother's complaints in a ludicrous chorus—bellow for bellow. Something touching about it—a kind of blind sympathy in this herding together against some incomprehensible woe. Agnes Robbins and Billy were doubled over in their laughing.

Yet, she was more at peace here than she had been in many, many weeks. She had a letter now from Jennie. Jennie was so glad she was enjoying herself. Of course, let her stay the month—they missed her—but if she was happy—why—did they ask more than that—Chickie knew——

Her mail had been a great problem. In the first week when she wrote she sent no address, pretending to have forgotten. She couldn't have letters coming out to Miss Helena Bryce.

A New Friend

She brooded over this, considering one plan then another. She could rent a box in the postoffice of the little town, five miles distant, giving her real name. And she could call here for her mail. She dismissed this. In a small town she would soon be known—they would find out where she was staying—a dozen explanations necessary.

Finally she made a trip to Rutland, registering at the hotel in the name of Helena Bryce. It was so that Jonathan and Jennie, Janina and Mary would address her. So she made friends with the clerks, but especially with the telephone operator.

This was a young girl, Miss Wreden — quiet, serious and enormously flattered with Chickie's attention. Chickie remained at the hotel several days. She took Miss Wreden to lunch—went shopping and helped the girl select a dress. She had found a stanch admirer. She decided to trust the girl. It was the only chance she saw.

One day she said laughingly, and in a very off-hand manner: "Can you keep a secret, Dorothy?"

The girl answered with a flush of pleasure: "Yes."

"Then I'm going to tell you what only you and two or three others know. I happen to be married. My name is Mrs. John Clayton, but I'm keeping it dark. There are reasons why I can't have my folks know. But, of course, I want my letters, and now that I'm off on a ranch, I can't come these thirty miles every day to get them."

"And you want me to watch out for them and send them to you?"

Thinks of Christmas

"Yes—but I want them in envelopes addressed to Mrs. Clayton."

"I'll be just glad to do it."

Chickie wrote home then and ordered her mail sent to the hotel. It was a link—perhaps a faulty one—but she had to forge it between her old life and the new one.

Letters came almost every day. She answered them glowingly. Oh, the freedom of this open life; the joy of lying under trees, reading and sleeping; and the interesting things about animals that she learned—why, even a pig was not to be despised; the little fellows were as cute and as clean—

Folding these bright, sparkling deceptions into their envelopes she had a spent, exhausted feeling. She would gaze out to the far hills, wondering how long she could keep this up; wondering what new subterfuge she must invent—and if in the end they would fail—

Whenever this fear seized her, she walked. She wore herself out with these walkings. Once she stopped suddenly and said aloud: "Christmas—I'll be away from them Christmas—" She could hardly breathe.

Often now she sat duly near the stream. She tried not to think. She held herself in a stony apathy, but tears went scalding along her throat. They burned her heart.

And she said: "What will I do then—I wonder what I'll do then—" By that she meant when it was over and the child was born. She bit her lips together, her eyes on fire. She prayed with a low, frantic pleading, "Oh, Lord God—"

She would fancy that she was to die and the child would die too. She hoped for this. She looked into the water steadfastly and murmured drearily—Oh—oh—

In colder moments she was certain that this escape would fool fate. No—it would be fruitless. She must face it to the bitterest fullness. She lay awake at night and went through imaginary conversations with Mrs. Robbins. Perhaps she could leave it here and come up every week-end.

But she was never certain of Agnes Robbins. The woman petted her, followed her about—hungry for companionship. When Chickie had been there three weeks they sat on the porch one evening. A crimson glow set the pale beauty of the hills in flame.

Widow Comforting

"This is the best time of the twenty-four hours. We should sleep in the day and live by night." Agnes Robbins began. Then she told of experiences in her theatrical career—one night stands—hotels that were but cardboard boxes, and the strange comedies and tragedies that went on and were overheard behind these paper walls. She talked—she had a rich, tumultuous past. Suddenly she said:

"Why did you come up here, dearie? With that face of yours to bury yourself—"

Chickie imagined that Agnes Robbins had begun to suspect. Now she tilted her shoulders with a quick, affirming laugh and opened her hand in a revealing gesture. "Can't you see, lady?"

"Yes—ages."

"I suppose you'll go down to the city for the big event—"

Chickie gasped. "Oh—I don't know. I'm not quite sure—"

"Well, of course you could go in to Rutland or out to the town. We have a fine doctor here—a nicely equipped hospital at that—"

Chickie was now so alarmed she clenched her hands. They were dry and hot. She said: "Well, I've not decided."

"Mr. Clayton will be back, of course."

"Ho—ho—that's just what makes it rather hard; he can't be here. At the earliest, he won't return till next June."

Mrs. Robbins reached over and patted Chickie's hand. "Never mind, dearie, you'll come through it all right. We're all afraid the first time. It will be such company for you afterward—"

"Oh, yes, I've thought of that."

Agnes Quick-Tempered

"It will. Sometimes I wish my girl was little again. I want company so—"

Chickie said: "Well, Agnes Robbins, I may camp on with you years and a day and give you company—"

She began seriously to consider this, yet never quite sure of this colorful woman who gave her the feeling of a volcano, but half quiescent. Agnes Robbins had a very uncertain temper.

If the weather became hot, she grew angry. She banged the dishes down on the table; she let the biscuits burn. But she would bring cream to Chickie or get down a jar of preserves. Chickie understood this as her way of asking pardon.

Other little incidents pierced her. There was that trifle about Bertie Groom. This was a thin, white-faced boy of seven or eight, and he was always hanging around the ranch. Agnes Robbins gave him cookies; she nagged at him and petted him. One day he got under her feet somehow as she was reaching over the stove. She brought herself erect with a jerk. She reached down and grabbed the boy and struck him violently in the face.

Chickie saw that from the porch. She turned away—sickened. A few moments later the little fellow was going down the road. Chickie followed. She reached down and put her arm on his shoulder, ready to cry that such a mite should suffer so. She said: "Don't you care, Bertie."

He shook off her arm: "Shucks—Don't hurt me none! I like her—" He kept gulping. "She doesn't mean nothing. She's good to me most times. She just gave me these." He showed Chickie a bag of nuts and raisins.

And Agnes was overcome with remorse. She justified herself: "Oh—the brat. Why doesn't Molly Green keep him home! They kick him enough there—the poor, miserable little fellow—I'm sorry for him—"

She told Chickie then of Bertie Groom—and that Molly was lucky enough to be let stay on at home the way she was. Old Man Groom, her father, was a lazy, drunken sort but he had a heart. He had taken the girl and her child in and let them stay.

Chickie said suddenly: "I'm tired. I think I'll go to bed."

Habit Even Interferes at Times with Cupid's Schedule, Fay King Thinks

By FAY KING

Contrast always intrigues.

We are all more or less attracted by differences. At first any change from familiar surroundings interests us.

But after the novelty wears away we long for our own environment which habit has attached to us.

Habit after all has the strongest hold on us.

That is why so many marriages in widely different stations of life which begin so romantically often end so disastrously.

"Cinderella" begins to sigh for the old freedom of her humble beginning and longs to run from the ceremonies and responsibilities of her new luxury.

And "the Princess" becomes a bit bored with the bonhomie of Bohemia and sighs for old formalities.

Transplanting is often fatal.

Like flowers, folks thrive best where they belong.

Madge Has a Premonition of Impending Trouble

I fought my rising—and ridiculous—panic hard as with my father. I waited for an answer to his push of the bank's signal button. I told myself that the bald-headed man was only what Jerry Ticer had designated him—a motorist who was either "awful dumb or flat broke." He had made no move toward us, menacing or otherwise, and in all probability had neither knowledge of us nor even a passing interest in our movements.

But though I succeeded in concealing any outward indication of my terror, a very lively fear was having its way with me and I was glad indeed when Mr. Corbin, the bank president, slender, suave, gray-haired, but youthful-looking, swung open the door for us.

"I have been watching for you," he told us after our first perfunctory exchange of greetings. "The safety vault, I think you said, Mr. Spencer?"

"If you please," my father answered, and we followed Mr. Corbin to a massive door at the rear of the building. I saw Mr. Corbin glance at the suitcase, but he made no comment, and stepped back to permit my father to pass to his deposit box.

"I shall have to rent a compartment larger than mine," my father said.

"Yes?" Mr. Corbin returned briefly. "You're in luck. There's just one large box left. I'll get the keys and the rental blank."

"This is really my daughter's affair," he said, and when my name was affixed to the blank and Marion's box safely locked away in the vault he turned to the bank president.

"It is more than possible," he said gravely, "that an attempt will be made to steal these keys, though we shall guard them carefully. If they should be presented by any person other than Mrs. Graham or myself—"

Mr. Corbin smiled, but there was a touch of grimness in it.

My father bowed. "That is all I wish to know," he said, and Mr. Corbin ushered us out with the same punctilious courtesy which he had shown us ever since our arrival.

"Has the bald-headed motorist finally fixed his car, Jim?" father asked genially.

"I guess so." Jim answered unsuspectingly. "Leastways he pulled out just a minute or two after you had gone into the bank. He went down the street and turned toward the North Haven bridge and he hain't come back. Guess he's headed for Greenport by way of Shelter Island, if his car lasts that long."

"Let us hope so," I broke in nervously. "I was tired simply from seeing him bending over it."

I was silent all the way home, for I was mulling over and over every detail of the man's appearance. My father, respecting my reticence, did not speak either, until we came opposite The Larches. There again directing Jerry Ticer to stay with the car and Jim to accompany us inside, he walked with me to the big front door and opened it with the big key he had procured from Mrs. Ticer.

His eyes narrowed as he looked at the glasses and dishes of food which we had not disturbed.

"We can do without the police on this," he said crisply. "Remember, Jim, not a word of this to anyone—not even to Katie."

"If I were tellin' anybody it wouldn't be Katie," Jim answered. "She's an awfully good woman," he amended loyally, "but——"

"We understand perfectly, Jim," my father told him, smiling, "and I know we can trust your discretion. Now we must hurry back to the farmhouse, so we can get back here with my camera. Go on out, Jim, and start the car."

Jim obeyed immediately, and my father put his hand on my elbow to escort me from the room. But a sudden flashing conviction made me tear loose and face him excitedly.

"Father," I exclaimed, "that man—he was not bald. His head was shaven that way!"

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

Prince Charming of Broadway

There is a new Prince Charming on Broadway.

Fashions in Romeos change, just as fashions in girls change. The dreamy-eyed, flamboyant hero of grandmother's day, with his curling mustache and poetic line, would not create a single stir among feminine hearts today. He would create only a big laugh.

And where are the "matinee idols" of yesteryear, before whose pictures Mother kept violets? Laid away in the lavender of memory along with their yellowed mash notes and Anthony Hope's novels.

Women have always worshipped men according to type, and their fads in heroes have run the gamut all the way from warriors to troubadours, from troubadours to poets, from poets to matinee idols, from matinee idols to doughboys, from doughboys to screen lovers.

And now they have come back to troubadours again.

Today Prince Charming of Broadway—points west, north, south and east—is the Song Writer.

The fair-haired Boy of Tin Pan Alley, who turns out the heart-throb stuff which comes across the footlights, over the screen lights and over the Air, is the darling of the hour!

The unseen radio singer who composes and croons the lilting love lyrics has pushed the screen hero back into second place in the fickle feminine imagination.

We fall in love, not through the eyes or through the heart, but through the imagination.

Start a woman's IMAGINATION working—and she will do the rest.

It is easier than growing nasturtiums. Drop a seed into the fertile ground of her imagination and the first thing you know you've got a whole crop of colorful illusions and glowing emotions.

* * *

Just at this moment the Song Writer has laurels in his hair and wreaths on his shoulders. He is the innocent bystander on whom woman, who is always looking for a change, has chosen to hang all her beautiful illusions.

But let him beware! For unless he gets a new theme or a new rhyme his reign will be short.

Just "me and we" and "you and true" and "baby and maybe" are NOT enough! Already women are beginning to yawn and squirm and to rush to tune off when they hear these coming over the air—these and "kiss and bliss" and "moon and June" and neat and sweet."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Tuberculosis War Shows Progress

It is a matter of great rejoicing that real progress has been made in the control of tuberculosis. A forward movement of still greater importance has now been started in co-operative research in tuberculosis. This has been undertaken to the end that knowledge of the means of its prevention and a more direct method of treatment may be obtained.

DR. COPELAND

This highly specialized and technical research is being carried on under the direction of the National Tuberculosis Association. Outstanding specialists, both men and women, in individual fields, are attacking the study under a carefully laid co-operative plan.

The work is being carried on in 21 different laboratories—such as the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research, Yale, Johns Hopkins, Vanderbilt University, University of Nebraska, University of Chicago, Cornell University and other medical centers.

Two phases of work are being undertaken. One is for social research and the other for medical research.

The germ responsible for tuberculosis is called the "tubercle germ, and unless there is a favorable soil for the nourishment of the germ, it cannot take root, or at least cannot thrive.

The presence of some of the most simple, ordinary illnesses, and a tendency to colds, may indicate a rundown condition of the system. A slight cough, which hangs on after a series of colds should be looked after by your doctor.

Undernourishment from lack of food, or from eating the wrong foods are other causes.

A distinguished physician who is a recognized authority on tuberculosis has said:

"There are six danger signals which should be watched for, especially in children:

"First — Persistent underweight. Children and thin people should be weighed frequently and sent for examination if they do not gain as fast as they should.

"Second—Unusual fatigue.

"Third — Any cough which lasts a month or more.

"Fourth—Any spitting of blood, no matter how slight; remember this may be the only symptom.

"Fifth—A recurrent tendency to colds or fevers. It is very dangerous to disregard what so many people consider "just a little cold," or feverishness.

"Sixth—A slight persistent cough.

"No single one of these danger signals should be ignored, and when two or more of them are present, it is especially important to consult a physician immediately. Remember, that good food, fresh air and plenty of rest will cure the disease in its early stages."

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Health is fashionable. The woman who sing-songs about her aches and pains is a tiresome companion. Health lights the fires in the human lamp. It keeps the lips red, the skin of good, clear color, the step alert and the brain keen. The woman who doesn't keep fit might as well stop chasing the beauty rainbow. She is out of the running.

Deep breathing exercises the lungs. It washes them free of stale air. Place the hands on the hips, lift the chest and go to it! Inhale slowly and deeply, exhale slowly and fully. One hundred deep breaths a day will improve the complexion wonderfully.

To make your hair grow thick have some amiable member of the family massage the back of your neck. It is there that the large arteries are; friction stimulates them to carrying building materials to the papillas in which the hair roots rest.

There are four avenues of elimination of body wastes, the skin, the lungs, the kidneys and the intestines. They should all do their work actively if health is to be tiptop, eyes bright, the skin clear and of beautiful textures, the brain alert and the step zippy. Drink plenty of water, eat plenty of fruit, breathe in plenty of fresh air, bathe daily, and avoid constipation.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Gentleman Lacking Gallantry

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please tell me which one of us is right? My husband and I frequently have a friendly argument over a certain point. When we dine out together he seems to think I should personally do the tipping and paying the checks. We both always carry money with us. It isn't the question of the money. He just thinks it is too small a thing for him to do if I am along. He gave me the money to tip a footman. I contend that he should do the tipping when we are together. If I am wrong please tell me.

DORIS.

Indeed, you are not wrong. Do, as graciously and as kindly as possible, try to persuade your husband that it is the manly thing for the man to do all of these gallantries. I should think that he would be very much embarrassed to have you attend to these details that are a man's job, a gentleman's privilege. Perhaps you might try not carrying money with you—wouldn't this help? And then try the "clinging vine" motif—be so alluringly dependent on his taking care of these details that he will find himself having a fine time caring for them! Don't talk much about it, and certainly don't argue; just let it appear that it is a matter of course. And I am sure that you will win out!

Significant of a Gentleman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I wonder if you would be so kind as to settle a slight argument between my husband and me? The question is: Should a man tip his hat to his wife, mother or sister when meeting them on a train or street? I feel that he should do so, but my husband disagrees.

L. B. B.

Yes, most assuredly he should. The man who does not do this is not a gentleman. Indeed, it is more important and significant that a man raise his hat to these sacred relationships than that he raise it to friends less close in relationship.

(And, by the way, it is best not to use the expression "tip the hat." Instead say "raise his hat" or "lift his hat" or "take off his hat.")

The Widow's Name

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Should a woman whose husband is dead use her own name or the name of her husband in social affairs?

2. Should her cards use her name, Mrs. Mary Smythe Allerton or the name of her husband, Anthony Henry Allerton?

READER.

1. A widow should use the same form of signature and name that she used when her husband was living. And it is very important for her socially to realize this.

2. Her visiting cards should read exactly the same as they read when her husband was living:

Mrs. Anthony Henry Allerton.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

She was an American girl in Cuba, young, beautiful and chaperoned.

(And there's an elastic word!)

The woman with her might have been her mother. My bet is that she wasn't. Each man with her was old enough to have been her father. The men wore gardenias and she wore orchids. The chaperone was almost as beautifully gowned as the girl, but more sedately.

One of the men was a nice old daddy, who had been, I fancy, a fine old sport in his day. The other, a race track type, with a harder face, was altogether proud of the girl and always sat closer to her than papa did, although she saw to it that neither of them got close enough to ruffle her chiffon. They were both rich, you can bet your last dollar on that.

The girl drank cocktails, but not too many. Trust her to keep her wits. I saw the four together many places, but never saw the girl give either of the men a straight look in the eyes. She didn't care, I'm sure, whether they drank coffee or hemlock. She didn't have much conversation for the chaperone, but they understood each other.

The last night in Havana, I saw them at the Casino playing roulette. The chaperone was watching carefully, sitting close beside the girl. The girl had before her a big stack of chips, and on her knee her purse—open. As fast as she got a high stack of chips she cashed them in and stuffed the twenty dollar bills in her purse, which was bulging shamelessly. Then her papas bought more chips. The hungriest purse I ever saw. And the best provider.

Once or twice I saw the older man give her a look which said: "Go it, greedy," but he hadn't youth to offer, he loved young company, and pretty girls with figures like that don't float around with dull old men for the thrills they get out of their society. In fact if she had looked at them oftener she probably wouldn't have stayed so long.

I wondered if the older woman was a tutor. I've heard of them. If she was a mother she certainly didn't raise her girl to be a slow-poke. I expect some day to see that girl's face on the front pages. And I'll know it by the frost in the eyes. A girl who couldn't be very mad about anything except being short changed.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, May 17.

This day is characterized by astrologers as one of mixed influences. Although those in the employment of others may push for promotion or preferment, and there is forecast of pleasure and happy personal contacts, there are also signs of friction, contention and duplicity, with new ventures in jeopardy. It would be well to be on guard against all manner of treachers, subtlety and litigation and to sign all writings with great care.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of flagrant contradictions. While there may be favors and advancement in employment, with pleasant personal relations, yet the year may not be free from strife or underhanded dealings or treacherous contacts. Precaution against fraud, misrepresentation and law is urged.

A child born on this day may have many excellent personal traits and social graces, yet it may be disposed to act rashly, impulsively and petulantly. It may be inclined to litigation and to obtain ends by sharp or subtle methods.

Grimes Deal Called Off. • Giants Get Old Jinx.
Braves Keep Ex-Buc. Derby Holds Appeal.
Swim Anniversary. Cagle Mars Record.

BOSTON'S PRICE TOO HIGH FOR CARDS

ACCORDING TO REPORTS from sources in close touch with the situation, the proposed deal for the transfer of Pitcher Burleigh Grimes from the Boston Braves to the St. Louis Cardinals is definitely and finally off. The negotiations started by the Redbird management for the acquisition of the former Pittsburgh spitballer have fallen as flat as a punctured tire, it is said, and unless one side or the other does a complete face-about, which is decidedly improbable, Grimes is destined to remain with the team to which he was sent by the Buccaneer bosses.

Burleigh Grimes

In trying to explain their failure to obtain the pitcher after creating the impression that the deal was as good as closed, the officials of the St. Louis club are telling their patrons that Boston's price was prohibitive. They claim to have made several offers in cash and players, but that when Boston made known its "best proposition" the demands in the matter of playing material were such that they could not be met; that the athletes named by the Braves were men with whom the Cardinals could not afford to part.

SO THE WHOLE thing is off and Pittsburgh fans are not at all surprised. They had an idea in the first place that when the local club shipped Grimes to Boston he was going there to stay, and recent reports that St. Louis was after him did not change that view. They felt sure that the Braves would not entertain any proposition except one of playing timber, and they were unable to see how the Cards could give up anything worth while in that line without weakening themselves in another department.

Besides, it was hard to understand why the St. Louis club, if it wanted Grimes so badly, had not made an effort to get him from Pittsburgh before he was shifted to Boston. The Cardinal chiefs seem still to be doing considerable faking along this line. They are repeating the assertion that they tried to make a deal with the Pirates for the spitballer, but the Pittsburgh club officials declare that they never heard a word from St. Louis when Grimes was on the block.

JOHN T. TAYLOR, secretary and treasurer of the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U., has received from Frank Blankley, of the Illinois A. C., national swimming chairman, the list of appropriations for the sending of swimmers to the men's and women's senior national championship meets, scheduled for July 2, 3, 4 and 5 at Long Beach, Cal.

John T. Taylor

There will be only one title entrant from this division and that entrant will be a girl, the sole appropriation for the Allegheny Mountain Association being one of $100 for the best girl swimmer, who will be determined later.

SPEAKING OF SWIMMING, yesterday marked the fortieth anniversary of indoor competition at that sport in Pittsburgh. The first indoor swimming pool in this city, the Natatorium in Duquesne way, was opened on May 15, 1890. Manager Fred Goodwin, Maj. W. G. McCandless, John Walker and Wharton McKnight were the men who gave Pittsburgh its first swimming institution. During the day the Natatorium was visited by thousands of citizens, and at night a number of races were put on, in which local swimmers competed indoors for the first time in their careers.

FAR FROM CORNERING the National League's remaining spitball talent by adding Grimes to their roster, as they planned, the Cardinals have parted with the moist-ball specialist to whom they already held title in trading Southpaw Clarence Mitchell to the Giants for Ralph Judd, young right-hand pitcher.

The deal isn't likely to cause any marked change in the betting on the National League pennant race. Mitchell is 40 years old and probably not far from the end of his string. Though this is Judd's second year in the big show he never has started a game. He took part in 18 contests for New York last year and in two this season, but always as a relief hurler.

THE GIANTS MAY have made the trade partly in self-defense, as Mitchell always has been a thorn in the side of John McGraw's club. In the last five years he has beaten the Gothamites something like 15 times in 22 games.

Clarence Mitchell

There is also to be seen in the trade an expansion of McGraw's plan to try to win the 1930 pennant with left-hand pitching. Like the Pirates, the Giants now have four southpaw flingers in Walker, Hubbell, Pruett and Mitchell.

THE FACT THAT the class of the Kentucky Derby's starting field as a whole for 1930 will fall below the standard of recent years has not lessened the appeal that the big turf event holds for the public, and the classic will be followed with as much interest as ever in its fifty-sixth annual running at Churchill Downs tomorrow afternoon. The coming of Lord Derby, the possibility that Gallant Fox may be the second horse ever to win both the Preakness and the Derby, and the chance that Earl Sande may equal Isaac Murphy's old record by piloting the winner for the third time have done much to restore whatever attractiveness may have been lost in other directions, and there is every assurance that the race will be run before one of the greatest and most colorful crowds in America's sport history.

J. L. FORBES writes from New Martinsville, W. Va., announcing the death there of William E. Culp, Jr., for many years a leading Pirate rooter in his home section. His interest in the Pittsburgh team dated back 22 years, when he was a student at Carnegie Tech.

Mr. Culp and Dr. William L. Marks, of the Carnegie football coaching staff, were close friends. While the Pirates were in San Antonio, Tex., on their practice trip last year, with Dr. Marks in the party as club physician, Mr. Culp joined the touring athletes and spent several days with them.

CHRISTIAN KEENER CAGLE, former West Point football, baseball and track star, did nothing criminal in trying to break his Army ties at graduation in order to accept a coaching job, nor in getting married secretly in 1928 in violation of the Academy rules, but his actions have marred his sport record and hurt the cause of the military school in its athletic eligibility dispute with the Navy.

Red knew the rules forbade marriage and he knew that he was

MISS FISHWICK WINS BRITISH GOLF TITLE

By F. A. WRAY,
International News Service.

FORMBY, Eng., May 16.—Many a slip twixt cup and lip——.

Blue-eyed, flaxen Diana Fishwick, an obscure 19-year-old schoolgirl, is the champion woman golfer of her motherland today, not the world-famous Glenna Collett, of America. Little Miss Fishwick won in the final round of the British championship this afternoon by the score of 4 up and 3 to play, while Glenna, no longer the assured, confident champion who wiped out the great Enid Wilson and the greater Molly Gourlay on successive days, was giving the performance of a neophyte.

Thus, for the second year in succession, the cup was at the fair American's lips but, just as in the 1929 final round with Joyce Wethered, the potion she quaffed was no better than the dregs. The nectar of victory had been claimed by another.

GLENNA OFF GAME

Her defeat was the most disastrous she has sustained since coming to international prominence almost 10 years ago. Apparently feeling the reaction of her bitter matches with the two ranking stars of England golf, Glenna played as poor a round of golf as she has shown in recent years, taking an 86 this morning to be 5 down to an inexperienced juvenile, of whom even the most sanguine in the pro-British gallery had had no great illusions.

Miss Fishwick, in fact, had been quoted at 1 to 5 when she started out with the American this morning, but rapidly claimed the spotlight as she played steady, if not inspired golf, to take advantage of Miss Collett's mistakes which were many and sometimes glaring. She was generally weak with her irons and, on the few occasions when her pitches obeyed her will, her putting came forward to betray it. Twice she missed three footers and once a two-footer. In all, she won only six holes of the 33 played.

Many of the others were halved, but Miss Fishwick, shooting a 41-39—80 for the morning round, won enough of them on the incoming nine to be 3 up at the luncheon interval, an almost impregnable position. Of the last nine holes played, she had won four and Glenna none at all.

VICTOR CHEERED

So the obscure Miss Fishwick, about to succeed where the more illustrious Molly and Enid had failed, promptly became the darling of the gallery, which, scenting the sensational triumph to come, followed avidly in her wake throughout the afternoon round and gave her an ovation when finally she brought the match to a close on the thirty-third green.

By this time, and in fact throughout the last half of the round, Glenna had reclaimed much of her lost touch. She went to the turn in 37, one over par. But so did Miss Fishwick, in consequence of which the American's bid came too late.

Last year she played great golf only to lose to a great champion. This time she played mediocre

PIE TO LEAVE BALTIMORE TONIGHT

BULLETIN.

The final game of the Pirates-Phillies series scheduled at Forbes Field today was called off early this afternoon because of wet grounds.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Fresh troops to revive the skidding Pirates are expected in town tomorrow. Capt. Pie Traynor will be discharged from the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, tonight, and Shortstop Ben Sankey of the Wichita Western League club is due in Pittsburgh tomorrow.

Traynor is expected to come to Pittsburgh at once, and according to reports from Baltimore, his condition is such that he will soon be able to play. Provided Pie arrived here tomorrow it would not be surprising to see him in a uniform in the afternoon workout.

SANKEY IN SHAPE

Sankey is in splendid condition after almost a month of play in the Western circuit. Ben may not be able to "bust" in on the Pirate lineup, but his presence in the dugout will give Manager Ens a feeling of comfort. With Stuart Clarke out with a bad ankle, the Bucos had no reservist for infield duty.

Another favorable sign for the Pirates is seen in Paul Waner who lost several days on account of an injured left hip. Paul still limps when he runs, but he thinks he will be sound in a few days.

The condition of Lloyd Waner is reported as satisfactory. Also a patient at Baltimore, Lloyd is said to be regaining his health. One week ago he had his tonsils and adenoids removed. The specialist in charge of his case wishes him to remain at the hospital at least for one more week.

George Grantham's sore right shoulder has responded to treatment. Fear was expressed that Grantham might be out for an indefinite period after hurting his arm in a quick throw last Tuesday, but George is likely to remain on the job.

MEINE READY TO START

Skipper Ens also is delighted to know that Pitcher Heinie Meine is now able to start a ball game. The St. Louis Dutchman was the victim of throat touble that took him out of action on opening day

YANKS RETAIN WALKER CUP

By HARRY R. FLORY,
International News Service.

SANDWICH, England, May 16.—Giving Britain's finest golfers the worst trouncing ever received on British soil, America today retained the Walker Cup by the overwhelming score of 10 matches to 2.

It was the second worst rout in the eight years' history of international play for the famous trophy. Only once before were the British so completely overwhelmed, and that was at Chicago in 1928, when America won 11 matches and Britain a single one.

The American team was carried to its overwhelming victory by the unbeatable performance of its leader, Bobby Jones. Starting out this morning with a spectacular 70, five under par, for the first round, the Atlanta wizard spurred his teammates to a series of individual triumphs that included two sensational recoveries by Americans after being down to their British opponents at the end of the morning round.

America lost only one singles match today. The other of the two British victories came in the foursomes yesterday. Results of today's matches follow:

Bobby Jones defeated Roger Wethered, 9 and 8.

Harrison Johnston defeated Cyril Tolley, 5 and 4.

George Voigt defeated Sir Ernest Holderness, 10 and 8.

George Von Elm defeated Rex Hartley, 3 and 2.

Roland MacKenzie defeated William Campbell, 6 and 5.

Dr. O. F. Willing defeated J. N. Smith, 2 and 1.

Don K. Moe defeated A. J. Stout, 1 up, 36 holes.

Francis Ouimet lost to T. A. Torrance, 7 and 6.

Moe had a sensational medal score for his afternoon round, getting an approximate 67 for the 18 holes. He holed all putts except at the fifteenth and eigh-

LONDON, May 16.—(INS.)—The Japanese Davis Cup tennis team advanced to the third round of play in the elimination matches in the European zone today by defeating India, 3-0.

Two singles matches remain to be played tomorrow, but their outcome will have no bearing on the series result.

FARRELL LAUDS MISS COLLETT

JOHNNY GRIEVED AT DEFEAT OF GLENNA

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

Johnny Farrell, former national open champion and the best-dressed golfer in America, who is giving a series of golf lectures and exhibitions at Joseph Horne's here today, was grieved to learn of the defeat of Glenna Collett national champion 4 and 3, at the hands of Diana Fishwick of England in the final of the British women's championship.

GREATEST IN AMERICA

"Glenna Collett has proved herself the greatest woman golfer in America," Farrell said. "and I believe her to be the greatest woman golfer in the world excepting only Joyce Wethered. The American women made a gallant fight, especially after playing so soon after leaving the ship, in the International matches, and their showing in the British women's championship has been great. It grieves me to learn that Miss Collett again has been put out in the final. After her experience in the same tournament last year, and her victory over Molly Gourley, the British champion, the other day, I was pulling for her to come through."

Big crowds gathered all day in the sporting goods department of Horne's to hear Farrell discourse on the use of clubs and golf in general. He emphasized in his talks the importance of using the proper clubs and advised all novices to approach a professional on the matter.

HONORED AT LUNCHEON

Farrell's appearance was interrupted at 1:30 when he was the honor guest at a dinner in his honor with fellow professionals from Western Pennsylvania as guests. Vance Smith of the Aleoma Country Club was host.

Three tournaments are being played over district courses today, the women inaugurating their team matches at the Pittsburgh Field Club, Aleoma playing Kiski in a team match at Kiski and officials of Carnegie Steel playing at Edgewood.

Saturday golf play at clubs throughout the district will reach its height tomorrow, a number of clubs beginning their weekly tournaments on that day, including Oakmont.

McKEESPORT HIGH COPS

The interscholastic golf season was inaugurated at the Youghiogheny Country Club yesterday afternoon when McKeesport High School's team humped Taylor Allerdice High, 16 to 1. Slocum was the only man on the Allerdice team able to score a point for his side. The summary:

LANDIS WARNS CASEY STENGEL

CHICAGO, May 16.—(AP.)—Casey Stengel, stormy pilot of the Toledo Club, of the American Association, has been advised by Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis to control his temper when disputing decisions with umpires.

Stengel, who used to hit long ones for the New York Giants, was brought before Commissioner Landis yesterday to explain why he was charged with inciting a near riot during the Toledo-Milwaukee game last month. Umpire Joe Rue, who was rescued from angry fans after much difficulty told his side of the story and the commissioner suspended Stengel and then took the case under advisement.

A heavy fine and possible banishment faces Stengel, who was benched for three days after the trouble. He was warned several times last year by President Thomas J. Hickey of the circuit for umpire baiting.

By TOM BIRKS.

A perfectly good sandlot card was rained out last evening, and it seems as if Jupiter Pluvius is trying to make up for that wonderful run of sunshine last week. Let us hope, however, that the sandlots will be dried out this evening because some of the managers, with only one playing night, are going to find it tough getting these postponed games played off.

The Commercial and Industrial League holds the limelight this evening. The B. & O. nine will travel to Isabella Furnaces to hook up with Carnegie Steel. This game will be another real test for the Hazelwood aggregation. Manager Stewart has Engleman primed for the battle, and it is expected that Frank Rush and his strategy board again will send Turek to the mound.

HORNES FACE TEST

The other game finds the Joseph Horne team clashing with Reliance Life at Carrick Park. Reliance is showing wonderful form; Gormley and Spencer are tight with their bingles and few teams have been able to score on the Insurance entry.

Two games will be played in the Steel City circuit. St. Joachims meets the Clover Club at Lawrence Park, and Lincoln Place plays Young Men's Star Circle at Sullivan Field.

The ever popular Homestead Grays will meet Jimmy Smith's Allegheny-Kiski All-Stars at New Kensington. Fans still are hoping to see the upriver league stars stop Posey's outfit, and the game at Parnassus High School field this evening should attract a large crowd.

CIVICS PLAY SMITHS

The City League will flash two games. Stowe Civics will travel to Magee Field to meet the Jimmy Smith Club. "Pop" Geer has his club functioning in good shape despite the fact that his home grounds are not ready to play on. Gardner probably will start the game, opposing George McFarland.

The other battle will find the champions from Pleasant Valley clashing with J. L. Thomas at Wilson avenue.

The battle of Homestead will be staged in the Greater Pittsburgh League when the Aces hook up with the Stephens Club.

In the Philadelphia Company League, Bylleshy will clash with the Duquesne Light nine. In the Crafton-Ingram Church League, St. Phillip's meets the Presbyterians.

Verona plays Dormont at Dormont in a West Penn League battle.

Independent games include Book Shoe vs. Crawfords at Ammon Field, Allegheny Collegians at Homewood and Brown Stars vs. North Side Civics at Edgar Thomson Park, Braddock.

DIXIE DAVIS SOLD

KANSAS CITY, May 16.—(AP.)—Dixie Davis, veteran right-handed pitcher of the Kansas City Blues, has been sold outright to the Chattanooga club of the Southern Association. Davis had been with the American Association team the last four seasons. His sale to-day was the first step in cutting down the club prior to the June 1 deadline.

ART GETS MEDAL

PHILADELPHIA, May 16.—Art Shires, of the White Sox, told the Poor Richard Club at a luncheon here yesterday how he "put himself over" and was awarded a medal.

C. HARRIS ROY TINCANNON TURNER HUGHES

Giving promise of rivaling the Homestead Grays as a formidable opponent for all of the leading league and independent teams in this section, the Crawford A. C., Negro team, of the Hill district, has got off to a fine start this season, winning its first six games. This evening it meets the Book Shoe team, City League leader, at Ammon Field, where it plays every Tuesday and Friday.

MISS COLLETT LOSES

golf where even reasonably sound play might have prevailed against a finalist as inexperienced as Diana. Not that the latter wasn't sound herself. She played good, fighting golf all the way, but it was the kind of golf that might have lacked some of its inspiration if it hadn't received the added assurance of seeing the favorite go so far wrong, hole after hole.

MISS COLLETT RALLIES

Diana's confidence stood her in good stead in the afternoon, for Glenna was good during this round as, desperately, she tried to fly in the face of the inevitable. But, in spite of everything, she was 6 down at the twenty-fourth and 5 down at the twenty-seventh and, by that time, she knew the end was near. Yet she never stopped fighting and, with two wins on the next five holes, was just 3 down at the thirty-second. She had to get better than a half at the next in order to stay in the fight. Instead, she lost the hole and, with it, the match and title. The cards:

A gallery of 5,000 saw the finish of the match and shortly after the cup, almost as big as Miss Fishwick, was presented. Miss Collett was presented the runner up cup.

Miss Collett had no excuses, saying she simply could not get going to beat the English girl's steady game.

Willie Hunter Loses In Coast Tourney

LOS ANGELES, May 16.—(AP.)—Willie Hunter, of Montebello, went the way of a number of other favorites in the Pacific Southwest P. G. A. golf championship when little Vic D'Alberto, Los Angeles professional, turned in a surprising 1 up victory over the former British amateur champion in the semi-final round yesterday.

teenth holes. He went out in 33 strokes and covered the last nine holes in 34, with two putts conceded.

The medal score record for Sandwich is 68, held by Leo Diegel, but Moe's amazing figure today can not displace that.

Bobby Jones was brief in his comment after the victory

"We are happy to have won," he said.

All the other members of the team were particularly enthusiastic over the great victory of Moe, the baby of the team and all congratulated him enthusiastically.

The news of Glenna Collett's defeat at Formby was a blow to the American camp and the Walker cup players seemed surprised and more downcast over her loss than elated over their victory at Sandwich.

Layton May Make Tour of Japan

CHICAGO, May 16.—(AP.)—Johnny Layton, world's three cushion billiard champion, may make an exhibition tour of Japan in July and August.

He has received an invitation to make the tour with Kinrey Matsuyama, Japanese cue ace, and if the terms are satisfactory he plans to accept.

Welker Cochran, former 18.2 balkline champion, visited Japan two years ago.

TIGERS' FIRST LOSS

When Louisiana State's track and field team lost to Mississippi A. M. it was the Tigers' first conference defeat in seven years.

EASTERN CLUBS LAND HONORS IN A. L.

Associated Press.

Although two rainy days at the finish did some serious damage to the schedule of the first intersectional series of the 1930 American League season, the results of the past two weeks have given ample proof of a clear margin for the Eastern clubs over their Western rivals.

Starting May 1, the American League clubs played 49 games and the East's representatives won 32 of them, winding up with Washington's 4 to 2 triumph over the Cleveland Indians in the only American League game which escaped rainy and cold weather.

The Senators put themselves above the .500 mark for the intersectional play by that final victory. They won seven games and lost six.

MACKS WIN

The Philadelphia Athletics, champions and league leaders, made the best showing of the intersectional play. They won 11 games and lost but two, one each to Cleveland and St. Louis. The New York Yankees won eight and lost three. Washington came in third while the Boston Red Sox, lowest of the eastern clubs, tied with Cleveland, highest of the western, with six victories and as many defeats. St. Louis, Detroit and Chicago followed in order in the intersectional standing.

The National League, with the completion of its first intersectional series scheduled for today, also got in only one game yesterday, that one was a wild hitting thriller in which the Boston Braves edged out the Chicago Cubs, 10 to 8.

GRIMES WINS FIRST

Burleigh Grimes, former Nemesis to the Cubs, gave away two runs at the start and the Braves did not catch up until the fifth inning when Lance Richbourg hit a home run with the bases full. Chicago scored three more runs in the next inning and Boston squared that account an inning later.

Rogers Hornsby's home run gave the Cubs another trio and almost won the game in the eighth but Sheriff Blake, fifth of the Chicago pitchers, came away three more runs and the final inning. Grimes, yielding 13 hits, pitched all but the last inning.

CARDS TRADE MITCHELL TO GIANTS

ST. LOUIS, May 16.—(AP.)—Clarence Mitchell, only lefthander spitball pitcher in the major leagues, was traded yesterday by the St. Louis Cardinals to the New York Giants for Ralph Judd, young right hander.

The trade, as Manager McGraw explained it, was something of a defensive move, as Mitchell's peculiar delivery has caused frequent trouble, but McGraw also said he believed Mitchell's experience would be more useful to his team at present than a promising young pitcher who lacked experience.

Well, I s'pose you heard that I hit a homer while the Phillies was here. The Phils was 17 runs ahead when Eas says go in there and see what you can do. LONGUS DRAWS RAIL POST FOR DERBY

OWNERS NAME 16 STARS TO GO

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 16.—(INS.)—Longus, of the R. C. Stable, will have the rail when the field goes to the post in the Kentucky Derby here tomorrow.

In the draw made today Gallant Fox, the favorite, drew the seventh position from the rail. Tannery, the second choice, drew the thirteenth position in the field of 16 possible starters that were named to go by their owners.

The 15 colts entered will carry 126 pounds each and Alcibiades, the only filly entered, will carry 121 pounds. The field of 16 will be the smallest in three years. There were 22 entered in 1928 and 21 last year.

The odds are all in favor of Gallant Fox, which will race in the colors of the Belair stud, owned by William Woodward, of New York. It has long been a tradition that anything can happen in a horse race, especially the Derby, but the Eastern colt was backed down today 7 to 5 by an influx of financial support and looked upon generally as the class of the field, with the possible exception of Tannery, strapping chestnut son of Ballot and owned by Edward F. Pritchard, of Paris, Ky.

one month ago. The sickness left Heinie weak, but in the intervening period he has regained his health.

Ens also looks to Steve Swetonic for valued assistance. In some respects, the Native Son is the most consistent member of the staff.

Ens is confident that the worst fortunes of the club for the season are over. He looks for improvement all along the line and in the event of an early return of Traynor and L. Waner, Jewel expects to keep his entry in the thick of the fight.

Two successive postponements with the Phillies came as a relief to the Freebooters this week. The games of Wednesday and yesterday were canceled on account of rain. They will be staged at Forbes Field as part of doubleheaders, the first on June 28 and the second on August 12.

DINNER AT TECH

THE SECOND annual sports dinner given by the athletic council of Carnegie Tech in honor of the various sport teams of the school will be held next Thursday evening.

Sport Vignettes

The Kentucky Derby at Louisville tomorrow will be the fifty-fifth renewal of the blue ribbon event of American turfdom . . . . The fixture was inaugurated in 1875, when Aristides was the winner in a field of 15. . . . Until 1896, it was run at a mile and half and since then the distance has been a mile and a quarter. . . . The best time for a mile and a half was 2 minutes 34½ seconds and the worst 2 minutes 52½ seconds. . . . The best time over the modern derby route was 2 minutes 2 3-5 seconds, set by Old Rosebud, in 1914, while the worst time, 2:15 1-5, was turned in by Stonestreet, the winner in 1908. . . . Clyde Van Dusen, a Man o' War colt, won last year in 2:10 4-5, with Naishapur second and Panchio third. . . . Earl Sande, who will ride the favorite, Gallant Fox, also winner of the Preakness a week ago, has won twice before, on Zev, in 1923, and on Flying Ebony, in 1925. . . . It is not generally known, but Jack Sharkey figures Max Schmeling's layoff of almost a year will be one of the biggest factors in his own favor when they meet in New York, June 12, with the world heavyweight title at stake. . . . Toots Mondt, former star wrestler, now is managing Dick Shikat, the German, who is recognized in Pennsylvania and New York as the world champion and will defend that "title" against Jim Londos, the Greek Apollo, in Philadelphia, June 9. . . . Pittsburgh friends will be glad to learn that George Engel, former local manager of fighters, including Frank Klaus and Harry Greb, both champions, who has been seriously ill in New York, now is almost fully recovered and is back on the job again. . . . He is managing Freddie Anderson, Norwegian lightweight, whom he would like to show here. . . . He also has Jack Roper, brother of old Cap'n Bob Roper, and has leased the services of Jack to Jack Sharkey to help the Gob get in shape for his Schmeling match. . . . Bobby Jones, Glenna Collett and Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, American champions now campaigning abroad, have won no less than 28 national titles among them, which gives some idea of the tough test they furnish for their European rivals. . . . Johnny Risko, who has boxed 'em both, picks Jack Sharkey to knock out Max Schmeling, although Maxie stopped him in their only meeting, while Johnny scored over Sharkey. . . . Risko says he was winning easily until Schmeling clipped him with a lucky punch and the referee stopped their bout with only one round to go. . . . Vice Chancellor William P. Graham, of Syracuse University, avers that colleges do not need strong athletic teams to keep them in the limelight, pointing out that 35,000 persons attended a recent educational exposition held at Syracuse. . . . Wonder if such an expo could pack 'em in every week-end or maintain sufficient interest to make good reading day after day over an extended period in the daily gazettes? . . . . The Mid-Atlantic League is all het up over a so-called "turtle ball" that has supplanted the old "rabbit ball" in the loop to the extent that there is little heavy hitting. . . . The pitchers complain the cover is so thick that they can not pitch curves with it, the infielders say it does not "hop" naturally and the batters contend that it is dead, dropping off their bats like so much lead. Quite a ball, quite a ball. . . . And why not drop some of them into the big leagues for a change?—HARRY KECK.

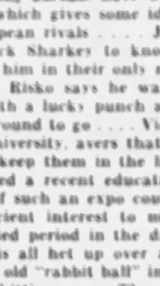
GEORGE NABHOLTZ, JR.,

Five Points (O.) Country Club.

Just drop around Sharon, Pa., and start talking golf with the first person you meet and before five minutes have elapsed he'll be telling you about the family of Nabholtz. Mr. and Mrs. George Nabholtz have many sons and daughters and nearly every one of them is connected with golf. George, Jr., is the latest to enter the professional field. He is in charge of the Five Points (O.) Geo. Nabholtz, Jr.



public links—just around the corner from Sharon, five miles away, and near the mythical Ohio-Pennsylvania state line. George is only out of high school, having graduated from Sharon in 1926, but he is old in experience. When only a lad he spent a summer with his brother, the renowned Larry Nabholtz, then pro at Lima, O., and there he picked up many tricks. He also followed his brother to Cleveland and Houston, Tex., and later was with Bob Randall, another Sharon boy, at Elyria, O. In 1928 he worked for Nelson Zimmerman at the Wildwood Country Club here—and now he's got his own berth. Last summer Nabholtz won his only title—the Buhl Farm public links crown at Sharon, after which he succeeded his brother, Henry, as professional there. He is playing a great game, as his recent 71 at Cambridge Springs testifies, and a great future is predicted for him.—VERN SWARTSFAGER.

Derby, Confined To Bed With Cold

LEXINGTON, Ky., May 16.—(AP.)—Lord Derby remained in bed, nursing his cold today, awaiting the arrival of a physician to determine whether he should carry out his program for the afternoon. It included a luncheon at the home of former United States Senator John N. Camden and his departure for Louisville, for a dinner in his honor tonight.

At Elmendorf farm near here, home of Joseph A. Widener, the English earl's host, it was said that Lord Derby "was not being disturbed" pending arrival of the physician. Hope had been expressed, however, that the cold and sore throat would yield to treatment and enable him to see something of the Blue Grass Stock Farms today, before leaving for Louisville to attend the Kentucky Derby tomorrow.

FANS TO SEE VIC BURRONE SUNDAY

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Vic Burrone, the New York featherweight, who meets Battling Battalino, world featherweight champion, in the 10-round main bout of the postponed opening show of the Myers Bowl outdoor arena in North Braddock next Monday night, is sore. Since his arrival here yesterday morning to learn that the battle had been set back on account of rain, Vic has been hearing reports that some of the local fans do not regard him highly as an opponent for the titleholder, and he is going to work out in public until Sunday to convince these skeptics to the contrary. His manager, Andy Crowley, is making arrangements to have the veteran show his wares in a downtown gym.

Vic Burrone

Battalino meanwhile will continue his training stunts at the Young Men's Hebrew Association in Oakland. He is stopping at the Schenley Hotel with his manager, Pete Reilly.

The club originally planned to run its show tonight, in the event of rain last night, but consulted with the weather bureau and discovered that continued rain was to be looked for today and decided not to take a chance but to put off the show long enough to get a break on the weather and at the same time enable the boxers to get on a new edge for the battle.

The shifting of the Bowl fight to next week provides two big outdoor shows for this district within four nights, the George Panka-Knute Hansen show being on for Hickey Park, Millvale, next Thursday night.

Between Rounds

Sammy Harris, of Akron, says the promoters will have to look no further if they want an opponent for Ken Hargraves, of New Kensington. He is ready to take on Ken any time to break in here, and he has a fine record.

Two world champions appear in action in bouts tonight. Midget Wolgast, recently-crowned flyweight ruler, defends his title against Willie LaMorte, of Jersey City, over the 15-round route in Madison Square Garden, New York, while Mickey Walker, the welterweight champion, meets Paul Swiderski, of Syracuse, in a 10-round nothing match as the Derby eve feature at Louisville. Al Foy, of Charleroi, boxes Frankie Wine, Montana heavyweight, in the 10-round semi-final to the latter bat. Sammy Dorfman bates Eddie Guida and Archie Bell takes on Tomasino Bartolomeo in 10-round preliminaries to the Wolgast-LaMorte bout. Swiderski, who lives in Pauline Uzcudun at Wichita, Kas., Monday night.

Joey Goodman, of Cleveland, boxes Frank Lindhardt, of Buffalo, in a 10-round windup at Erie tonight. Young Corbett meets Andy Divilli in San Francisco. Tommy Paul is in with Tonny Monteral at Providence and Jimmy Braddock meets Charley Belanger at Toronto.

Johnny Judith and Patsy Ito have been matched to box the main bout of an open-air show at Allentown, Pa., June 16.

The Twenty-seventh Ward A. C. will stage its first open-air amateur boxing show of the season next Wednesday night. Its arena is located at California and Spencer avenues, North side.

MAX GRANTED LICENSE

NEW YORK, May 16.—(INS.)—The New York Boxing Commission today approved Max Schmeling's application for a license to fight in this state.

The commission's action was taken following a telephone call from the German fighter from his training camp at Endicott, N. Y., in which he said he had accepted the terms of the contract offered him by Madison Square Garden.

The commission's approval of Max's application restores him to good graces in this state and makes him eligible to meet Jack Sharkey for the heavyweight championship of the world for the benefit of the Milk Fund at the Yankee Stadium, June 12.

TEAMS ON EDGE FOR BIG FOUR CARNIVAL

By JESS CARVER.

Placidly unconcerned as the sport pyrotechnics set off by the Kentucky Derby, the Walker Cup matches, the opening of the American zone Davis Cup play and the bombardment of the Forbes Field fences by the Phillie whizz by their classic ears, track and field stars of the Big Four, Pitt, Tech, West Virginia and Wash.-Jeff. are putting the finishing touches on their forms and figgers in preparation for the annual Big Four meet at Morgantown tomorrow.

West Virginia will be defending its championship, and unless the dope bucket is kicked far, wide and handsome by the Panthers will have little trouble in retaining the laurels it has held for the past two years.

Four holders of Big Four records will compete in tomorrow's meet, all of 'em being members of the Panther squad. These champions are Pete Bowen, 220 and 440-yard dashes; Caesar, two-mile; Ed Knoblock, high hurdles and Everett Utterback, high and broad jumps.

While the collegians are a'chasing about at Morgantown, the W. P. I. A. L. track and field squads will compete in the annual championship meet in the Pitt Stadium.

In a dual meet, Duquesne's track team will entertain the Bisons of Bethany at Schenley Oval.

The West Virginia State scholastic championship meet preliminaries are carded for today, with the finals tomorrow.

Nick Altrock Says:

By NICK ALTROCK.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—I see the magnates are still sticking to their statement that the 1930 baseball is the same as it always was. Well, all I've got to say is if this year's ball is made out of horsehide, they skinned Zev and Man o' War to get the covers and then they stuffed it with eagle's feathers. The way the balls come at you in the infield, you might as well be playing in No Man's Land. But from the way everybody is whacking out homers, but Babe Ruth, I think they must be ringing in croquet balls on the Rambino.

U. S., CANADA RESUME CUP PLAY TODAY

PHILADELPHIA, May 16.—(AP.)—As a result of a thunder shower which halted play yesterday when Johnny Van Ryn, of East Orange, N. J., stood within two points of victory over Dr. Jack Wright, the Canadian captain, a bargain bill of three Davis cup matches was on the program for today.

First on the schedule was the interrupted match between Van Ryn and Wright, with Van Ryn leading by a score 6-2, 6-2, 3-6, 5-2 and deuce on his own service, he had a chance to settle the issue in something less than half a minute. Two winning strokes in succession would turn the trick.

The second singles match between the United States team's No. 1 man, George Lott, of Chicago, and Marcel Rainville, of Montreal, was not even begun yesterday because of the downpour which drenched the clay surface. The regularly scheduled doubles engagement between Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Texas, and the Canadian combination of Willard Crocker winds up the afternoon.

MANFIELD of London has an International reputation for making a Lightweight shoe that will W-E-A-R and stand up and take punishment like a Heavyweight.

We wanted to find out his secret of taking the Weight out of the sole, without taking out the Wear,—and just how Manfield kept a light calfskin upper leather from "running over the sole" of a close trimmed edge.

Our Representative actually spent days beside the old EnglishBootmaker carefully watching every detail of Featherweight construction — and this is what he learned.

A piece of English Kip leather is sewed in along either side of the shoe between the OUTSIDE Upper Leather and the INSIDE cloth Toe Lining. These invisible side stays act like the outside wing tip of a heavy brogue and preserve the original shape of the Featherweight.

We were given the secret chemical formula that Manfield uses to treat his outersoles, rendering them as flexible as a house slipper, at the same time filling in the pores of the leather and thereby actually increasing wear.

The solid leather heels are hollowed out and wooden pegged to remove weight where there is no wear. We made note of the special flexed solid leather innersoles that will not buckle or chafe the soles of your feet.

And we purchased 44 pairs of Manfield's original Featherweights for 4 Guineas ($20.16) per pair, so that we could show you today, side by side, one of Manfield's $20.16 originals with the $6.60 Regal Reproduction in every Regal store.

In the Regal Reproduction, we have carefully copied every detail of the original English Featherweight. Inside and outside, top and bottom, the two shoes are exactly the same, except that Manfield's $20.16 original is made by Hand in England, while the $6.60 Regal Reproduction is made in our own Factory in America.

SCHOOL NINES FACE TESTS

W. P. I. A. L., CITY LEAGUE IN ACTION

Schenley and Oliver, leaders of their respective sections in the City League, continue their efforts to sew up the division baseball titles in the circuit this afternoon, both engaging in second contest contests. Two games are listed for each section of the City League.

The W. P. I. A. L. will stage a pair of postponed contests, which will aid in determining the champions in two sections of the league.

In Section I, of the City League, Schenley takes on Vocational at Malone Field and Westinghouse meets Ralston. Schenley figures to take Vocational with ease. The Ralston-Westinghouse contest may go either way.

Oliver may have trouble in turning back South Hills in Section II, but the undefeated North Side nine rules a favorite. In a second game, Carrick takes on Langley.

The Junior division finds Baxter meeting Gladstone and Liberty playing Peabody in Section I and Overbrook and Latimer clashing in Section II.

In the W. P. I. A. L., Crafton engages Mt. Lebanon in the play-off game in Section III, with Crafton needing a victory to stay at the top of the section ranking. In Section IV, Stowe meets Aliquippa in a game that was rained out earlier in the season and that will have a direct bearing on the championship race in the section.

Cavalry to Face Artillery Poloists

The Three Hundred and Eighth Cavalry polo team meets the Field Artillery team in a return game tomorrow night at Hunt Armory. Although the Cavalry team is as yet undefeated, the Artillery has high hopes of evening the score.

Since two of the Cavalry players are on the injured list and may be out of the game tomorrow, the chances are good for an Artillery victory. Maj. A. H. Truxes is laid up with a broken thumb, injured in the game between the Artillery and the Pittsburgh Polo Club, and Lieut. Steve Madden suffered an injured hand in practice Wednesday night.

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUCS

By THE BENCHWARMER.

Well, folks I didn't get bawled out by Jule for talking golf in the clubhouse yesterday, but I guess he would have hopped on me if he was there when we was argying about the links and a lot of other things.

This bird Lefty O'Doul, that led the National League in battin' last year, must know a lot about playin' golf. I was talking to some of them Phils last night and they said Lefty went down there with Denny Southern, Chuck Klein and some friends and Lefty shot a 79 with somebody else's clubs. He's a southpaw golfer, too. Us lefthanders can do a lot of things that we never get credit for.

Well, I see where Burleigh Grimes shut out the Cubs, 10 to 8, and Poor Burleigh was gone before the game was over. He's havin' as hard time tryin' to win as some of our pitchers. I'll bet Mr. Spalding gets sore every time he picks up a paper and reads a knock about them lively balls. Some of these days they're gonna get a shipment of apples that will be so dead the pitchers 'll be workin' shutout games and then there'll be a lot of squawkin' about the teams not hittin'.

I didn't get out on the links yesterday. I had a little date with Mr. Dreyfuss, if you know what I mean. I went over to the front office in the afternoon and got the old pay check and I had it planted in the bank in less than fifteen minutes.

Long's Sport Comment

wrong in playing against teams that took it for granted the Army players were living up to their own regulations. Naturally other teams may suspect that if this rule is not being observed, the athletic eligibility of some Army stars may be open to question in other respects.

Red Cagle

NOR DID CAGLE put himself in a very good light by the statement he made in connection with his original announcement that he would resign at graduation time to take a band-selling and football coaching job offering "considerably more than the pay of a major general." He said that on a second lieutenant's pay of $125 a month, plus 60 cents a day ration allowance, he would have to "live for many years in a state of genteel poverty," adding that in justice to himself he felt that his best interests would lie in leaving the service. Cagle knew all those things when he entered West Point, and if he did not care to stay in the Army for four years after graduation, as he pledged himself to do, he could have saved the government the time and expense of training him. It wasn't a sporting act in that respect any more than it was in giving the public the impression that some of the boys at West Point are there only to play football. As an athlete Cagle won a place among the foremost, but he hasn't played the game.*

BASEMENT

CONSOLATION EVENT ADDED TO TOURNEY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The program of contesting for the forty-second annual Western Pennsylvania tennis championships, slated for the Stanton Heights courts the week of June 21, will include a men's singles consolation event. Addition of this feature, as well as that of a women's doubles bracket, was decided upon yesterday at a noonday conclave of the tournament committee. Both men's consolation singles and women's doubles are innovations in the modern annals of the West Penn affair and are certain to prove popular with district racqueters.

The consolation jousting will offer opportunity to younger and to less skilled players who encounter defeat in round one to continue in competition and thus to glean valuable experience, which under the old system would be lost to them.

MOVE COMMENDABLE

Inclusion of women's doubles is likewise a commendable move on the part of Chairman Seitz and his cohorts. The number of feminine net performers hereabouts has grown considerably the past couple of years and it is the aim of the committee, by billing women's singles, doubles and mixed doubles, to offer the fair sex full scope for exercise of its racquet talents.

It was announced late yesterday by Capt. Ed Seitz, of the new Alpha Kappa Psi squad, that the fraternity outfit is definitely entered in the P. T. A. Inter-Club League Section II race. Strangely enough, Alpha Kappa Psi, although a Pitt organization, will stage its home matches on the Duquesne University rectangles.

PITT REFUSED COURTS

Panther authorities, first appealed to for accomodations, refused to reserve courts for the alumni aggregation. Manager John D. Holahan of the Dukes was thereupon appealed to. Holahan placed the matter before the Hill athletic council, which has manifested keen tennis interest since the net sport was established as a varsity pastime on the Bluff in 1924, and consent to the Pittites' request was promptly and gratuitously forthcoming.

The P. T. A. schedule committee will meet today to draw up and ratify the bi-sectional loop cards. Delay upon this project has been caused by uncertainty as to the make-up of Section Two. Last doubt on this matter, however, has been dispelled by the assured withdrawal of Wilkinsburg and the entrance of Alpha Kappa Psi and Canonsburg to comprise a 10-team circuit.

GENERALS WIN OVER COLTS

Rain erased all but one of the four games scheduled in the Middle Atlantic League from the program yesterday. Included on the curtailed program was a double bill listed for Fairmont.

STOCK MARKET SURRENDERS TO APATHY

Trading Creeps Forward At Snail's Pace—Price Alterations Negligible

NEW YORK, May 16.—(AP.)—The stock market virtually surrendered itself to speculative apathy today, and Wall street was left to comb the business news and statistical studies coming to hand for signs of developments that might cause a market awakening. Trading crept forward at a snail's pace, and price changes were largely negligible, save in a few specialties.

One of the most encouraging statistical analysis making its appearance was the Annalist preliminary index of business activity for April, which, at 92.8, showed a sharp upturn from the 89.5 figure for March. The principal March-to-April gains were in freight car loadings, electric power production and cotton consumption. It was particularly notable that the month showed a greater than seasonal gain in the movement of manufactured goods. The Annalist stated, however, that present indications point to a smaller gain in general activity during May.

FOREIGN TRADE

The foreign trade figures appearing for April, were again unsatisfactory. Exports at $334,600,000 were the lowest of the year, and showed a drop in excess of $90,000,000 from April, 1929. Imports at $308,000,000 were approximately $26,000,000 above the low level of February, but were more than $100,000,000 below the same period a year ago.

Imports of gold, however, reached the large total of $65,539,000, and this has undoubtedly been an important factor in the current low credit rates.

As an indication of the abundant credit in this country, the treasury was able to sell its new offering of $100,000,000 in bills on a discount basis of 2.54 per cent, a record low rate for this form of treasury financing. Call money on the stock exchange held at 3 per cent, but time money showed an easier tone, with an abundance of 30-day funds available at 3 to 3¼ per cent.

REACH 1930 HIGHS

Warren Pipe and Fairbanks Morse rose moderately to new high ground for the year. Reynolds Metals sagged a little in the early trading, but was quickly supported when news tickers carried a report that it would soon announce the acquisition of another large maker of metallic foil. American Tobacco B appeared to have absorbed recent profit taking, and again surged up a few points.

Some of the rails attracted fair buying. Auburn Auto rallied 6 points, then lost its gain. Celotex rallied a like amount on dismissal of petition for a temporary receiver, but sagged again when it was learned that appointment of a permanent receiver is still to be argued. American Can, Coca Cola, Pan American B, United Aircraft, and American and Foreign Power were among issues making moderate progress.

National Supply broke to the year's minimum levels in belated response to report of first quarter earnings of only 40 cents, against $3.03 a share in the like period of last year. Vulcan Detinning also broke sharply on a poor first quarter report, and American Locomotive dropping to a new 1930 low in belated response to the halving of the dividend. Coppers and some of the motors were heavy.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, May 16.—Trading in curb stocks brightened in spots today as operators took advantage of the stimulus given sentiment by the $67,000,000 drop in brokers' loans and started pool operations here and there. The dealings retained their professional characteristics, however, and the general list moved narrowly.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded in (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

'Hoover Luck' Has Forsaken 'Hoodoo Hoover;' Tariff

By B. C. FORBES

THE UNITED STATES once again is arousing the ire of the rest of the world. This time it is the tariff.

The tariff, too, is adding to President Hoover's long list of bad breaks.

They are beginning to call him "Hoodoo Hoover."

THE DAY will come when men will look back upon tariff walls as spite fences. In a more advanced civilization tariffs will be regarded as childish, uneconomic, unjustifiable, anachronistic.

There never yet was a scientific tariff, because tariffs in themselves are essentially unscientific, bars to the free play of economic forces, theoretically indefensible.

But the world has not yet reached the stage where all tariff obstacles can be swept aside. Tariffs must still be tolerated.

THAT, HOWEVER, is no reason why our politicians should proceed to build tariff walls calculated to bring down upon the head of America the almost universal condemnation and ill-will of the whole world.

More than 30 countries, it has been announced, protest against the "limited revision"—save the mark!—our Washington politicians have been indulging in without rhyme or reason, one day blowing hot, the next day blowing cold, one day boosting a rate, the next day nullifying their own action.

CANDIDATE HOOVER proclaimed "Limited revision" for the benefit of agriculture. The kind of revision the tariff tinkerers have been jockeying has displeased our farmers more than it has pleased them. Several sops were thrown them, in the form of higher import levies on certain farm products, but tariff schemers saw to it that other schedules, many other schedules were raised, schedules not calculated to make our distressed farmers more prosperous, but to add seriously to their economic burdens.

Indeed, the "tariff relief" provided our agricultural population recalls the story of the lazy, boastful Negro on the lower Mississippi, who eked out an existence catching bullfrogs. One evening he "allowed" to his cronies that he had that day caught the biggest bullfrog in all the world. It weighed, he gravely assured them, a hundred and two pounds. Incredulous they insisted on going and weighing the frog.

They discovered the frog actually weighed two pounds and that the rest was bull.

That's pretty much the kind of "relief" our farmers are receiving from tariff manipulators.

THUS THE FIRST Hoover tariff has miserably failed to win popularity either at home or abroad.

WHAT CONSEQUENCES are threatened?

First, the fall elections are likely to have consequences unpleasant to the administration. The disintegration of our two-party system of government may be aggravated, making it impossible for the administration to function in a way calculated to inspire confidence and stability throughout the business and financial world.

Second, country after country is likely to institute retaliatory measures against this country and its foreign trade. Of course, the United States is perfectly entitled to alter its imposts as it sees fit, just as in any other country. But it is not the quintessence of statesmanship to incite hostility or boycotts of American goods abroad. Our foreign trade badly needs a boost rather than a serious blow.

LET US HOPE, for the sake of business, employment, prosperity that we will soon enter an era inspiring less reference to "Hoodoo Hoover" and more reference to old-time "Hoover Luck."

Refractory Companies Ignore Depression

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

MAKERS OF FIRE BRICK have shown an outstanding record among the depression proof companies. The refractory materials industry has shown an exceptional degree of stability during recent years and the leading organizations have been numbered among the few companies to report greater earnings in the first quarter of the present year than in the corresponding period of 1929.

The apparent disregard of the state of general business is explained by the fact that the large users of fire brick take advantage of dull periods to reline furnaces. In the busy times they make minor repairs and do relining jobs which cannot be delayed so that demand for the product is steady.

Two Leading Companies

TWO OF THE LEADING companies in this field are the Harbison-Walker Refractories Company and the General Refractories Company. Both firms reported for 1929 the greatest peace time earnings in their history.

Harbison showed net profit of $5,256,413 or $3.52 a share. This represented a gain of 19.1 per cent over 1928. General reported net profit of $2,553,123 which was equivalent to $8.51 a share. Net for the preceding year was $1,374,581 or $6.11 a share.

Both companies have carried the improvement in their sales and earnings into the present year. Harbison with first quarter profit of $1,436,000 or 96 cents a share on 1,440,000 shares exceeded profits of 89 cents a share in the final quarter of 1929 and of 79 cents in the first quarter of last year. General with net prot of $760,040 or $2.53 a share on 300,000 shares in the first quarter established the fifth consecutive high record for a three month period.

Dividend Liberal

DUE TO THE STABILITY of the refractories business both companies have been able to give stockholders a liberal share of earnings in dividend payments. Harbison pays regular dividends of 50 cents quarterly and extras of 25 cents. These are equivalent to a $3 annual basis.

General pays regular quarterly dividends of $1 a share and extras of 25 cents. These are equivalent to a $5 annual basis. Directors of General Refractories are expected to declare a stock dividend later in the year. A special meeting of stockholders has been called for June 28 to approve increase in the capitalization from 300,000 to 600,000 shares.

General's earnings for the first quarter were twice the regular and extra dividends. Harbison's margin of earnings over dividends was small but an exceptionally strong current financial position and a very stable record of profits justifies its dividend policy.

No Funded Debt

NEITHER COMPANY HAS any funded debt. General has no preferred stock. Harbison has only a small issue of $3,000,000 of 6 per cent preferred. Both companies are following conservative policies of gradual expansion. Both are financing new developments from earnings.

Also 6 new Studebaker Demonstrators used very little. Now is your chance to trade that old car for a late model closed car at a bargain.

DAILY TRUE STORY

"We've always been such good friends, Jim; however, could you consent to do this thing?"

Beatrice Winslow, successful actress, faced her lawyer, James Carter, in his offices. She was pale and on the verge of tears.

"I'm a lawyer Mrs. Pelham."

Beatrice Winslow in private life was Mrs. John Pelham. Mr. John Pelham had decided that he did not want Beatrice as a wife. He believed that he had sufficient reasons for this. He had retained his lifelong chum, Lawyer Carter, to arrange for a divorce.

"I see, Jim, and I suppose there's no changing your mind, but if John had only got some other lawyer. Why, we've been friends for years, such good friends—it's almost like an old friend turning on you. You know John hasn't the least grounds—"

"Please, Beatrice—we can't discuss it. I'm John's attorney, not yours. You shouldn't have come here. It's true we are old friends. I've known you since first you met Jack, but Jack and I have been closer friends—school, college, somewhere in France—all through it."

"That means you believe all this silly stuff gossips have been handing about."

"We both believe it, Beatrice. Too much smoke not to be some fire. I've always liked you and yet I told Jack that he should not have married you, that because of your stage career there would be difficulties. I didn't think—"

Jim Carter hesitated. Beatrice Winslow turned very red and then pale.

"Meaning that you believe I've been unfaithful to Jack?"

"Jack wants to divorce you and I am taking the case. Isn't that the answer?"

"It is part of the answer, I can see. You believe those hideous stories. But none of them are true. I was always in love with Jack so much in love that I couldn't wrong him. It's true that Sydney Nixon came out to the bungalow several times, and most of the times he came to see about his part in the play we put on—"

Shade Not Drawn

"But he didn't appear in it, Beatrice."

"He wasn't capable of the part, and, again, I was influential in having him dropped."

"You shouldn't tell me that, Beatrice. I am your husband's lawyer. What you have just said is evidence against you. The gossip started and you had this Nixon fired, hoping it wouldn't be too late to stop the gossip."

"I had him fired because he was unspeakable. He tried to force his way into my room at the bungalow one night. I thought he had gone and I sent Rosie, my colored maid, home, and then he came back. He was seen—"

"I know he was seen—your shade wasn't drawn."

"I drove him out. I'm going to fight this, Jim."

"You'd better let me arrange for an uncontested divorce, quietly, Beatrice."

Beatrice Winslow didn't know what to do or say. She had never believed that her husband would credit the stories.

This Sydney had tried to make love to her on a number of occasions and she had made it clear to him that he was wasting his time. When he had come back to the bungalow and gone to her room she had resorted to her pearl-handled revolver and a torrent of abuse before she got him out. Nixon had believed that he could win her and then be sure of a part in any play she might be starring in.

During her rest periods Beatrice Winslow had gone out to the bungalow at Pomona Lakes. Her husband would come out for weekends. Jim Carter and his wife had a place there. Beatrice was thinking of Mary Carter.

"At any rate, Jim, Mary cannot believe all of that against me," she said, hating to leave his office, hoping that she could make him drop the case.

"I'm sorry, Beatrice, but she was with Miss Phelps and Mrs. Loring when they all saw the man in your chamber window, and saw you in negligee in his arms."

"In his arms! I was struggling to get away from him. That was when I got the revolver. I'd have shot him if he hadn't gone. It's a pity they didn't stop to watch."

"They did, and saw the light go out," Jim Carter said, accusingly.

And So Does Mary

"Oh! If only they had waited they would have seen the car leaving. Soon as I got him out of the room I put out my light because it was light in the hall. If he tried to come back I would be in the dark, he in the light, and I would have shot him."

"If."

"Then you believe — the worst?"

"And so does Mary and the others. One has to believe his eyes. This is why I want you to go away and let us arrange this secretly. Unless you think the publicity—"

"I've never had to resort to scandal!"

"I know that, Beatrice. I gave you credit for appreciating John and—and playing fair."

"I did. I believe you poisoned his mind—"

"I never told him what Mary told me. It was Miss Phelps and Mrs. Loring who told him. Poor Mary tried to refuse to talk to Jack about it, but finally I had to advise her to admit it, since she was with the others. Jack knew this man Nixon had been coming out there. He thought it was about rehearsals at first. No Beatrice, there's no turning back, no blocking this. Take my advice, let Jack get his divorce without a struggle."

She went out to Pomona Lakes to her bungalow. She would take her colored maid and rest there and think. She might find some way to fight off this. She didn't want to lose Jack, and, more than all else, she didn't want him to believe all these terrible things about her.

Now and then Beatrice Winslow drove down to the stores at Pomona Lakes for shopping.

One day she met Mary Carter in a shop.

She was going to rush up to her. Mary stared at her a moment and turned away. This hurt. Beatrice and Mary had been cronies and pals. What chance had she if such a close friend believed all these things?"

Didn't Know Half

Beatrice wrote to her husband, but her letters came back to her.

Stanton came out to see about the forthcoming play. Beatrice took the script to read but didn't know half that was said. Her mind was in a daze.

Jim Carter met her on the hamlet street and stopped her.

"Mary said you called yesterday, Beatrice. Don't be so stubborn, don't fight against it—the damage is done and it can't be undone—"

"Yes, I called. I saw Mary at an upstairs window, but she didn't answer my ring. I'll fight this thing through; there must be some chance when a woman is innocent—"

"There is, when a woman is innocent!"

"You don't believe it, Jim. You have to say that because you are a lawyer and against me."

"I'll buy your bungalow for more than it is worth if you'll run away and remain in seclusion, until this thing is fixed up."

"Unfixed, you mean. I'm nearly crazy now, Jim—"

"You should have thought of these things first."

Beatrice saw Jim's wife stopping at a store and staring at them. Beatrice had an idea. She smiled at Jim, patted him on the cheek and said, "You're a dear."

She waved her hand and walked away smiling. Jim Carter stared at her, believing she had suddenly gone out of her mind. None of this was lost on Jim's wife.

Mary Carter looked suspiciously at her husband when he told her he thought Beatrice was getting suddenly queer.

Beatrice went to the city a few days later on the train following the one Mrs. Carter took. She went up to Jim's office and, as she expected, met Jim's wife coming out. Beatrice nodded and tried to look embarrassed. Mary glared at her.

"You can't come up again, Beatrice," Jim said. "I've got to warn you. Mary has lost all patience with you, too."

"One question, and I won't bother you again, Jim. If you were to tell Jack that you were going to drop the case against me, that you learned there had been a mistake and that he had no real grounds to divorce me, he'd believe you and come back to me, wouldn't he?"

Mary Suspicious

"He sure would, but I'll never—"

"Thanks," said Beatrice, and she left him half convinced that she was losing her mind.

Beatrice watched and waited. The night that Jim had two golf club committee men at his home was the night that his wife was over at the meeting of the Pomona Lake Welfare League.

Beatrice was among the shrubs in Jim's yard. She moved a high trellis and entered his room window. Noiselessly she dropped her thick cloak and got into Jim's bed.

The committee men had left. Mary Carter was coming home with some others, and Jim came in and switched on the light.

"What the devil!" he growled.

"Get out. Are you crazy?" Jim said.

"No," said Beatrice.

Voices down below and the slamming of a door.

"For God's sake, get out—Mary will be up. She's suspicious and jealous now; how could I ever explain?"

"You can't any more than I could, although you are just as innocent as I was."

"But this will ruin me. Mary will make trouble—"

"I expect so."

"How did you get in?"

Beatrice told him.

"Get out, now. Mary will think the worst."

"Your word is pretty good, Jim Carter. Promise you'll drop the case, make Jack come back to me, explain it all—how you find yourself up against the same circumstantial evidence that threatens to ruin my life—promise that—"

"Ji-i-im!" Mrs. Carter called.

"I'll promise—get out!" Jim whispered.

Beatrice went down the trellis, Jim sat on the bed and began taking off his shoes.

Beatrice and her husband are getting along beautifully together.

NEW YORK—A "call" for observance of "unemployment Sunday" by religious, business, labor and social welfare groups throughout the country was issued today by the National Unemployment League.

Maybe the unemployed would have more fun celebrating employment Monday.

NEWS PICTURE

This is one of the most remarkable pictures ever taken. It seems that all the press photographers in Washington, D. C., were mysteriously called to an old barn, where they found Congressman Frisby, who addressed them thus—

"Gentlemen and friends:

"You see before you a box, securely nailed. It came to me by freight, and scenting a plot I did not open the box. I have reason to believe that it contains thousands, yes, tens of thousands of dollars. It is obviously an attempt to bribe your favorite Congressman. I wish to be photographed while addressing the box back to the sender, whoever he may be. The picture, I hope, will prove once and for all that Honest Horace Frisby cannot be bribed, bullied or bludgeoned. Good day, gentlemen."

PUBLIC NOTICE—Author Didertolo has been firmly but politely asked not to leave any more installments of his fiction story on these premises. We try to do all we can for others, despite creed or color—but, after all, there must be a beginning and an end to everything. This is a fact which Mr. Didertolo seems to overlook.

Why Davis and Pinchot Should Win Nomination

When Gov. Fisher appointed Joseph R. Grundy to the United States Senate a gasp of astonishment went up throughout the Nation. Grundy had just been exposed by a Senate committee as a professional lobbyist who had spent large sums of money in the interest of corporations. His appointment, in view of his record, was quite generally regarded as an insult to the American people.

Opportunity now offers to repudiate this appointment and at the same time to send to the Senate a worthy representative of Pennsylvania, Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, Grundy's chief opponent for the Republican nomination.

Davis' manner of conducting his campaign in itself should commend him to the voters. His fidelity to duty is shown by the frequency with which he has interrupted his speaking tours to go back to Washington to look after his work as secretary of labor. If he were a mere grasping politician, he would devote all his energy to campaigning, and let subordinates run his office.

Every class of citizens can benefit by the election of Davis, for, while he is sympathetic to the legitimate needs of the corporations, he does not believe, as Grundy apparently does, that a high protective tariff is a panacea for all our ills.

The Sun-Telegraph is for Davis.

In the gubernatorial campaign the Sun-Telegraph is for Gifford Pinchot.

Pinchot perceives more clearly than his rivals what the welfare of Pennsylvania demands. He gave the state an honest and fearless administration some years ago. He is more courageous than his chief opponent in facing the issues. His unequivocal stand for the curbing of rapacious public utilities, for the abolition of the coal and iron police, for the elimination of the spoils system in politics, and for honesty in elections, should receive indorsement of the citizens.

City's Growth Depends On Commission's Order

Freight rates mean prosperity or death to an industrial district. In these days of keen competition for markets a matter of a dollar a ton in the cost of getting materials or of reaching a customer is often the factor determining which of two cities will grow and which will decline.

Increased freight rates on short hauls of steel in this district, which will be placed into effect on May 20, will put Pittsburgh mills at a serious disadvantage in competing with Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago where rates have not been changed. The new rates will, in many cases, double the cost of moving steel from a mill in this district to a nearby plant which fabricates the metal into a finished product.

The change in freight rates will directly increase the cost of making hundreds of Pittsburgh's industrial products. It will make it impossible for some of Pittsburgh's companies to keep customers in localities where there is keen competition with other districts.

The increased freight rates mean more than just money out of the tills of a few large corporations. They mean that Pittsburgh will sell fewer manufactured articles to other districts. They mean that fewer products will be made here. They mean that there will be fewer jobs for Pittsburghers. They mean that new plants which might be built here will be built in Cleveland or Detroit. They mean that some plants may pull up stakes and go to other cities.

Unfavorable changes in freight rates have been a predominant factor in putting the coal industry in its six year period of depression. Pittsburgh must not allow the steel industry to get into the same predicament. Since the rates involved cover shipments entirely within the state, it is the duty of the Public Service Commission to order the old rates to stand.

Pennington Men Reveal Gambling Joint in Raid

District Attorney Andrew T. Park has indicated his intent to prosecute gambling charges following a raid on the Show Boat, a floating cabaret anchored in the Allegheny off Duquesne way at Sixth street. Prohibition officers conducted the raid, which revealed a modern gambling palace on the upper deck. Since they were concerned merely with liquor, John D. Pennington, prohibition administrator, said such information as his men had obtained about gambling would be turned over to the county prosecutor.

Commenting on the raid, James M. Clark, director of public safety, said he was unaware that gambling was taking place on the boat else arrests would have been made. That is to be assumed, Mr. Clark said he had received no complaints. Perhaps not. Those who frequented the place, "more than 100 flashily gowned women and men," who were gambling or dining when the raid occurred, could not be expected to complain. Decent citizens, who stay out of such places, could have no basis of complaint.

But Mr. Clark has police and detective forces. They must be exceedingly blind or ignorant not to know what is going on in a resort in the heart of the city so pretentious as to be able to accommodate 100 or more persons. A news picture of the raided gambling quarters shows "layouts" for roulette and craps. Interesting details are a tea-wagon, laden with bottles, a stand similarly decked, and a couple of fine potted plants, the esthetic touch.

If we were Mr. Clark and discovered that a joint like this had been running right under the nose of the pick of the police (we assume they are that in the downtown district) we'd fire them if we could. And if regulations wouldn't permit that, we'd demote the officers and send the subordinates to do their work.

No complaints, indeed!

Taxicab Strike Ended

Renewal of Disorders Must Not Be Tolerated By City.

The taxicab drivers' strike, which began over four months ago, was officially ended last night when the strikers voted to return to work today. The count was 471 to 338.

The people of Pittsburgh have been subjected to unwarranted inconvenience and delay on account of this strike and, at the outset of the trouble, they were shocked by witnessing their own city government fail utterly to maintain law and order.

Now that the strike officially has been declared at an end, the city government in general and the police department in particular can have no excuse for not preserving order should strikers dissatisfied with the vote attempt to renew disorder.

Alexander Rustproof wanted to be commissioner of smoke stacks. Alex was set down when the neighbors told how he used to help an erratic man named Franklin to fly kites.

Jeremiah Bookle might have been the White House spokesman if some sailor hadn't given the President a talking parrot instead.

George Hay Wire was appointed to the appellate division of the Weather Bureau on June 6, 1857. The Senate rejected him by a vote of everybody present and nobody absent.

He was appointed again by the President on June 8, same year. The Senate responded by giving George an unanimous exit the next day.

Once again George's certified appointment was mailed to the Senate and once again the Senate marked it "opened by mistake."

After 16 rejections, George renounced his citizenship, joined the Indians, married a squaw and raised 11 children to hate the Senate. He was killed in a famous Indian battle by crossfire from Chicago.

There was no brighter career blighted by a presidential indorsement than that of William Glucose, who wore the first raccoon coat before there was a campus.

He was considered eccentric because he once loaned money to a farmer. He kissed all the babies while stumping the state and all the babies grew up to be house detectives.

The President appointed him superintendent of the dead letter office where he used a pulmotor on souvenir postcards. When the Senate heard this they yanked an emergency vote out of the tool chest and lowbridged him.

Since then, when anybody hears that he is going to be appointed by the President and voted upon by the Senate, he immediately grabs his hat, takes out more life insurance and hires a lawyer to fight extradition.

MICHAEL FARADAY

By Archibald Henderson

A self-taught genius!

How stimulating should be this thought to all of us!

If we have the quality of genius, whatever it may be—perseverance, patience, imaginative insight, the power of generalization—little else is really, strictly essential.

Michael Faraday worked with countless problems which might well have taxed the utmost skill and ingenuity of the expert mathematician. But Faraday was never able to master the intricacies of the higher mathematics. He analyzed, weighed, experimented—dealt with the things and the effects themselves rather than with theories about them!

Faraday was one of the most modest and unassuming of men. With a disarming simplicity and a rare mental lucidity, he was able to make a scientific lecture as fascinating as a romance. Like only a very few great scientists that might be named, he aimed at great scientific results, leaving renown and the world's applause to take care of itself. He actually refused the presidency of both the Royal Institution and the Royal Society. Again and again he had the opportunity to devote his scientific talents as an experimenter to commercial pursuits with the assurance of ample fortune, but he never wavered in fidelity to the high ideals of science he cherished.

Two autobiographical statements which have come down to us depict the simple greatness and lofty aims of this remarkable man. On one occasion he said:

"I am no discoverer, but simply one of a vast crowd of workers scattered over the earth, who in the providence of God are invested with some portion of the Divine afflatus and appointed to show forth His mercy and loving kindness in conferring fresh benefits on His people; the varied merits of such agents being evinced in the comparative zeal and self-sacrifice with which they carried out the mission entrusted to them."

On one occasion, recording his reflections on the great scientist, or philosopher, as he calls it, Faraday says:

"It puzzles me greatly to know what makes the successful philosopher. Is it industry and perseverance with a modest proportion of good sense and intelligence?

"Is not a modest assurance or earnestness a requisite?

"Do not many fall because they look rather to the renown to be acquired than to the purse acquisition of knowledge . . .?

"I am sure I have seen many who have been good and successful pursuers of science and would have gained themselves a high name but that it was the name and the reward they were always looking forward to—the reward of the world's praise. In such there is always a shade of envy or regret over their minds and I cannot imagine a man making discoveries in science under these feelings."

Michael Faraday, the son of a blacksmith, was born near London on September 22, 1791. Errand boy of a bookseller, to whom he was later apprenticed, he employed his leisure time in studying works of science and in carrying out, with simple and inexpensive materials, the experiments of which he read.

In the winter of 1812 he attended four lectures of the famous natural philosopher, Sir Humphrey Davy; and afterwards sent the lecturer the set of admirable notes he had taken of the lectures, with a request for a position. It is said that Davy was deeply impressed by the incident and by the exceptional grasp of the subject displayed by the young unknown.

It all ran in the romantic fashion of a fairy tale. One night Faraday was about to step into bed when a heavy knock came to the door. It was a summons, by a liveried servant, to wait upon the great Davy the following morning. In due time he was engaged as laboratory assistant with the extremely moderate remuneration of 25 shillings, or a little over six dollars a week. Soon he was making experiments on his own account.

He ultimately succeeded Davy at the Royal Institution with which he remained connected for 54 years. Faraday's notebooks record the great number of his scientific experiments: 16,041.

∴ LISTEN, WORLD ∴

By Elsie Robinson

Bored? Fed up with everything? Can't find anything to interest or excite you? One day like another? What's the use of going on—might as well be dead! Maybe if you could travel—

Travel wouldn't cure you, stranger. Travel might amuse you for a while, but you'd soon slump back into the same old rut. For the trouble's in you, not in your surroundings.

Want a cure—a guaranteed one? Grow an imagination. That will set you free from boredom and make each common incident a fresh journey into a foreign land.

Imagination—most of us think that is something one is born with. Like blonde hair. Or a talent for drawing. It isn't. No one is born with an imagination. Imaginations must be acquired—accumulated—built. But we're all born with the makin's.

What's the makin's of imagination? Curiosity. That urge that makes a monkey grab for a red rag or a baby reach toward the fire is the beginning of the thing that made Milton write "Paradise Lost" and sent Columbus westward, over the dreadful sea.

Curiosity is merely an itch at first—an itch and a reaching toward strangeness. But it is more than a reaching of the body—it is a reaching of the mind, a reaching toward new experience. Cultivate that itch, extend that reach, and you will have imagination.

Life is dull for you. Yet it is not dull for thousands of others whose days are equally uneventful. Things don't have to happen to you to make life wonderful, but they must happen in you. Given the same dull routine and one man yawns his life away—while another creates a masterpiece. Did you ever read "Spoon River Anthology?" It is a series of verses—each verse an amazing drama—the imaginary record of the men and women who sleep in a country graveyard. To you, bored, they might have seemed the most tiresome creatures. But to the quickened imagination of Edgar Lee Masters they were all actors in a tremendous pageant.

You can make the commonest experience or personality glow, like that with your imagination—if you'll set yourself to it. But it won't be easy, at first. It will be like doing difficult exercise, like reading a hard book. It will be tiresome to bend the flabby tissues of your mind. You will have to force your interest and attention. But, if you'll persist, a miracle will presently happen. You will feel yourself expanding, being caught up in a great current of adventure. You will feel yourself entering into emotions you have never felt and stumbling upon visions you have never glimpsed before. And boredom will become impossible. For, through imagination you will at last be freed from yourself. And it was yourself which was boring you—not life.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

It ain't always fair to see ourselves as other see us, because sometimes the others see wrong. Now, for instance, this here Mrs. Ackey was at a card party at Mrs. Bugg's house, and Mrs. Buggs says, "I hear, Mrs. Ackey, that you been telling around that Mr. Buggs beats me."

"My goodness, Mrs. Buggs," says Mrs. Ackey, "who told you that?"

"Why, Mrs. Hanger tells me you told her and all the other neighbors in the block."

"Well, well, Mrs. Buggs, I'd never a-thought it of Mrs. Hanger! Why, the woman can't keep anything to herself can she?"

Text For Today He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?—Micah, VI: 8.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

To grasp the full implications of this estimate of available time is to realize that we are still only in the dawn of consciousness and thought, and that all human will and wisdom has ever done is no more than an augury of what it may yet achieve.

Evolution presents itself as an accelerating process, gathering momentum and hardly yet beyond the beginning of its revelations.

H. G. Wells.

Book IV. Chapter One. Essence of Controversies About Evolution. § 1. The Chief Theories of Evolution.

In Book 3 we dealt with facts beyond any reasonable controversy. Life, we have shown, has appeared not multitudinously and again and again in the world, but at one particular stage in our planet in history, and from that one beginning it has developed like a branching tree. It has not been multifariously and repeatedly created in its present or kindred forms; it has unfolded from lowly and simple beginnings through a vast variety of species to all the animal, vegetable and other organisms the biologist contemplates today.

Special creation of each animal and vegetable type is a parable or a myth. Evolution is the shape of life and a fact as well established now as the roundness of the earth or the relative immensity of the sun.

All these three facts have been disputed in the past. Today controversy about any of them is dead.

Equally dead, we shall find, is the older and really more plausible belief that life has had numerous origins, and, even now, can at times be created afresh. That, it seems, is not so. Life is one thing. Every living thing is related through a common descent, to all the rest of life. There is no reason a priori why this should be so. But all the evidence is that it is so.

In all the three instances we have given, the round earth, the larger sun and the evolution of life, men have disputed these great generalizations because they had started in life with contrary assumptions and found the shock to the new idea too great.

They had intermingled their moral and religious ideas with the notion of a special creation of each kind of animal at a certain date or with the notion of a flat earth or with the notion of a small subservient sun going about our planet, and it seemed to them that if these notions were destroyed their very heavens would fall.

But new generations have followed them, have accepted the new ideas and found the heavens of religious feeling and moral impulse none the worse for a broadened and enlightened outlook.

Today there is no denial of the fact of organic evolution except on the part of manifestly ignorant, prejudiced and superstitious minds.

But here we enter upon a less certain and established region of biological study. In this Fourth Book we are going to discuss how individual development is carried out and further how Evolution has occurred. There we find active and intelligent minds still differing very widely.

What are the relations of individual development to the development of the species? There is no question any longer that Evolution has occurred, but our question is now what has been its method? Or methods?

This is a field where the debris and glow of recent controversies are still evident and where wide and often flaming differences of opinion are still found.

And just as in the opening of Book 3 we made it quite plain what fact we had to prove, so here it will enable the reader to understand the full significance of what follows, if we give first the broad questions our chapters are designed to illuminate, and point out what is still arguable and what is the present state of the discussion.

What are the Theories of Evolution between which we are asked to decide?

The fact of vital evolution has gleamed upon intelligent minds at various phases in the world's history, but the modern revival of biological science had been going on for some time before it rose again to recognition.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 16.—Thoughts while strolling: Who remembers when women had secret pockets in their skirts? And gates closed automatically by buckets of rocks tied to chains? Chief Long Lance, author, man-about-town and monocle wearer. Midgets usually puff big cigars.

Floyd Gibbons, a Washington, D. C., boy, who made good in the city. Italians who wear bright orange ties and yellow topped shoes. Whoops, my dear! Pauline Lord and her husband Obie Winters. Elizabeth Peacock, the interior decorator. And a swell name for one. What happened to near-beer jokes?

Those haughty, stiff-necked doormen who will talk about their children at the slightest excuse. Carolyn Wells, a best selling mystery writer from Rahway, N. J. Edward Bernays the "public relations counsel" and nephew of Freud. The vegetable odors around a public market.

A two cent dance hall. Preston Sturgis, who authored "Strictly Dishonorable." And Brock Pemberton who produced it. Restaurants featuring free lessons by bridge experts. Helen Kane and Winnie Lightner are slim again. Never see anyone pale over receipt of a telegram anymore.

Phillip Merrivale's chin. A "Shave Shoppe." Lucien Boomer, the hotel man. A gentleman gives a sudden start, looks at his watch and sets off on a run. Somewhere a wife is tapping her foot. Joseph Hergesheimer idling before an antique window. Those flashily dressed women so conscious of beauty and sex.

The steady stream at the postal money order windows—sending money back home. Penrhyn Stanlaws could easily pose for a collar ad. So could Aubrey Eads. Banners proclaim an oyster eating contest. And even the thought makes me squeamish. The Odd Shoppe.

A window of drowsy puppies with noses buried in paws. William Hodge is whitehaired. A flapper gives a taxi driver a light from her patent lighter—and skips the gutter into a speakeasy. And here I am prancing along whistling "Thank Your Father!"

A neat description overheard at a lunch table: "He is a motion picture director making his first picture so you can imagine what he's like."

On Saturday in New York it is a custom for important men of affairs to take their sons to lunch at some popular restaurant. It is about the only time they are able to bestow the parental touch. Youth no longer buries a toe in the carpet, fumbles with hands or turns red to the ears in presence of elders. Neither is there annoying brashness. The modern boy is more self-possessed than the young man of 25 was 20 years ago.

When I was 16 and mostly knuckles, teeth and ears, it was a high adventure to drive to town at sun up in the spring wagon. In the office of a business man the other day, his 15-year-old son entered, shook hands warmly, and after a little small talk departed with: "Take care of yourself, Dad." He was sailing that midnight alone to London to join his mother. He might have been going to New Rochelle for the week-end.

The first Mrs. Sinclair Lewis, since her divorce, has turned to writing and has appeared prominently in many magazines under her pen name, Grace Hegger Lewis.

"If it would not extend your hat band," writes a lady from a Washington (D. C.) private school, "we could tell you about a fine compliment paid you in a class here."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You don't care for music, your reading desire is satisfied on perusal of the daily paper, the subjects usually discussed in your home are threadbare.

There does not seem to be anything particularly interesting in your home.

Evenings there are boresome and you want to get out of it.

You desire variety from the regular routine.

Certain kinds of amusement you enjoy while your life partner has more interest in something else.

You make no effort to conform to his or her ideas because you think the other person should adopt your lines of enjoyment.

There is not the right spirit in your home, but you are unwilling to be the one to make concessions which might improve matters.

Is this a picture of your home life?

If so, it may not result disastrously, but it certainly robs your home life of much that it should represent.

Have you a right to say that you are not in a large degree responsible?

Selfishness is the cause of much dissatisfaction existing in homes.

If you are not the first to try to better things at least meet an effort half way.
